COURT BILL FOE BLASTS PLEA TO BACK PRESIDENT

Demands Senate Be Free to Debate.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 9.—[Special.]—Blasting the administration's appeal for support of President Roosevelt's court packing project on the ground of party loyalty, Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], told his Democratic colleagues today that "those of you who rode in on the coat tails of the President will ride out on his coat tails if that is the only reason you are here."

Senator Wheeler.

Senator Wheeler, the first speaker for the opposition as debate on the court packing proposal proceeded into the fourth day, made the most of the administration's reluctance to defend the bill on its merits, and ridiculed the contention that all those Democrats who rode in on the President's coat tails had better support it or else.

Charges Backers are Afraid.

Senator Wheeler also challenged the administration to permit free and unlimited legitimate debate on the compromise one-judge-a-year packing scheme, charging that the proponents were crying "filibuster" and invoking strict application of the most drastic senate rules because "they are afraid of real debate."

Why did not the administration permit a vote on the President's original bill, calling for a six-judge packing operation, Senator Wheeler wanted to know.

"Mr. Farley said, 'We have the votes. It is in the bag,'" the senator continued. "If it was in the bag, and the only bill that should come before us, and no compromise should be made, why did they desert the original bill? Because the great prophet of the Democratic party was wrong. They did not have the votes. They have not got the votes now. They do not want this bill debated because they know that upon legitimate debate they cannot sustain it.

Recalls Robinson Admission.

"They know that while they undoubtedly had 60 votes in favor of the original bill at the outset, the one proposing to add six new justices to the Supreme court, after the members of the senate heard and saw the witnesses and read the testimony before the judiciary committee, and after they heard the debates upon the bill, one by one, then two by two, then three by three and four by four, they deserted that bill. And day before yesterday the Democratic leader, Mr. Robinson, announced that the reason why they did not try to put forward the other bill was because they did not have the votes to pass it.

"They say they have the votes at the present time for the compromise

U. S. EMPLOYES MAY JOIN UNION, BUT NOT STRIKE

Majority Rule Is for Industry Only.

Mill Will Reopen

Indiana Harbor employes of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company are notified to stand by their telephones for call to return to work in strike-closed mill there; time of reopening kept secret, but believed to be Monday; C. I. O. leaders say they will resist the reopening. Details on page 4.

Former vice president of C. I. O. steel union testifies at National Labor Relations board hearing here that he quit Lewis organization in disgust; testimony upsets attorneys for board at hearing of charges against Inland Steel company. Details on page 4.

Washington, D. C., July 9—[Special]—Government employes have no right to strike and their right to collective bargaining by majorities is severely restricted by the fact that congress establishes their wages, President Roosevelt said today. An extended discussion of what the labor relations of the federal government should be, was prompted by the question at his press conference today.

Various movements are on foot to organize government workers into unions. There are three organizations in the field, and they display the same fundamental differences that characterize the labor movement in private industry.

Unlike industry, however, the government will not recognize majorities as the Wagner law insists that manufacturers must do.

C. I. O. Latest in Field.

Latest in the field is the United Federal Workers of America, an affiliate of the radical Committee For Industrial Organization. Jacob Baker, former assistant administrator of the Works Progress Administration, is the leader of this organization, built about the nucleus of seven unions which seceded from the American Federation of Government Employes, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

The third organization is the National Federation of Federal Employes which devotes its efforts to the enforcement of civil service regulations, welfare problems, old age pensions and similar activities.

Congress Makes Rules.

In a general way, Mr. Roosevelt explained, the administrative officials of the government have little or no leeway in their treatment of workers. Wages and hours are prescribed by congress, and the workers must take their grievances to the capitol through their representatives in congress.

In the minor matters where administrative officers have discretion, such as working conditions, the President felt that the employés should be permitted to exercise the maximum of collective bargaining in dealing with the responsible heads of the agencies. He added that a government employé is free to join one or ten unions, if he pleases, subject to anti-strike regulations of the civil service commission.

Obviously it is impossible for any government executive to sign a contract with any or all workers, the President said. Congress, with its power of the purse, always must be the final master in these matters. Under those circumstances collective bargaining could not be regarded as an important prerogative of the government workers and any discussion of it approached the academic.

Shows Defects in Law.

The National Association of Manufacturers, through its law department, issued a statement asserting that Mr. Roosevelt's comments upon collective bargaining by federal employés emphasized "woeful defects in the National Labor Relations act."

"It is inconceivable that a government established for all the people and interested in the welfare of all employés should be subjected to demands by organized minorities," the statement said.

"It is equally unbelievable that strikes against public agencies, whose uninterrupted operation is necessary, should be permitted. But as the law now stands, no matter what the President's attitude may be, there is no general federal statute which specifically forbids strikes against or picketing of government agencies."

Navy Launches Final Phase of Earhart Hunt

HONOLULU, July 9.—(AP)—The navy launched the final phase of its efforts to find Amelia Earhart in the vast Pacific tonight as the mighty aircraft carrier Lexington sped toward the equator to send its 62 planes into the farflung hunt.

Refueled after a dash to Hawaii from San Diego, the Lexington sailed from Lahaina Roads at 3.25 P. M. [8:55 P. M. Chicago time] on a voyage of more than 1,500 miles to the area involved in the week-old search.

Aboard the carrier, which expected to join actively in the hunt Monday morning, were 10,000 extra gallons of aviation gasoline to supply the planes, which can scan nearly 60,000 square miles daily.

Find Only a Boat's Wreckage.

The destroyers Drayton, Lamson and Cushing were accompanying the Lexington to the hunt, which found other rescuers virtually abandoning hope for the aviatrix and her navigator, Fred J. Noonan, who vanished near bleak Howland Island July 2 on an attempted 2,570 mile hop from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland on a flight around the world.

Planes catapulted from the battleship Colorado for the third day flew over Gardner and McKean Islands, western extremities of the Phoenix group, and Carondalet reef, but sighted only ruined Guano works and the wreckage of a tramp freighter, lost many years ago.

No Encouraging Signs.

Thousands of birds, frightened by the roaring planes, took to the air from the islands, forcing the ships to climb higher for safety. McKean island is about 350 miles southeast of Howland and Carondalet about 475. Gardner lies between them.

Officially naval authorities reiterated hopes that Miss Earhart and her navigator would be found, but privately they conceded that the chances were infinitesimal.

The Colorado reported 38,810 square miles of the Phoenix Islands region had been searched, but naval headquarters here estimated the catapult planes, the battleship, the coast guard cutter Itasca and the minesweeper Swan, all in that region, had covered nearly triple that area.

Amid temporary optimism, the

H. H. HOWARD KILLED BY FALL FROM PONY WHILE PLAYING POLO

Howell Howard.

Mineola, N. Y., July 9.—[Special.]—Howell Hoffman Howard, of Dayton, O., husband of the former Loretta Hines of the Chicago lumber family, died here today of injuries suffered in a polo game yesterday. Riding at No. 2 on the Narragansett team, he was thrown to the ground when his pony fell as he was reaching for the ball. His skull was fractured, and his neck injured.

Howard, son of Col. H. Maxwell Howard, Dayton publisher, was 39 years old, and well known in the east as a polo player. Chicago fans saw him in 1931 and 1932 when he captained a Dayton team that played in a series of games at the Oak Brook club.

The marriage of Howard and Miss Hines, daughter of the late Edward Hines, lumber magnate, was a glamorous event in the Chicago social season of 1925. The ceremony was performed at Holy Name cathedral before 2,000 invited and 1,000 uninvited guests who filled the church. Cardinal Mundelein officiated. There were 14 bridesmaids and 14 groomsmen, as well as an opera singer and selected members of the Chicago symphony orchestra—the latter to furnish the musical tone. Four children were born of this marriage.

Howard was educated at Yale university and Oxford and was regarded as a deep student.

'HOPPERS JUMP ON NEBRASKA'S BIG CORN CROP

Lincoln, Neb., July 9.—(AP)—The long dreaded invasion of Nebraska's cornfields by grasshoppers has begun.

Fears of farmers, who are counting heavily on a potential bumper corn crop are aroused. The wheat crop now being harvested has escaped without any great damage from the 'hoppers.

Not only are the pests making headway in the cornfields, but some oats not cut are being stripped.

Keeping Cool Now Chicago's Hottest Topic

As heat waves billowed over Chicago and the nation yesterday for the third successive day the hot weather became a community topic. And it will continue to be the talk of the town today, and perhaps Sunday, for the city and the middle west are due for more heat billows today and tomorrow.

Every one wishes he were cooler, and says so frequently. What can the heat sufferer do to make living and sleeping more comfortable? There are any number of ways to achieve this goal.

Chicago was the coolest spot in the central west yesterday. Residents of neighborhoods unaffected by lake breezes may doubt this statement, but the official high was 89 degrees at 12:35 in the afternoon.

North Shore Scorches.

Gentle southerly winds which brushed across the lake kept the mercury below 90, although the humidity was unusually high. North shore suburbs suffered with residents in the western and southern parts of the county, however, as temperatures ranged from 91 to 100 in Homewood and Libertyville.

These high temperatures were general from coast to coast, and from Canada to the sunny south. At New York a season's record of 95.3 degrees was reached. Suffering was general throughout the east. Several New Jersey and New York communities reported 100 degree heat, the same as that scorching western prairies.

Heat Dodging Suggestions.

Although the knowledge that it is hotter in other cities may not make the Chicago weather seem any less scorching, there are actual ways and means of reducing its effect. From the lore of the physician, the scientist, the home builder and the house wife with her common sense remedies, the following suggestions are presented:

In the matter of clothing, Dr. Irving S. Cutter, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, and Maj. Joel I. Connolly, acting president of the city board of health, agree that everyone wears too many clothes and of too heavy materials.

Suits should be loosely woven, in the opinion of Maj. Connolly. Since

Young Rapist Stripped of His Boasted Glory

John Ardelean, schoolboy rapist, last night was torn from the hero's pedestal he had built for himself with his glib description of rare abilities as a high school scholar and athlete. He not only wasn't grade A in either field, but he wasn't even average, according to several of his teachers.

Young Ardelean—he won't be 17 years old until next month—made a vicious attack Thursday night on a neighborhood girl, only 9 years old, whose identity is being shielded because of her youth. He trapped her in the basement at 2720 Glenlake avenue, where his father, Sam, is janitor. There he inflicted 33 brutal wounds upon her and raped her. He was found in the basement with his victim, feigning that he as well as the child had been beaten by an unidentified man.

Unfolds Amazing Story.

After police quickly punctured this story, Ardelean casually confessed. The confession out of the way, Ardelean told police a story that nearly dumfounded them. He pictured himself as a superstudent at Senn High school, a first string catcher on the baseball team, a first rate tackle on the football team, and a good basketball player. Incidentally, he told of saving a man from drowning a few days previously.

Police could scarcely believe a youth of such superior attainments would commit such a depraved crime. So they began looking into his story. It stood until last night. Then they found that back in December, 1935, he had been put on probation in the Juvenile court for stealing an automobile. Some of his teachers at Senn High school were found. What they told about the self-professed scholar and athlete tumbled him off his pedestal.

Couldn't Make the Team.

"He couldn't even make the track team," commented Alfred Bergmann, athletic instructor.

"He was lazy, and I couldn't give him good marks," said Miss Emily Noack, his history teacher.

"He was in the lower third in the English class," recalled Miss Caroline Foulke, his English teacher [English was Ardelean's favorite subject].

"He never was an honor student or active in athletics so far as I can remember," said Randolph Craig, his machine shop instructor.

Last night, however, Ardelean still clung to his claims of high school glory as he was questioned by Dr. Harry R. Hoffman of the county jail behavior clinic. He added that he was about the most popular boy in school.

Clings to Imagined Glory.

"I was an honor student at Senn," he insisted to Dr. Hoffman. "I was first string catcher, first string tackle, and played basketball. I expected to get a tryout with one or two major league baseball teams."

He described his crime to the doctor. The boy said he was sitting in the basement when the girl appeared. He let her in, then hit her with a wood file. Later, when she screamed, he said he stabbed her repeatedly with an ice pick. He also hit her with

GIRL, 10, GIVES JURY STORY OF FURCH MURDER

On Stand Two Hours as State Witness.

BY MARCIA WINN.

A fragile little girl with a remarkable memory yesterday became the central figure in the trial of Dr. Frank J. Furch for the murder of his ex-wife, Mrs. Norma Schmidt.

From the lips of this child, Jacquelyn Schmidt, who is 10 years old and has been crippled since birth, came the first comprehensive account of the murder of her mother last Feb. 26 and of events leading up to it.

Thin to the point of emaciation, her bobbed yellow hair foaming above a dress of robin's egg blue, she sat in the witness chair in Judge Rudolph F. Desort's Criminal courtroom for two hours as she told gravely and simply—in a piping little voice that occasionally was drowned out by the puffing of nearby freight trains—how she left her dolls and playmate to witness her mother's death.

The Child's Story.

Under the gentle questioning of Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers, she testified that she and a little friend, Mary Jane Mitchell, were playing that February night when Furch came to Mrs. Schmidt's flat at 317 Belden avenue and interrupted his divorced wife and Mrs. Marjorie Lagorio, a guest, at dinner.

"Did you hear them talking when you were in the playroom?" the prosecutor asked her.

"Yes," she replied, turning her pale oval face toward the jury, "my playmate and I heard them."

Q.—Did you hear some of the things he said? A.—Yes, they were nasty words.

Q.—Did you tell your playmate anything? A.—I told her not to mind.

Q.—Did you hear anything definite from the dining room? A.—Not that I can recall. It was a mix-up.

Goes to Mother's Side.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—My playmate went home, and I went into the dining room. My mother called me over and took my hand, and said—'You can't strike me because I have my child's hand.'

Q.—Then what did Dr. Furch say? A.—He hit her anyway, and my mother got up from the table because she was afraid the salad plate he had thrown might come down on her.

When the police, called by Mrs. Lagorio, arrived and began to lead Furch away, Jacquelyn was standing in the hallway, she said, clinging to Mrs. Lagorio's hand. When the group started toward the kitchen, she followed.

"And what happened then?" Meyers asked.

Tells of the Shooting.

In a courtroom heavily silent and intent, the child paused, ran a thin hand over her mouth and replied slowly:

"They were all in the middle of the kitchen, and I heard the shot. Mother came and ran right past me, and I ran into the living room after her. She was bleeding. Then they took her away."

Q.—Have you seen your mother since? A.—Yes, at the funeral.

Meyers then dropped discussion of the murder, of which other witnesses had given detailed accounts, to dwell upon events of preceding months. These, as told in a child's words, shed vast light upon the tragedy which left Jacquelyn motherless and living in a placement bureau operated in Elgin for former babies of the Evanston Cradle who have been returned.

Child Brought Couple Together.

Had it not been for Jacquelyn, afflicted since birth with shortened tendons which left her a cripple, the fatal shooting might never have taken place, her testimony indicated.

For Furch was a foot specialist, and Mrs. Schmidt took her adopted child to him for treatment. A week after the first treatment he came to call at her home. The next week he came several times.

Then, in swift succession, followed Furch's divorce from his wife, Mrs. Schmidt's divorce from her husband, their marriage, divorce, and post-marital encounters of progressive ferocity which ended when Furch shot and killed his former wife, shot her maid in the leg, and shot himself in the abdomen.

"Do you remember when Dr. Furch moved into your home at 317 Belden avenue?" Meyers asked the child.

"Yes," she said, "he moved in—I can't quite remember, but it was after my mother and him were married."

Q.—After he moved in, did you hear anything in the night? A.—Well, one night I woke up.

Q.—Did you hear anything? A.—I heard—some loud talking. . . .

Q.—Did you hear your mother say anything? A.—I—I can't quite recall.

Q.—Did you hear your mother say, "Don't hit me again?" A. [emphatically]—O, very plain.

Q.—How long did Dr. Furch live in your house? A.—Five days.

Q.—What happened then? A.—Well, mother had his stuff taken down in the elevator.

Q.—What do you mean by stuff? A. [easily]—His suitcase and clothes and things.

His Visits Are Resumed.

Within less than two weeks, however, he began calling again. And when she and her mother spent the summer at the Cory Lake, Mich., summer home of her foster father, John C. Schmidt Jr. [Mrs. Schmidt's first husband], here, too Furch appeared.

Q.—How often? A.—Well, he'd stay over the week-ends, not every week-end, but he might come one and skip two.

Q.—And then he'd come back? A.—Yes.

Shortly after New Year's day, she recalled, under Meyers' prompting, Furch called at the Belden avenue apartment and left a note for her mother.

Q.—Did you give this note to your mother? A.—I put it on her dressing table.

Comes with Policemen.

Q.—Did you see her that day? A.—Yes, she came home with two private detectives.

Q.—Policemen? A. [relieved]—Yes.

Q.—Did she read the note aloud? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did it say? A.—There was something in it about how she would be a corpse.

Q.—Did it say, "I'm taking the rings that Jack Schmidt has given you, and if you do not marry me, you will be a corpse by tomorrow morning or night"?

Samuel A. Hoffman, attorney for Furch, demanded a mistrial declared at this point. The form of Meyers' question, he said, was prejudicial. Judge Desort, however, ruled that it was permissible to ask Jacquelyn leading questions because of her youth.

"I don't remember the exact words——" Jacquelyn began to answer.

Q.—Was that the general meaning of it? A.—Yes.

Questioned by the Defense.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Hoffman she admitted Furch had never struck her. She further identified a father's day card, with six crosses [for kisses] under her signature, as one she sent him.

Prosecutor Meyers on redirect examination dismissed her as a witness after unsuccessfully attempting to show that Furch did strike the child. Attorney Hoffman then ended the examination by asking one more question.

Q.—What did you call Dr. Furch? A.—Daddy.

Over the objection of the defense the prosecutor then read into the record the bill of divorce filed by Mrs. Schmidt against Furch. In this she charged him with striking and beating her and using profane language. Four instances of cruelty were recited.

Other Witnesses Called.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Margaret Browning, 323 Belden avenue, who formerly occupied the apartment below that of Mrs. Schmidt, testified that Furch treated Mrs. Schmidt abusively.

"She told me she might as well knock her head against a table and kill herself as to remarry him," Mrs. Browning declared.

Steve Miller, janitor at the Belden avenue address, testified he had summoned police four times between June, 1936, and the night of the murder to quiet Furch, all at Mrs. Schmidt's request. The four policemen at the Schmidt apartment at the time of the murder all testified, giving slightly different versions of the shooting.

Court adjourned until 9:30 o'clock this morning. The state has five more witnesses and expects to close its case today.

Honor Capt. Anderson of Coast Guard on Birthday

Capt. John O. Anderson of the old Chicago coast guard station was 58 years old yesterday, and so last night a number of his friends gave him a party at the coast guard station. "I'm not an old man yet," the captain told them. He isn't. Every day he is out in the lake, and during the summer season few days pass that he doesn't help to save lives or boats. Capt. Anderson, a member of an old marine family, has been on coast guard service on the great lakes since he was 19 years old.

MADRID, July 9.—Two villages, important from a military standpoint in the defense of Madrid against the Spanish rebels, fell into loyalist hands today. Troops of Gen. Jose Miaja, loyalist commander at Madrid, pushed forward on a three way offensive.

In a communiqué issued at 1 p. m. the general staf announced: "At 11:30 o'clock this morning the 5th army corps occupied the village of Quijorna, following a brilliant attack. They captured a large quantity of war material and more than 200 prisoners" [Quijorna lies 18 miles west of the capital].

Seize Road Junction.

Another communiqué revealed that loyalist troops had entered Brunete, a strategic road junction about 2½ miles south of Quijorna. At Brunete a north-south highway linking El Escorial and Navalcarnero and an east-west road from Madrid intersect. Both are useful for military transport.

Airplanes coöperated with Gen. Miaja's troops, working in three columns against rebel troops who have lurked at Madrid's outskirts since November, never able to capture it.

In this drive, now in its fifth day, one column was ordered westward from Madrid. Two moved southward, one from this city and the other from El Escorial, which lies northwest of Madrid.

Other Attacks Under Way.

Elsewhere in Spain loyalist troops atacked the rebels. Government planes bombed a rebel truck train and a railway train near San Martin de Valde Iglesias. Rebel planes were bombed near Segovia, northwest of Madrid.

On the Aragon front, in northeast Spain, the loyalists reported they had withstood rebel counter-attacks on El Basurero.

Rebel officials, although admitting the loyalists had made some progress, declared the cost had been great, half the men in some brigades being killed.

Chicagoan Among Wounded.

MADRID, July 9.—(AP)—American volunteers recently wounded while fighting with Spanish government forces outside Madrid reported tonight at least three of their number were killed in action—Jean Bronstein, David Walba and Ray Peters.

At least 40 Americans, including Stephen Revere of Chicago, are now in a Madrid hospital. Most of them wounded lightly, none dangerously. Arm or leg injuries from machine gun and rifle bullets predominate.

The hospital is located in a group of buildings taken over by the sanitary corps and the wounded lie in beautifully decorated salons where beds have been installed.

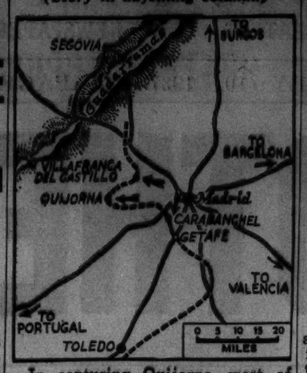
With the Americans are groups of Canadians, British and Spanish members of the mixed volunteers' brigade.

$55 AND TICKET STOLEN

Mrs. Clara Johnson of Los Angeles, who is visiting Mrs. Anna Bager, 10449 Hale avenue, reported to the police yesterday that three men snatched her purse, containing $55 and her return ticket, at 103rd and Wood streets.

GAIN NEAR MADRID

(Story in adjoining column.)



In capturing Quijorna, west of Madrid, Spanish troops yesterday dented the line being held by besieging rebels. The loyalist gains, realized in a three way offensive under Gen. Jos Miaja, resulted in getting control of an area considered strategically important.

a pair of lawn shears. He did not mean to kill her, he declared.

"I want her to live," Ardelean said at one point. "If she does, I want to live, too, but I guess that would mean a prison sentence. If she dies, I should get the electric chair."

Father Punches Boy.

This was the nearest suggestion of remorse evinced by Ardelean since his arrest. During the day he was taken to the Edgewater hospital to be confronted by his little victim. She screamed, "That's John!" as she saw him. Her infuriated father struck Ardelean on the jaw. It didn't ruffle him. The little girl is expected to live unless infection develops in her wounds.

Dr. Hoffman last night described Ardelean as an apparent egomaniac and a sexual psychopath with sadistic tendencies. Like Robert Irwin, the mad sculptor of New York, he demands recognition from the world, and to get it invents achievements or commits a shocking crime, the psychiatrist said.

Identified in Attempted Attack.

Ardelean was identified last night by a girl 16 years old, the daughter of a lawyer, as the youth who exposed himself and tried to seize her and two other girls in the forest preserves at Central avenue and Indian road on July 1. Dan Wegener, 21 years old, 5139 North Lovejoy avenue, who pursued the youth until the latter fired a shot at him, also identified Ardelean as the man. Ardelean denied the accusations.

Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis, acting on orders of First Assistant Wilbert F. Crowley, will seek Ardelean's indictment Monday on a charge of rape. Meanwhile, the youth is being held at the Summerdale station, the district which quickly solved the crime.

SORRY, BUT HE ROBS HOTEL.

An apologetic robber, who said he needed money because of a sick wife, took $55 yesterday from the cash drawer of the Argyle Shore apartment hotel, 907 Argyle street, and $1.50 and a watch from the night clerk, Leo Shire, 55 years old, 817 Lakeside place.

POWERS APPOINT BRITAIN TO WORK OUT PATROL PLAN

Deadlock on Spanish War Defies Solution.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—Great Britain, at the unanimous invitation of the international committee for nonintervention in Spain, undertook tonight the task of making one more effort to find a solution of the Spanish naval patrol deadlock. The invitation was proposed by R. de Marees van Swinderen, minister of the Netherlands to London.

The earl of Plymouth, chairman of the committee, which is made up of twenty-seven nations, announced the decision to accept it after a hurried consultation with British cabinet ministers.

Situation Deemed Grave.

He said the British government realized the gravity and urgency of the situation, and would call a meeting of the committee some time next week to consider new moves to confine Spain's civil war to that country and to prevent its spread to the rest of Europe. He admitted that unless a more accommodating spirit were shown on all sides any new scheme would have faint hopes.

Representatives of the twenty-seven member states conferred for six hours at two meetings today on the Anglo-French proposal to take over the entire sea patrol of Spanish coasts in the interests of neutrality [which most of the small nations preferred], and the Italo-German counter proposal that the naval control be abandoned, and that both sides in Spain be granted belligerents' rights.

Threatens to Lift Embargo.

In pressing for an agreement Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, said France would abolish control of the Franco-Spanish border and would permit arms to cross into loyalist territory unless Portugal restored British observers to their posts on the Portuguese-Spanish frontier by Monday.

Other ambassadors who spoke were Count Dino Grandi, Italy; Ivan Maisky, soviet Russia, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, Germany.

Air Search Area

search swung over to the Phoenix region last Tuesday after technicians reported radio bearings on mysterious radio signals pointed to that area.

But the Colorado with its three fighting planes; the Itasca, and the Swan reported no encouraging clew after having scanned the area since Wednesday afternoon.

Fail to Find Winslow Reef.

Even the navy planes had difficulty in trying to find some of the reefs mentioned as possible havens for Miss Earhart's plane. After three trips out from the Colorado the catapult planes yesterday finally circled over the chartered position of Winslow Reef, a northerly extension of the Phoenix formation, but found no reef there. It was believed the reef had sunk beneath the waves.

South Seas experts said aside from the Phoenix Islands area, the most likely chance of the flyers surviving on falling short of Howland would have been to drift toward the Gilbert Islands, 700 miles west of Howland.

Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin, directing the search from here, blocked out an area of about 265,000 square miles, [a little larger than Texas] to be searched, including the region already scanned about the Phoenix Islands.

This blocked-out area consisted roughly of a 400 mile by 600 mile quadrangle with Howland as its center.

NAVY'S EARHART HUNT LASHED BY CONGRESSMEN

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—The house rang today with criticism of the navy's search for Amelia Earhart.

Representative Scott [D., Cal.] expressed belief it was about time some one in authority announced the navy will not be used to search for "publicity stunt" flyers in the future.

"Do you think if some poor fisherman, the father of a family, got himself lost out on the Pacific, the navy would be spending $250,000 a day to look for him?" interposed Representative Faddis [D., Pa.]

Representative Collins [D., Miss.] declared this country would have slight chance of winning a war if its air forces performed no better than the navy has done in the present hunt.

"Miss Earhart was forced down in easy flying distance of Honolulu more than a week ago," he said, "and only three planes have reached the spot."

CHURCH PERILED BY ORDINATION OF PENNER DUCK

Los Angeles, Cal., July 9.—[Special.]—With its ranks minus the support of the "Rev." Drake Googoo, the Spiritual Psychic Science church, today was defending a suit brought by the state to revoke the church's franchise as a corporation.

"Reverend" Googoo in real life is Joe Penner's duck of screen and radio fame.

The duck was ordained as a minister in the Spiritual Psychic Science church last year, with Mae West and Warner Baxter as sponsors. He was defrocked by Bishop Charles E. Kelso when it was brought to the church's attention that he was not a Persian clairvoyant and had failed to pay the church the $10 fee for certification.

Investigation by a private detective agency, was sponsored by the Los Angeles Ministerial association in a campaign to show the laxness surrounding the incorporation of religious groups. Joe Penner's duck was a deliberate "plant" to illustrate the charges.

ILLINOIS TAKES LEAD IN LAWS FOR MARRIAGES

New Act Puts Curb on Gin Weddings.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 9.—[Special.]—Hasty marriages were outlawed in Illinois today when Gov. Horner signed the first of the Graham series of the bills requiring that persons intending to wed must apply for their license at least three days in advance of the ceremony. The law becomes effective immediately.

Taken with the Saitiel bill, for tests to show freedom from venereal diseases as a requisite to issuance of a license, the Graham bill is hailed as placing Illinois in front rank in the union in guarding against "gin marriages" and those of persons whose physical condition should bar them from marriage.

Three Loesch Bills Signed.

Also included in a list of 25 measures approved by Mr. Horner today were three minor bills in the Loesch parole reform series. While no action was taken on the key bill to require trial judges to fix minimum and maximum sentences, within the indeterminate sentence act, the governor signed measures making the following changes in the parole law:

1. Power is granted the parole board to examine prospective sponsors and employers of convicts seeking parole, to determine that satisfactory arrangements have been made for a job, and that the character of the sponsor fits him to oversee the parolee.

2. Henceforth all sessions of the parole board will be open to the public and the board must keep a public record of all persons appearing for or against any applications for parole. Open sessions are being held at present, but only through a recent board ruling; this rule is now made law.

3. Within 30 days after a prisoner is paroled, the board must so notify the state's attorney of the county from which he was sentenced and the name of the person to whom he was paroled. These records will be open for public inspection.

The Loesch bills were sponsored by Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago] and Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago].

New Divorce Measure.

Awaiting action by the governor is a second important bill in the series introduced by Senator R. V. Graham [D., Cicero], which would permit a divorce to couples who have lived apart for two years. That measure was delayed, but reached Mr. Horner's office today. He is expected to act on it tomorrow or Monday. By the latter date he hopes to complete consideration of the 139 measures still on his desk.

The governor approved two bills introduced by Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield], which require that suits for libel must be filed in the county in which the newspaper or magazine printing the alleged libel is published.

Budget Bill Signed.

Another important bill signed today establishes the Illinois budgetary commission which is to meet prior to the 1939 session and formulate a plan for the standardization and classification of all state jobs and to consider the problem of appropriations facing the next session. The new commission will consist of the governor, the chairmen of the senate and house appropriations committees, and two additional members from each of the legislative chambers. An appropriation of $25,000 was granted for expenses.

Signing another bill, Gov. Horner made it unlawful for children under the age of 15 years to drive a motor vehicle.

JUVENILE ACTORS OF MAYFAIR NET $35 FOR ICE FUND

Fifty Mayfair children gave their third annual Free Ice show last night at the Mayfair Presbyterian church, Ainslie street and Kostner avenue, that less fortunate youngsters, invalids and aged folk in the city's overcrowded areas might have a more comfortable summer.

It was the first entertainment of its kind in the twenty-fourth season of the free ice fund, supported by TRIBUNE readers through the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Appeals for free ice are answered with ice tickets supplied through gifts of money from TRIBUNE readers.

Twenty-two vaudeville acts were presented by the juvenile actors before an audience of some 200. The entertainment raised $35.67 for the fund. Other contributions announced yesterday are:

In Memory of a Little Boy	$ 5.00
Oak Park Charity Circle	10.00
Total	$50.67
Previously acknowledged	733.11
Grand total	$783.78

Contributions may be sent to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Square, Chicago.

ASKS DIVORCE

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
MRS. MARY FURST.

Mrs. Mary Patricia Furst, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Mars, wealthy race horse owner, and the late Frank C. Mars, candy manufacturer, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against William Henry Furst, son of a Minneapolis attorney.

The bill, filed by Attorney Robert Cantwell Jr. charges cruelty and asks that Mrs. Furst be given custody of their two children, William Henry Jr., 2½ years old, and Robert, 17 months. The couple married on Oct. 28, 1933, at the Mars family's Milky Way farm in Pulaski, Tenn., and separated last June 6. Mrs. Furst, who is 23 years old, lives at 930 Ashland avenue, River Forest. Her husband, 26 years old, lives at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

In October, 1934, Mrs. Furst filed suit for divorce in Reno, Nev., but she and her husband were reconciled after the birth of their first child several months later and the divorce bill was dismissed.

JUROR IN ZINTAK BRIBE CASE GETS ONE YEAR IN JAIL

Insists He Told Truth; Lashed by Judge.

Gustave Anderson, 58 years old, was in the county jail last night rounding out the first day of a 1 year sentence imposed upon him yesterday by Judge Robert C. O'Connell of the Criminal court on a charge of contempt growing out of the Zintak trial scandals.

Anderson was a member of the jury in the first trial of Frank V. Zintak, ousted Superior court clerk, who was charged with embezzling $10,500 in public funds. The jury disagreed. Later Anderson announced that he had been given $25 and a promise of a steady job as a bribe to hold out for Zintak's acquittal.

McKinlay in Court.

He named as the briber Robert W. McKinlay, a boyhood friend and a federal court receiver. McKinlay was tried subsequently on a charge of bribery, and was acquitted. Yesterday McKinlay appeared in court in response to a defense subpena as Anderson came up for sentence, but did not testify.

The court, prosecutors, and lawyers for both Anderson and McKinlay tacitly admitted that the situation was most puzzling, for Anderson was up for contempt on his story that he had accepted a bribe, while a jury by acquitting McKinlay, held there never had been such a bribe.

The Judge's Comment.

Judge O'Connell did not go into the merits of this distinction, but said:

"This court will not sidestep its responsibility in punishing this flaunting, flagrant subversion of the law. This court will not enter into any procedure that would have for its end a frail effort to palliate public justice by freeing this man, Anderson, with a too quickly forgotten admonition of the meaning of contempt."

"I told the truth about the bribe. I guess I'll have to take the penalty," said Anderson later. Judge O'Connell allowed him 60 days to appeal, and set bond at $2,500. Anderson was unable to raise this.

CHIVALRY LOST IN HOLLYWOOD, ACTRESS HOLDS

Declares Film Men Are Just Heartbreakers.

Hollywood, Cal., July 9.—(AP)—You can have your Hollywood men, says Patricia Wilder, and for hers she'll take a Georgia cracker.

The film boys may be pretty handy at breaking hearts, Miss Wilder, screen and radio actress, said, but they don't know how to act towards a nice girl.

"Hollywood men? You can have them," Miss Wilder declared today. "They know less about how to treat a girl than the boys in grammar school down where I came from in Macon, Ga.

Soon Tires of Good Looks.

"Glamour? Good manners? Savoire faire? These movie heart breakers lack them all once they are off the screen. They have good looks, but a girl soon tires of that in a man."

Warming to her subject, Miss Wilder—her friends call her "Honeychile"—proceeded to compare the filmland species of male to the southern gentleman. It was pretty rough on the home guard.

"Down south they make a fuss about a girl," she drawled. "The boys make you feel as if you're something nice and important. You get the habit of having men treat you with respect. That tradition about southern chivalry is more than a tradition—it's a fact.

"The worst kind of backwoods Georgia man is chivalrous. He might murder the English language, and he might even murder a man or two, but he still knows how to behave toward a lady."

Now in Hollywood . . .

"What happens? First of all, if you're lucky enough, or unlucky enough, to get here, some bored fellow in a casting office will treat you like a leper—or else he'll want to kiss you five seconds after he meets you.

"Then if you do get a part, you'll have some little assistant director getting into your hair."

Will They Help Sell Picture?

Miss Wilder had the reasons all figured out. The deplorable attitude of men toward women in the film industry, she said, is caused by the commercialized concept of beauty.

Down south pulchritude is something which very frequently inspires men to proposals of marriage; here it's regarded as a marketable commodity.

The casting director, the director, the producer—all of them are wont to look upon girls much as a cattle buyer scrutinizes a load of beef.

"All they're interested in," Miss Wilder complained, "is whether those girls will help sell the picture in Des Moines or Brooklyn or Macon. It's no wonder they have lost all respect for women."

And her criticism wasn't sour grapes. She's doing nicely, both on the screen and air, but her ambition, she said, is to get enough money to get out of Hollywood, buy a farm in Georgia, marry a southerner and raise a bunch of boys and consider men pretty wonderful creatures.

Pickets Barred When All Workers Avow Loyalty

Judge Joseph Burke yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining the Hairdressers' and Cosmetologists' union, local 548 D, from picketing the Manor Beauty Salon, 5558 North avenue. The injunction was asked by Ross W. Swing, the owner, and all seventeen of his women employés. This is the first time, according to Swing's attorney, S. R. Rabinoff, that all employés of a concern have appeared with the employer in seeking an anti-union injunction. Judge Burke held that picketing is illegal if there is no dispute between employer and employés and if the latter did not go on strike.

AID FROM WPA ASKED IN FIGHT ON HAY FEVER

2,000 Weed Cutters Urged for City.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Works Progress administration officials were asked yesterday to help in the statewide campaign against weeds—principal cause of hay fever—by doubling the force of 1,000 WPA workers now engaged in cutting weeds on Chicago parkways and vacant lots.

The proposal was made by Oscar E. Hewitt, city commissioner of public works, who urged that the campaign be intensified so all ragweeds can be cut early in August, before they have time to form pollen.

Fund of $70,000 Available.

Mr. Hewitt said that with the recent shutdown of street repair work projects in the city, on which 5,800 WPA men were employed, sufficient workers should be available to assign to the weed cutting project. Vincent A. Anderson, assistant director in the Chicago WPA office, said the Hewitt proposal is being considered.

Approximately $70,000 of the federal allotment for the weed cutting project still is available. Before receiving Mr. Hewitt's suggestion WPA officials said they had been planning to reduce, rather than increase, the weed cutting forces and to spread the work over a longer time.

Cleanup Could Be Thorough.

With 2,000 men on the job, 50 workers could be assigned to each ward where there are weeds, and a fairly thorough cleanup job could be done before the ragweed pollen forms.

J. H. Lloyd of the state department of agriculture will direct a special campaign from Aug. 8 to 88, designated by Gov. Horner as weed destruction days. In addition a group known as the Chicago Farmers, which has a membership of 625, plans to clear ragweeds and other obnoxious vegetation from more than 150,000 acres of farm land.

KEEPING COOL NOW CHICAGO'S HOTTEST TOPIC

Experts Give Advice as Nation Swelters.

white reflects heat and black absorbs it, wear clothing of light shades.

Leave Undershirt at Home.

Don't wear a tight fitting collar or closely woven shirt. This just makes a hot air balloon above the waist. Men need not bother about an undershirt. Porous, absorbent, light weight shorts are the best.

For men and women the advice in this respect is the same—do not wear clothing that binds. Maj. Connolly suggests that a dress is sufficient clothing in hot weather for women.

The only time a hat is necessary, when the mercury starts for the top of the tube, is when the wearer is exposed to the sun. Then wear a light weight hat, well ventilated.

Care of the feet, so easily forgotten, yet so necessary, is one of the most important items stressed by Dr. Cutter. Don't burden your feet with heavy cumbersome tight shoes. Make them airy and above all loose.

Advises Daily Foot Bath.

"Feet should be bathed daily," declared Dr. Cutter. "This is important. And after the bath dust the toes and soles with any talcum powder containing boric acid.

"Feet perspire constantly. In really hot weather the skin excretes one-third of the total body waste. So change socks or stockings often."

There is another matter of body hygiene which Dr. Cutter feels every one should consider. In the summer skin infections increase. So he advises a change of all clothing daily, and alternating shoes, so that each pair will have ample time to dry.

With night approaching the big problem of the summer arises. How to sleep in the hot humid air. There are grassy stretches in city parks which offer a tempting bed, and Maj. Connolly suggests they be used by persons who get no circulation of air in their homes.

Nathan Kleitman, associate professor of physiology at the University of Chicago, a specialist in human sleeping habits, also offers some advice.

Sleeping Troubles Universal.

"Every one thinks his inability to sleep in hot weather is peculiar to himself," Prof. Kleitman said. "There may be some consolation in knowing that this complaint is general.

"Drink something cool, a glass of water or milk, before retiring. Open the windows for air circulation, but don't lie with four face in a draft. If the temperature is 80 or 82 throw off all the covers. If it is above 86 or 87, take off the pajamas and nightgowns. It will be cooler, healthier, and more comfortable sleeping raw."

But above all, whatever you do, the doctors say, do it moderately. Maj. Connolly gives the general advice to do all that you do normally, but do it in moderation, even if you are naturally inclined to hustle.

Take It Easy on Vacation.

People on vacation forget their bodies are not normally adjusted to strenuous exercise. Break your body in gradually. If your feet get sore, and the pains start shooting up to the knees, remember that you will feel more comfortable in the long run if you play a little less golf, and climb only one mountain instead of three.

FORMER POLICEMAN JAILED FOR THREAT TO WITNESS IN HIS SUIT

Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday sentenced William L. McClowry, 35 years old, 610 Garfield boulevard, a former park policeman, to 30 days in county jail for attempting to intimidate a witness during trial of his $25,000 damage suit against the Chicago Surface Lines company.

William McClowry.

McClowry was sentenced after the jury found for the company. He said he was permanently injured on Sept. 15, 1934, when a street car struck his automobile at Wentworth avenue and Garfield boulevard. Several witnesses, including two fellow policemen, testified he was at fault.

A company witness, Mrs. Celia Haagar, 6218 St. Lawrence avenue, testified that McClowry came to her home and threatened her with harm it she failed to testify for him. McClowry admitted the visit but denied the intimidation.

COURT BILL FOE BLASTS PLEA TO BACK ROOSEVELT

Senator Wheeler Insists on Unlimited Debate.

proposal, and they come here and appeal to party loyalty. They say to you senators who have just been elected, you ought to vote for this bill because you rode in on the coat tails of the President of the United States.

Not Roosevelt Bill, He Says.

"Thank God I did not ride in on the coat tails of the President of the United States.

"Finally, we were told, if you do not vote for this bill you will break the President's heart.

"O, dear what a pity, you are going to break the President's heart if you do not vote for him on this bill!

"Well, if senators are going to break the President's heart because they do not vote for him on this bill, they ought to go back and vote for six judges instead of voting for the substitute, because this is not the President's bill. O, no, this, is not his bill. This is not what the President wanted. He wanted six new judges.

"And why did he want six new judges? Because some of the proponents of the original bill said, 'We cannot trust less than four judges, and we ought to have six because some of the six might go back on us, so we have to have six, and if we cannot get six, the least we will take is four.'

Challenge Senator Logan.

"But finally they have come down and said, 'We do not want six all at one time. That was wrong. That was packing the court, so now, instead of packing it all at once, we will pack it by slow motion, and we will get the same result.'"

Senator Wheeler had been replying, up to this time, to the "coat tail" and party loyalty argument made by Senator Marvel M. Logan [D., Ky.], manager of the compromise proposal. He then walked over to Logan's desk and recalled "the Kentucky wonder's" threat to "throw some dead cats" if the opposition leaders wanted to get rough. Shaking his finger at Logan, the tall, lanky Montanan said:

"If you have any dead cats to throw at me go ahead and throw them. I've had dead cats thrown at me and I've had dead animals that smelled worse than cats thrown at me. But I don't propose, and the other opponents of this bill don't propose, to be intimidated by threats. Go ahead and throw your dead cats."

Adversary Shakes Head.

Senator Logan grinned sheepishly and shook his head.

Senator Wheeler then recalled that Senator Joseph F. Guffey (D., Pa.), in a speech written for him by the administration's propaganda bureau, "got up here the other day and made a violent attack upon the chief justice of the United States. He said he is a terrible politician.

"Where have I heard those words before? Not from the senator from Pennsylvania, but from some of the proponents of this bill who are not members of the senate. The men who first proposed this bill were the first ones to use that term."

Then, walking over toward the seat of Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, Senator Wheeler continued:

"But if Chief Justice Hughes is such a terrible politician, and we should bar politicians from the Supreme court, why is it that the members of the senate of the United States all joined in recommending our distinguished leader here for the existing vacancy on the Supreme court? If we were not politicians, we would not be in the senate of the United States. The only statesmen are those who are dead."

Robinson Unable to Reply.

Senator Robinson, unable to reply to this because of the rigid rules he himself had invoked, sat silently with his hands over his face.

Senator Wheeler denounced the "bigotry" and "intolerance" with which the administration had waged its fight to pack the court. Never before in the history of the United States had there been such appeals to prejudice, he declared. He assailed the propaganda activities of Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, "the man with all the money to spend;" of Postmaster General James A. Farley, of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, and "that great liberal, Mr. Ickes, the secretary of the interior."

"Whoever heard of Ickes before he came down here seeking a job as commissioner of Indian affairs?" Senator Wheeler asked.

C. I. O. IS REBUKED BY MARTIN FOR LABOR HOLIDAY

Lansing, Mich., July 9.—[Special.]—Members of the Lansing United Automobile Workers of America, who staged the "labor holiday" here June 7, had been officially rebuked, but also excused, by their president.

Homer Martin, ex-preacher head of the U. A. W. addressing a rally of unionists last night admitted that the "holiday" order here was a "mistake." All union members were called off their jobs. The local U. A. W. president, Lester Washburn, issued the call when his wife, another woman, and six men were arrested for picketing activities at the yards of a wrecking firm here.

"That was a mistake," said Martin of a "young and growing organization. We all make mistakes and the union has made some, too, but not again. We believe in the principle of law and order and that's more than the chambers of commerce and other organizations do. They violated laws when they refused to recognize labor legislation. However, that's all over, too. Now they will have to toe the mark and recognize the union."

MISS K. ELIZABETH OHI.

Miss K. Elizabeth Ohi, 26 years old, 1430 North Dearborn street, was admitted to practice in the United State District court yesterday by Federal Judge William H. Holly. Miss Ohi was the first Japanese woman to be admitted to the Illinois bar. She was an honor graduate last March from the John Marshall Law school, and since has been specializing in property law in the office of Attorneys Max C. and Rebecca Liss, 100 North La Salle street. Her father, Sidney G. Ohi, is widely known as a designer for the Pullman company.

QUIT IN DISGUST, C. I. O. UNION AID SAYS AT HEARING

Upsets Labor Board at Inland Inquiry.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Charles Austin, vice president of a C. I. O. steel union local, surprised counsel for the National Labor Relations board yesterday with the statement that he had resigned from the union in disgust. Austin was called as a board witness in the board's case against the Inland Steel company, based on the union's charges of unfair labor practices.

Seeking to have Austin declared a hostile witness after he had made his statement, I. S. Dorfman, labor board attorney, demanded: "Didn't you tell me in my office that you were willing to come here and testify on behalf of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee?"

Ernest S. Ballard, chief counsel for the company, leaped to his feet at this and objected: "This is a fact finding hearing, and Mr. Dorfman is attorney for the labor board."

Employed Since 1919.

Austin is a heater, one of the higher paid workmen in the Inland plant at Indiana Harbor, where he has been employed since 1919.

On cross examination, Attorney Ballard brought out that Austin joined a lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, now the C. I. O. union, three years ago, and again signed up as an Amalgamated member last July. It was brought out later that Austin was elected vice president of his lodge.

Austin then disclosed that he resigned from the Amalgamated a week before the end of the strike at the Inland plant and joined the Steel Workers Independent union, an anti-C. I. O. organization. He never has notified the Amalgamated of his resignation, saying he never had any duties as vice president. Attorney Dorfman asked why he had resigned.

"Just Got Disgusted," He Says.

"I just got disgusted with the organization I belonged to and thought, well, I might as well go along with these other fellows," said Austin.

The hearing broke away from the legal technicalities which have characterized much of the procedure in recent days and was devoted to stories by employés in the Inland mills concerning establishment of the present independent union and charges that company foremen had sought to persuade men to leave the C. I. O. and join the rival group.

A succession of witnesses for the board testified that they had been former representatives under the company union plan, which was dissolved after it was outlawed by the Wagner labor act, soliciting memberships for the independent union during working hours.

LEWIS DEFENDS C.I.O. 'STUPIDITY'; ATTACKS GREEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 9.—[Special.]—Bitter personalities were the only answer of the Committee for Industrial Organization today to the charges of the American Federation of Labor that the C. I. O. lost the steel strike through "stupid blunders and alienating public opinion through the violence of its tactics."

The C. I. O. leadership was belabored by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., in a statement released last night. Green asserted the public resented the minority rule and violent tactics of the C. I. O. to such an extent that the cause of labor had been thrust back years.

From his headquarters, where he has maintained a strict silence since the C. I. O. setbacks in the steel strike, John L. Lewis, chairman, said of the Green statement:

"I consider it the droolings from the pallid lips of a traitor."

At the department of labor and throughout the administration officials refused to comment on the Green statement.

ASKS TAX QUIZ INTO ROOSEVELT FAMILY INCOMES

Presents Information of Evasion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 9.—[Special.]—Before an angry and hostile committee Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] today laid the names of four members of President Roosevelt's family, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and his father, and several prominent contributors to the Democratic campaign fund as possible tax evaders.

Barred by a special committee rule from presenting evidence against the President himself, Fish released a statement to the press quoting the President's own words at a press conference on Feb. 14, 1934, in which Mr. Roosevelt admitted he had used loopholes in the tax laws to reduce his income taxes.

No Answer from President.

At his press conference today the President was asked if he intended to answer the remarks of Fish. He answered significantly, "not at this time."

Later Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early explained that Mr. Roosevelt intended to discuss the entire tax situation at a future press conference, probably next Tuesday.

Fish was baited continually by committee members during his testimony and Senator Pat Harrison, [D., Miss.], later branded the New York congressman's testimonay as "a brain storm." But Fish told the committee frankly that, unable to gain access to the income tax returns of those he mentioned, he was presenting a case based upon information he had been able to obtain from the reliable source.

Wife and Children Named.

The Roosevelts named by Fish were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President; James Roosevelt, his eldest son; Elliott Roosevelt, another son; and Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, his only daughter.

In addition, Fish suggested that the committee examine the returns of Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of the WPA; John L. Lewis, labor leader and contributor of $500,000 through his organizations to the Democratic national committee; and Ben Smith, Wall Street trader and another heavy contributor to the administration party.

"Tax avoidance knows no party lines," said Fish in his introductory remarks, "and I am appearing before the committee merely because this inquiry thus far has been an inquisition of the foes of the New Deal.

"It is childish to make out Republicans only have attempted to avoid taxes. If the committee wants to be fair let it look into these cases I am going to discuss."

Cites Radio Contract.

Fish first introduced photostatic copies of a contract between Mrs. Roosevelt and a New York shoe company for a series of 10 broadcasts at $4,000 a broadcast. The contract provided for a "consideration" of $1 to be paid Mrs. Roosevelt, but immediately after each broadcast the agent for the company, Nyles F. Lasker, was to mail a check for $3,000 to the American Friends' service committee of Philadelphia, a charitable organization.

Of the remaining $1,000, Fish said, Lasker received $600 a week for a commission and $400 a week was paid Miss Nancy Cook, intimate friend and business associate of Mrs. Roosevelt. The reason for this payment of a total of $4,000 to Miss Cook was not disclosed, although Fish said it "probably bordered on charity."

"That $40,000 earned by Mrs. Roosevelt was under her control," Fish declared. "She specified how it should be divided. The ordinary income tax payer is allowed an exemption of only 15 per cent for charity and if Mrs. Roosevelt can turn over the entire amount and not pay income taxes on it there is no reason why John D. Rockefeller or any other large contributor to charity should not do the same."

Mrs. Roosevelt Won't Comment.

Mrs. Roosevelt refused to comment on the charges. She was not perturbed and said she would have "not a word" to say to the tax committee.

Her present radio contract with a cosmetic company follows in general outline the contract which was placed before the committee by Fish.

Mrs. Roosevelt's first radio contract was placed before the treasury for a ruling as to whether the funds paid to charity, Lasker, and Miss Cook should be included in her income. The treasury ruled that it need not be included, according to White House sources.

Fish told the committee he had no direct information concerning the returns of President Roosevelt's two sons and daughter, but that he understood that James Roosevelt might have used the foreign holding company device to slash his taxes.

Persistent attempts by Representative Fred M. Vinson [D., Ky.], to ascertain the source of Fish's information brought from the New Yorker the statement that he would not "drag any one else into this."

"I will be responsible for everything I have said here," he told Vinson. He eventually gave the committee the name of a New Yorker named Darby who, he said, offered to sell photostatic copies of documents showing that James Roosevelt had used a foreign holding company to reduce his income taxes.

MAYOR FINED

A. J. (BOSSY) GILLIS.

Newburyport, Mass., July 9.—(AP)—A Municipal court judge today slapped a $50 fine on the city's "Bad Boy" mayor, Andrew J. [Bossy] Gillis, after convicting him of nonpayment of wages to a city employé. Gillis now has an appeal pending on a similar charge involving two school department employés. He appealed today's finding.

QUITS JOB TO LIVE ON RELIEF; GOES TO JAIL INSTEAD

Threatens Fuss to Get Aid; Makes Good.

Edward Granpo entered the offices of Harold Pillifant, township supervisor and poor commissioner at Waukegan, yesterday and demanded that he be placed on relief. Supervisor Pillifant asked him to wait while he made an investigation and found that Granpo had quit his job at the Johns-Manville plant in the city two weeks before and had drawn a $71 pay check.

The supervisor also learned that Granpo had told fellow employés and neighbors that he was tired of working for $24 a week and that he could support his family on the $45 a month and rent which they would get as relief. Pillifant asked Granpo how he had spent his pay check.

Threatens to Make Scene.

"That's my business," said Granpo. "I'm not going to tell you. But if you don't put me on the rolls, I will raise such a fuss around here that you'll have to arrest me. Then you'll have to give my family relief while I'm in jail."

"Now, now," said Supervisor Pillifant, "no one's going to arrest you."

He took Granpo by the arm and led him to the street. The relief applicant returned and kicked a chair to pieces.

"You win," said the supervisor, and called police.

Later in the day Police Magistrate Clarence Brown sent Granpo to the county jail to serve out a $25 fine for disorderly conduct.

Larder Well Stocked.

Later Supervisor Pillifant went to the Granpo home at 40 South Gretta avenue, Waukegan. He found Mrs. Granpo serving dinner to four relatives who were visiting her, and discovered an ample supply of groceries in the pantry.

Mrs. Granpo also said that she wanted to go on relief, but refused to account for her husband's pay checks. She said they had made deposits of $3 each on a refrigerator and gas stove and had spent part of the money at a carnival. The Granpos were still off the relief rolls last night.

DENIES HE HAS SUCH TAX DATA AS FISH CLAIMS

New York, July 9.—[Special]—Fred W. Darby, public relations counselor and lecturer, today identified himself as the person mentioned by Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] as having information on alleged tax evasion by members of the Roosevelt family but denied he had any such information or that he had told Representative Fish he had.

"I told Mr. Fish," Darby said, "that I had heard rumors that members of the Roosevelt family had personal holding companies in the Bahamas but I have no proof of it. I wish that I had. I would be glad to give it to Mr. Fish or any one else."

Strikes Shut 65 Detroit Cleaning, Dyeing Plants

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—[Special.]—A strike by members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, today closed 65 Detroit cleaning and dyeing plants, which employ 2,000 persons. Union organizers said the strike was called after the collapse of negotiations with the Michigan Plant Owners association.

INDIANA HARBOR PLANT EXPECTED TO OPEN MONDAY

C. I. O. Threatens Battle to Halt Workers.

Foremen at the Indiana Harbor mill of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company quietly notified employés last night to stay close to their telephones and to be ready to return to their jobs.

Frank Furnell.

The time of the reopening of the plant, which employs 7,000 men, was kept secret, but the word went out that returning workmen would not have to run the picket line of the Committee for Industrial Organization, which called the strike against the company on May 26.

Furnell Authorizes Statement.

Official notice that the plant would be reopened within a few days was given yesterday at a meeting of 300 members of the Association of Steel Employés, independent union of Youngstown workers, in Indiana Harbor.

D. L. Ellinwood, secretary of the union, said he had been authorized to make the announcement by Frank Purnell, president of the company.

Mr. Purnell met with officials of the union in the Palmer house on Thursday night, when plans for the reopening were drafted. Yesterday Purnell returned by plane to the company's general offices in Youngstown, O., leaving a statement for Ellinwood to read to the union.

Workers Promised Safety.

"A definite announcement as to the exact time and method of opening will be made within a few days," the statement said. "Necessary measures will be taken to insure the safety of those who wish to return to work and no agreement, direct or indirect, will be made with any one as a condition to or in connection with the reopening of the plant. Work will be resumed without discrimination against any employé."

The independent unionists cheered the announcement of the plans to reopen the plant, and cheered again when Mr. Purnell's statement went on to say that the company would reinstate its vacation plan as though no interruption of work had been caused by a strike.

Opening Expected Monday.

H. L. Brown, presiden of the independent union, told his men the plant would not reopen today or tomorrow, leaving the inference that the reopening is planned for Monday.

Nicholas Fontecchio, Calumet region director of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee of the C. I. O., said his union would resist any attempt to reopen the plant.

"Those men are not going back to work," he said, "unless the company makes an agreement with the S. W. O. C. similar to that which ended the strike at the Inland Steel company."

Girl, 6, Treated for Rabies After Dog Bite, Recovering

Physicians reported last night that Madelin Wild, 6 years old, who was bitten by a rabies infected dog, is recovering and apparently out of danger. She is at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wild, 628 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette. Mr. Wild is head of the Wild company, map manufacturers. The girl was bitten on June 29 and immediately afterward given the Pasteur treatment by Dr. Lorne W. Mason, 1900 Central avenue, Evanston.

CLASHES PUNCTUATE FORD LABOR HEARING; WITNESS COLLAPSES

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—[Special.]—Frequent verbal clashes and the collapse of a witness today marked the national labor board's hearing on charges against the Ford Motor company.

The clashes occured between John T. Lindsay, the board's trial examiner, and Louis J. Colombo Sr., chief Ford counsel, over what the examiner regarded as too frequent objections to the testimony. Lindsay finally told Colombo, "You may make your objections when you deem it proper and necessary but make the rulings short and do not hold up the witnesses."

The exchange occurred while Arnold Freeman, a news photographer, was on the stand giving testimony that a mysterious leader of the "down river gang" took part in the rout of members of the United Automobile Workers of America who were trying to distribute pamphlets at the Ford River Rouge plant last May 26.

Ralph Dunham, an organizer for the U. A. W. A., collapsed during his testimony and was led from the room. He said he was ill for 12 days after a beating at the Ford plant.

SEIZE 7 AS REDS GATHER TO SEE STRIKE PICTURE

Six men and a woman were arrested last night by Fillmore street police in preventing an exhibition in the headquarters of the West Side Young Communist league, 3228 Roosevelt road, of motion picture films of the Memorial day steel strike riots. Some 200 spectators were turned away.

The picture was just about to be shown when Lieut. Stewart P. Moss entered the hall with several squads of police. A brief mêlée resulted when Lieut. Moss ordered the picture stopped. The films, which were taken by an amateur, were confiscated. There was no permit for the showing.

Those arrested were a woman who refused to give her name; Alva Syrus Adams, colored, the operator; Sonny Ross, 24 years old, 3442 Flournoy street; David Lasky, 24, 1835 Augusta boulevard; Jack Starr, 17, 3422 Roosevelt road; Harry Win, 1210 South Sawyer avenue, and Morrin Monegain, 24, colored, 1521 South Kedzie avenue.

A. F. OF L., C. I. O. DEFEATED 3 TO 1 IN TRANSIT VOTE

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9.—[Special.]—The P. R. T. Employés' association assailed as the "company union" by three opposing groups won an overwhelming victory today in Mayor Davis Wilson's collective bargaining election for Philadelphia Rapid Transit company workers.

In the vote conducted at 15 polling places to determine which of four unions the P. R. T. trustees shall deal with, the employés' association polled 6,551 votes of a total of 8,241 cast.

The nearest competitor was the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, one of the standard railroad unions, which received 1,067 votes. Fewer than 500 votes were cast for the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, which had ordered their members to boycott the election after vainly trying to stop it.

Leader of Aluminum Strike to Invoke Wagner Law

Alcoa, Tenn., July 9.—(AP)—Fred Wetmore, president of the Alcoa Aluminum Workers' union, said today he would ask Gov. Gordon Browning "to use his powers" to close the plant of the Aluminum Company of America here if the latter continues to refuse arbitration of a wage dispute. Wetmore said the union planned to file with the national labor relations board tomorrow charges that the company violated article 7 of the Wagner labor act "by failing to bargain collectively as to wages and conditions of employment."

CALL PARIS CAFE STRIKE IN FIGHT FOR 5 DAY WEEK

Premier Pleads in Vain for Labor Truce.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 9.—The hotel and café sections of the National Federation of Labor declared a general strike just before midnight tonight following a late evening conference with Premier Camille Chautemps, who tried desperately to avert the walkout. One of the chief issues is the five day, 40 hour week.

Chautemps had pleaded with the union delegates not to take action, which he said would plunge the hotel, food, and drink industry into chaos with the city full of foreign and provincial visitors to the Paris exposition.

It was feared the strike will drive a great part of the visitors away to other capitals of Europe.

Famed Restaurants Closed.

The delegates, however, contended that they have been overwhelmed by irregular strikes in the last few days which closed most of the city's biggest and most famed cafés and restaurants, including the noted Café de la Paix on Opera square, its biggest nearby rival, the Café Viel, and the famous old Café Weber near Madeleine church, which, along with old fashioned drink and restaurant service, maintains the city's only downtown night lunchroom in the American style.

Also closed was the Rond-Point café on the Champs Elysées.

Among the hotels were the famed Crillon, which suffered a partial strike two days ago, and the Paris, which lost most of its 254 guests when elevator, food and chambermaid service failed.

Right wing critics alleged that the labor federation was being "rushed" by its communist element.

Cabinet Decrees Tax Boost.

PARIS, July 9.—(AP)—Frenchmen grumbled today as the cabinet of Premier Camille Chautemps announced drastic new tax measures under which average citizens face the necessity of revising their personal budgets in order that the nation's might be balanced.

The government, invested by parliament with emergency powers, announced that beginning Monday income taxes, railway fares, and other vital items in the cost of living would go up by one-fifth to one-third.

The cabinet's sweeping decree announced higher tax schedules and other charges designed to raise about 10,500,000,000 francs [about $410,000,000], to balance the ordinary budget, meet railway deficits, and generally cope with the financial emergency.

RUNAWAY STRIKE HITS PLYWOOD FACTORY; IT WILL ABANDON PLANT

New Albany, Ind., July 9.—[Special.]—New Albany today lost its first industry as a result of a strike when Plywoods, Inc., manufacturer of veneer and material for the Gunnison Housing corporation, closed its doors, announcing it had quit business.

Asked by the C. I. O. not to strike at present but to continue under the old working agreement, employés called an independent walkout on Wednesday demanding more pay and a shorter work week. The management and the New Albany local of C. I. O. had submitted separate contracts to C. I. O. authorities in Washington for recommendation and the two parties were awaiting word on the proposed contracts when the men struck.

CONVICT YOUNG DRIVER OF AUTO MANSLAUGHTER

Science Traces Tiny Clews on Car.

A jury in Judge Benjamin P. Epstein's court yesterday found Mike Gaglione, 20 years old, 537 West 28th street, guilty of manslaughter for the death of Rudolph Staffa, 53 years old, 1045 North Trumbull avenue, who was killed in an automobile accident on Nov. 26.

Car Traced to Garage.

Staffa was killed by an automobile at the intersection of Morgan street and Milwaukee avenue. There were no witnesses to the accident, and for two days the police were unable to find any clew to the driver of the death car. Then an anonymous call was received suggesting that they investigate the car of Nick Gaglione, father of Mike. It was found in a garage at 2000 South Michigan avenue, with the windshield broken.

On the cowl police found traces of blood and hair which Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, coroner's toxicologist, found identical with samples from the body of Staffa. This evidence, together with the fact that Gaglione could not satisfactorily explain his whereabouts on the evening of Nov. 26, resulted in his conviction.

Held for Auto Death.

Charles Swider, 36 years old, 910 North Washtenaw avenue, was ordered held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday at the inquest into the death of Harry Giovannoni, 68 years old, 810 North County road, Hinsdale. Giovannoni was struck and killed by Swider's truck on June 25 at Western avenue and 18th street. The coroner's jury found that Swider drove carelessly and at excessive speed.

Charles Wagenknecht, 72 years old, retired Chicago policeman, died yesterday in Sherman hospital, Elgin, of injuries incurred last Monday when he drove his automobile into the side of a North Western passenger train at Main street, in Fox River Grove, where he lived.

Dies of Traffic Injuries.

John Harris, 34 years old, colored, 1132 Townsend street, died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered on July 3 when he was struck by an auto driven by Joseph Zaccari, 21 years old, 2150 De Kalb street, in front of 2103 Indiana avenue.

William Gross, 20 years old, who resided at White and Everett street, Des Plaines, died last night in the Northwestern hospital in that suburb of injuries suffered in an automobile collision at Dempster street and Greenwood road, Maine township, on July 5. Five other persons were injured, none seriously.

Between June 30, when the state legislature, because of a patronage feud, missed its last opportunity to enact a drivers' license law which has reduced traffic accidents in some states, and 4 p. m. yesterday, 13 persons were killed and 549 injured in traffic accidents in Cook county. Since Jan. 1 and up to 4 p. m. yesterday 532 have been killed in the county and 412 in Chicago, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 11,150 were injured by automobiles in Chicago.

Three Sentenced to Jail on Erratic Driving Charges

In Safety court yesterday Judge Charles S. Dougherty sentenced three men to county jail for traffic law violations. Walter Fitzsimmon, 32 years old, 4429 North Kedzie avenue, got ten days for driving while intoxicated. Mike Sajagovich, 21 years old, 9516 Exchange avenue, and John Kanowalski, 21 years old, 1628 Ada street, were sentenced to five days each on reckless driving charges.

DROPS DEAD WHILE AT WORK.

Henry Morgan, colored, 43 years old, 5006 South Park way, a laborer in the car shops of Armour & Co. at the Union stockyards, dropped dead while at work yesterday, apparently from a heart attack.

THREE NEW NOVELS

On today's book page Fanny Butcher, Tribune literary editor, reviews:

The story of a man who led a roystering, colorful life in the southwest.

A realistic but sympathetic portrayal of a cross section of Louisiana society.

BRIDE KILLED

MRS. ANNA KMETTY.

John Kmetty, 27 years old, a pattern maker, and his bride, Anna, 23, were to return home today to their honeymoon cottage at 6405 Kedvale avenue, but Kmetty will return alone. His bride was killed by lightning yesterday while they were fishing in Devil's lake at Baraboo, Wis. They were married June 26.

PEDESTRIAN HURT AS BOY JOYRIDES IN FAMILY AUTO

Vito Palumbo, 14 years old, 1826 Grand avenue, was sent by his mother last night to buy a loaf of bread, and was given permission to take the family automobile. He used it for a longer ride than was necessary for the errand. Going west in Grand avenue, on his return trip home, he passed a west bound surface lines car at State street, struck Eugene Dearborn, 68 years old, 18 East Grand avenue, a bookkeeper, and knocked him under the street car, which crushed his right foot. Dearborn was taken to Passavant hospital.

The Palumbo boy drove away, and was later arrested at home. He admitted the accident, and said he drove away because he was excited.

A. L. Whitmer Gets 1-14 Years in Forgery Case

Arthur L. Whitmer, 49 years old, former insurance company head who was recently convicted of forgery in the Criminal court, was sentenced to serve 1 to 14 years in the state penitentiary by Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday. Whitmer's bond was raised from $3,000 to $15,000 pending appeal. He was unable to put up the new bond and was taken to the county jail. Whitmer was convicted of forging the name of a friend to a note which he deposited as collateral with the old Kaspar American State bank, which closed in 1932.

Radio Dirge After Soviet Convictions Draws Rebuke

MOSCOW, July 9.—(AP)—The communist party newspaper, Pravda, today termed as "criminal" the broadcasting of mourning music by Kiev and Kharkov radio stations after the announcement of convictions of persons for treason against the soviet union. Pravda reprimanded communist party officials in the Ukraine for "lack of vigilance" and said the present state of broadcasting there "demands immediate, serious attention."

PAINTER INJURED IN FALL: DIES.

John Steiner, 45 years old, 2729 Carmen avenue, a painter, who was injured Thursday when he fell from a ladder at 950 Belle Plaine avenue, died yesterday in the American hospital.

AUTOISTS ACCUSE BERWYN POLICE OF SHAKEDOWNS

BY HAL FOUST.

Ralph C. Murphy, a Joliet attorney, signed an affidavit yesterday in which he said that he paid $5 to two Berwyn motorcycle policemen to escape a false charge of speeding through the suburb.

At the same time, R. Melbourne Thayer Jr., of Hinsdale, owner of a string of Chicago restaurants, charged that Berwyn policemen operating in Ogden avenue between Lombard and Harlem avenues, were guilty of two shakedowns.

Meets to Study Situation.

These charges followed a whitewash given to the town's police on Thursday night at a meeting of the Berwyn council's police and fire committee. The committee, headed by Ald. Lester Burkhardt, had previously announced it would investigate speed trap reports which followed the arrest in Berwyn last month of Judge J. M. Braude of the Chicago Boys' court.

"No one has made any complaints to us," said Mr. Burkhardt following the meeting, "and our police department has reduced the accident record of Ogden avenue."

"Did you investigate reports that Judge Braude and the Chicago Motor club had received complaints of a Berwyn speed trap?" he was asked.

"The proper place for any one to make such a complaint is with our civil service commission," the alderman replied.

"Wasn't one such complaint made to your chief of police recently?" he was asked. "You mean that [Thayer] case from Hinsdale?" interposed Chief Pilot. "I investigated it and found that the shakedown took place in Cicero and not in Berwyn."

Mr. Thayer, who drives through Berwyn twice a day, was positive, however, that the shakedown occurred in Berwyn. Because of a previous experience his wife had with the Berwyn police, he was holding the speedometer at exactly 35 miles an hour, he said, while driving with her to the city several weeks ago.

"We were stopped by a squad car," said Mr. Thayer, "and I was told that for $5 I could continue. I gave one of the two policemen in the car a $10 bill and he gave me $5 change.

Tells of Previous Shakedown.

"On the previous occasion my wife was being driven to the railroad station by an employé when a Berwyn policeman told the driver to follow him to the station. The motorcycle led them up an alley where the cop asked how much money they had. My wife said $4. He took the money and let them go."

In his affidavit, Attorney Murphy related that he was returning to Joliet last November when stopped in Berwyn by two motorcycle policemen. With him was Miss Dorothy Lentz, daughter of D. H. Lentz, police commissioner of Joliet.

"We had been driving about 27 miles an hour," said Mr. Murphy. "The policemen said we had been doing 60. They made it very plain that they wanted money. I gave them $5 and they rode away."

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here such day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

BEST LAID PLANS

By CALEB

WHEN Joseph Pulitzer—great publisher of a generation ago—built a New York house, he employed a famous firm of architects. They were instructed to make the house silent. Mr. Pulitzer detested noise. To escape sound was an obsession with him. Economy was no object. Silence was planned.

But there is no field of endeavor in which all possibilities for the unexpected can be eliminated. In building the house, a spring was uncovered that defied suppression. The architects designed a sump-pit into which the spring fed. The pit was emptied by an automatic electric pump.

By ill fortune (or lack of advanced enough engineering knowledge at the time), the sound of the pump was spread with persistent vibrations through the house, with the heating system as conductor. The pump was shifted from beneath the house, but the noise and vibration persisted.

Finally, despite his best laid plans, Mr. Pulitzer surrendered. When he wanted silence he abandoned the house for a single story annex he built in the yard. The walls were double and packed with mineral wool. The windows were triple glassed. Ventilation was by a fireplace chimney, stretched across by networks of silk threads to deaden entering sounds. Three doors were hung in a short passage from the mansion to the annex. The passage floor was hung on ball bearings. Only then did Mr. Pulitzer have a room completely silent.

Not always do well laid plans attain to the end desired. But if plans are complete and thoroughgoing, the seat of the defeat of purpose may be easily located. When an analytical approach and science enter into any project, they corner and drive into small discoverable areas the chances and hazards that oppose perfection.

This is true in the conduct of business. Like a group of cats finally bringing a rat to bay in a corner, modern methods of research and analysis light up and localize the enemies of proficiency and accomplishment.

Methodical approaches to complex problems cannot eliminate unexpected hazards or contingencies. But when the planning is based on sufficient understanding, business can generally make its way clear without resorting to retreat from its troubles.

RIPON COLLEGE APPLIES CREED OF RUGGED WEST

Links U. S. of Present to Fight on Slavery.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Pres Service.]

Ripon, Wis., July 9. — [Special.] — On a hill which lifts abruptly along the west side of the main street of this town stands Ripon college, which was staked out by two grim, determined men in a snowstorm during the winter of 1850-51. With less than 400 students the college lifts its towers proudly today as an institution which has held in the main to its ideals and which has left a good impress on this prairie land and in the nation.

It took courage and vision to found a college in the days when the covered wagons were passing through to the newly opened Indian lands after the Blackhawk war, in which Abraham Lincoln participated. It takes courage today to hold a true course in the ferment of the educational world, when the simple compass of the old religion seems wavering, when new gods are calling down the valley and strange music is heard.

College Close to Farm

The college overlooks the farm lands and is close to the big red barns, the browsing dairy herds, the corn and wheat, the peace and beauty of a landscape which appealed to the pioneers as

So fair on every side,
Her woods and white oak openings,
Her prairies spreading wide,
Her island groves, her shining rills,
The blossoms on her sunny hills.

Capt. D. P. Mapes, founder of the town and college, had to chip in his gold watch before the roof was laid on the first building, and there is the story of the preacher who gave $100 of his $500 annual salary to the college. William S. Brockway gave the sum of $30C and the college bore his name until 1864.

This eleven acre campus, in which the $100,000 Lane library is the latest addition, has been the scene of significant events. Near by is the Ceresco district, now the first ward of the city of Ripon, where in 1844 the followers of Francois Charles Fourier, French Socialist, established a colony. It was a sort of Brook Farm experiment. Fourier held that individualism and competition were immoral and that men could be herded together in coöperative communities. The prairies did not encourage such submission and the colony failed "for want of social adhesion." The Yankees headed by Mapes had other ideas and wider horizons, and they pushed the Wisconsin Phalanx aside.

Affected by Civil War.

The great undercurrent of conflict that was sweeping north and south toward war reached Ripon. In fact, it was in this hamlet, according to historians of the Republican party, that the first systematic work was accomplished to bring about a fusion of the anti-slavery parties of the north into one organization, and here that the Republican party had its birth. It is not the size of places that count but the ideas that go forth from them.

David S. Muzzey in his history writes:

"While the Douglas bill was still under discussion in the senate a group of Whigs, Anti-Nebraska Democrats and Free Soilers met in Ripon, Wis., and resolved that if the bill passed they would organize a new party to resist the extension of slavery. They suggested the name 'Republican,' which was taken and popularized by Horace Greeley in the New York Tribune."

Democrat Helps Work.

Today at the edge of the campus stands the little white schoolhouse where the Republican party was born on March 21, 1854. Samuel M. Pedrick, a Ripon lawyer and historian, one of the trustees of the college, was instrumental in this restoration, although he is a Democrat, a "Jacksonian Democrat," he hastens to add.

The so-called "Booth rebellion" occurred here in 1859, when citizens mobilized against deputy marshals of the federal government sent to take back runaway slaves.

During the war the college was a center of patriotic fervor. In 1861 the executive committee let the buildings and grounds of the college to the government, to be occupied by the First Wisconsin cavalry. Ripon sons were in this war and in the world war and a strong unit of the R. O. T. C. has been maintained here. This year seven of the graduates went into the United States army for a year. Last year there were thirteen who took this step.

Friend of Gen. Pershing.

President Silas Evans, one of the line of ministers who have guided the college, is a friend of Gen. John J. Pershing and has aided him in building the national defense plan.

"Men are ruled by ideas," Dr. Evans writes in "The Currency of the Invisible." Fundamentally, we have wars because we believe in war. Wars will cease when we believe in the power of organization and law. The opposite of war is not peace, with its contemptible philosophy of pacificism. We hate the mollycoddle pacifism that makes life and creature comfort an end in itself.

"The opposite of militarism, the militarism that America hates, is world organization in democracy and justice. The world, as yet, does not believe that principle. Even in the sharply contrasting ideas of war and peace, it is quite inevitable that political wisdom will dictate defense measures while promoting the spirit and organization of peace."

Contribution of America.

Of the liberal arts college, Dr. Evans says:

"The liberal arts college is America's peculiar educational contribution to the world. These colleges are ganglious centers of American culture and training posts of American leadership. They have achieved a deservedly deep place in the love and loyalty of the public.

"The outstanding points of a college will give about such features as these: The cultural as essential to the practical; a zeal to prepare individuals for leadership rather than to build institutionally; teaching power to introduce pupils to reality, not in neglect of research, but as prior and preparatory to research; a clear cut and confident placing of character—by which we mean Christian character—not in contrast, but as superior to genius. We shall win and deserve to win, by these signs."

Writes of Christian Teaching.

Dr. Evans interprets the Ripon spirit as founded in true democracy. His belief is that scholarship, morality and democracy are the principles that underlie all education and the proper policy of Christian colleges. Of the teachings of Jesus he writes:

"He never railed at social conditions in the accents of an agitator. His thought never took the form of classes and the masses; rather the good and the bad. The line of cleavage with Jesus was not on the surface of things visible and passing, but in the depths invisible and eternal. The abundance of things or lack of abundance of things must line up to the requirements of a man's life."

Ripon has 1,423 living graduates. It is strong for science, despite its religious background and beliefs, for scientific research is regarded as God's way of interpreting the universe to human reason.

Some of Graduates.

Among its alumni are a Supreme court judge of New York, the late treasurer of the Republican national committee, Fred W. Upham; W. R. Dawes, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; former Congressman H. C. Cooper of Wisconsin; Charles D. Norton, former secretary to President Taft and assistant secretary of the treasury; the late Frank K. Sanders, director of the board of missionary preparation; the late Rev. Frank White of Chicago and many in the scientific and literary world.

"Ripon deals in individualism. Its science graduates in considerable number have gone into distinctive research and graduate work. Sigma Xi has honored 16 Ripon men in physics, 15 in chemistry and 7 in biology, medicine and engineering. Clarence Addison Shaler, Pasadena sculptor, is a graduate, and H. G. Selfridge, London merchant, is a trustee.

New courses to be added this year are Bible and religion, under Dr. Evans; astronomy under Dr. Clifford C. Crump, formerly of Yerkes and Carleton, and sociology under Dr. Ludwig Freund, an exile from present day Germany.

CAGES STOLEN WITH 40 RATS AND 20 MICE; CATS ARE EXONERATED

W. W. Scott, president of Arwell, Inc., 1119 Glen Rock avenue, Waukegan, an exterminating concern, called yesterday on William Bialock, Waukegan police chief.

"Somebody," he said, "has been stealing our rats and mice."

"I thought you killed rats and mice," said Chief Bialock.

"These were live ones," explained Scott. "We used them to test poisons."

"Have you looked over the neighborhood tom cats?" asked the chief.

"No tom cat could carry away the cages, too," said Scott. "Last night some one broke in and took 40 rats and 20 mice, and their cages with them."

JIMMY WALKERS ADOPT 2D BABY FROM CRADLE

James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, and his wife, the former Betty Compton, actress, adopted a two months old boy yesterday from the Cradle home in Evanston. Seventeen months ago they adopted a daughter, Mary Ann, then eight weeks old, from the Cradle.

The Walkers came to Chicago Thursday on business, they said, with no thought of adopting a second child. They went to the Cradle and told officials how pleased they had been with their daughter, saw the boy, and decided to adopt him. Mr. and Mrs. Walker left yesterday afternoon on the Twentieth Century Limited for their home at Northport, N. Y. The baby, who will be named James J. Walker II., will follow them in a week or ten days in care of a nurse from the Cradle.

PROMISED LAND OF HARLEM HOT BUT NUTRITIOUS

Kingston, N. Y., July 9.—Special.]—Chanting, stamping, and singing in the Catskill hills testified today to the fervency with which Father Divine, Harlem Negro "messiah" is welding together his recently sundered heavenly forces.

Until early this morning, in a room which teemed with humidity and drenched humanity, the baldish Negro preacher tirelessly led banquet after banquet at which he called upon the faithful to "harmonize harmoniously for the life ever after."

What was scheduled originally to be an Olympics festival, with races and sports, fizzled out in a few tennis and cricket games and foot races.

On every winding road a rollicking business went on in refreshments. Normally nickel sodas sold for three cents. For fifteen cents you could buy an excellent meal, consisting of fried chicken or bologna, kale, macaroni and iced tea.

The certificate above, differently numbered, appears each day, except Sunday. 12 Mark Twain Certificates, each differently numbered, qualify the holder to receive a set of two volumes of "The Complete Works of Mark Twain" (in twenty-four volumes) in accordance with the terms of the Chicago Tribune's Good-Will Offer.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Variety Injects Spice Into This Trio of Novels

One Is an Unusual Story of Plantation Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THREE novels—one about a Louisiana plantation, one about a group of passengers on the Arlberg-Orient Express from London to Athens, the third about a man born in a Texas town and never leaving it except to go to war—are offered this week.

Author Saxon Knows His Native Louisiana.

"Children of Strangers," by Lyle Saxon. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50.] Published Tuesday.

Lyle Saxon knows more about his native Louisiana than any man living. He is a sort of totem pole in New Orleans around which native and visiting authors and artists gather. He has written memorable factual books, "Fabulous New Orleans" and "Lafitte the Pirate." And now he has written his first novel, and it should be the first of many.

Lyle Saxon.

Mr. Saxon gets the "feel" of the plantation life, and in this book he has material which is unique. There have been novels about mulattoes too white to be black, too black to be white. There have been tales of a Negro woman's love for a white man. There have been tales of the life of Negroes on a plantation. But there has never been a tale just like this story of a group of proud, custom-bound French mulattoes, who speak French, will not eat with Negroes, are ardent Catholics, marry only among themselves, and are a part of the plantation while still holding their land as their own.

"Children of Strangers" is the story of the whole plantation, the white folks, the Negroes, and the mulattoes, but mostly of one girl, almost white, of her passionate love for a white man, who proved to be a bank robber and was shot down in his own blood, betrayed by the mulatto boy who hoped to, and later did, marry her. It is also the story of her white child and her eventual tragic fate.

"Children of Strangers" has color, the delicate aroma of an old potpourri, and atmosphere.

Here's a Story About 13 Persons on a Train.

"Victoria 4:50," by Cecil Roberts. [Macmillan, $2.50.] Published last Thursday.

Among those taking the Arlberg-Orient Express, leaving Victoria station, London, at 4:30, are twelve persons unknown to each other. At Chaumont, with the mail-van from Paris, a thirteenth comes into the tale. Mr. Roberts tells the life stories of those thirteen ships that pass in the night, prefacing them with the story of James Brown, porter at Victoria.

The greatest musical conductor in the world, a Viennese, has his whole life pattern enlarged by the birth of a baby on the train; two English honeymooners are oblivious to the drama which goes on about them; the child king of Siavonia is whisked with his pet rabbit from a happy holiday with an English playmate into the intrigues of a country that has just been shaken by the bomb which blew his father to bits; a Greek chef is hurrying home to marry the girl he loves and start a restaurant in Athens; a novelist is taking a journey, groping for a plot; the motion picture hero of Germany, ousted by the Nazis on account of his Jewish blood, is going to Vienna, hoping for a job after months of sickening idleness; a Catholic nun—an Englishwoman of great charm and culture—is going back to her orphanage in Transylvania to die; a poor downtrodden little bachelor finds gayety and a new life when he runs away from his greedy relatives; a Turk, highly esteemed in London, with a devoted French wife and three delightful children, is hastening on his annual visit to his harem; a general in the former Imperial Russian army is on his way to be a chauffeur to two rich old ladies; a retired doctor is setting out in search of his nephew mysteriously living somewhere in Switzerland, and when the mail-van is attached, a little peasant girl has stowed herself away, desperately trying to get back to her native Feldkirch before her baby is born.

What happens on the journey and what each one finds at the end of it is a melange of tragedy and comedy—the last half of the book.

"The Life of Riley" Is an Ironic Tale.

"The Life of Riley," by Harvey Fergusson. [Knopf, $2.] Published last Friday.

Harvey Fergusson, whose best known fiction is "Followers of the Sun," a trilogy of novels of the southwest, has written another novel about Texas in "The Life of Riley."

The title is an ironic pun on the name of the hero, Morgan Riley, son of a school teacher with the blue blood of the south in her fragile veins, and the town's best known saloon keeper.

Young Morgan inherited only "The Lucky Spot," by that time merely a pool parlor and cigar store, and a way with women. An unusually large part of the novel seems to be concerned with that way. Riley's amours are numerous, and ephemeral. His marriage is no bulwark against them, and his months overseas complete his naturally innate disillusionment. So the title is, as one can see, ironic.

Book Views in Brief

A Fascinating Account of Exploring in Wilds.

"The Land That Time Forgot," by Michael J. Leahy and Maurice Crane. [Funk & Wagnalls, $3.]

Mick Leahy was driving a truck for his brother in Queensland when news of the Edie creek gold strike arrived. Mick left the truck by a roadside and headed for the New Guinea gold fields, green as the bush but filled with enthusiasm.

This adventurous Irish-Australian didn't strike it rich. But his experience gave Leahy the incurable prospector's fever and a desire to explore new country.

The territory he was the first white man to explore is the vast interior of New Guinea which the maps called unexplored. Leahy found tribes of wild stone age Indians, still in the culture of stone axes. But these primitive savages, many of them cannibals whom Leahy had to fight, were expert landscape artists and laid out their fields in civilized designs.

Mick Leahy doesn't talk with heroics. He tells of the dangers and hardships and disasters of his exciting prospector's life with reserve, but they make a fascinating tale.

Vermont Is Publicized in These Four Books.

"A Vermont Boyhood," by Thomas E. Ripley. [Appleton-Century, $1.50.]

"Let Me Show You Vermont," by Charles E. Crane. [Knopf, $3.]

"A Home in the Country," by Frederic F. Van de Water. [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.]

"And So Goes Vermont," edited by Vrest Orton. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]

Vermont is coming into its own in publicity, as these books testify. The first is a delightful, whimsical picture of a Vermont family in the 19th century. Mr. Ripley paints a scene colored with charm and humor—a scene of dignity in a New England household, where security, honor, and intellect are as much taken for granted as maple syrup and hot cakes.

He writes not only of the amusing and interesting incidents of his own childhood but also of the lives of some of his ancestors as he found them recorded in diaries and letters. His home was Rutland, and his family one of its bulwarks.

"Let Me Show You Vermont" is a handbook of information about the Green Mountain state. It contains all the useful data until now unavailable in compact book form. The book has a foreword by Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

A sweet story of two people's hunt for the dream house so many of us want and never find is told in "A Home in the Country."

"After a while," says the author, "Althea and I grew so poor that we could afford a place in the country." But where?

These Manhattanites searched New England before they finally came to rest in Vermont on a 180 acre farm. The book tells of their adventures and of the rehabilitation of the old house, of the dogs that lived there with them, and of the peace and serenity that decended like a mantle.

"And So Goes Vermont" is a picture book of 200 photographs of this picturesque state, guaranteed to give you a fine attack of nostalgia if you have ever been there, and to make you long to go if you haven't. Besides valley and mountain scenes there are pictures of the lovely old elm shaded villages, and of the people themselves.

Biography of Marconi Is Achievement Story.

"Marconi: The Man and His Wireless," by Orrin E. Dunlap Jr. [Macmillan, $2.50].

Senatore Marconi, whose work in wireless telegraphy made radio possible today, at the age of 63, spends most of his time aboard his floating laboratory, the yacht Electra, still experimenting after contributing to electrical science for more than forty years.

The highest compliment ever paid the wizard was Edison's laconic comment when Marconi announced that the first transoceanic wireless signal had been heard by him at St. John's, Newfoundland, at noon on Dec. 12, 1901, more than 1,800 miles from the English station which transmitted it. While others scoffed, or shook doubting heads, Edison said, "If Marconi says it's true, it's true."

Behind this supreme feat lay years of lesser triumphs in hurling electric impulses through space without the benefit of wires, as told in this biography. Marconi began experimenting in the Italian Alps in the summer of 1894, when he was 20, after reading of the work in radiating electromagnetic waves performed by the scientist, Hertz, who had just died. He has never ceased perfecting and enormously expanding Hertz's theory.

Sir Richard Burton's Biography Intriguing.

"Burton of Arabia," by Seton Dearden. [McBride, $3.]

Rich entertainment will reward the reader of this capital biography. Sir Richard Burton is known to most of this generation only as translator of "The Arabian Nights"; in these pages he also is given his rightful position as one of the foremost adventurers of his time. It was for his explorations—not his oriental scholarship—that Victoria knighted him.

Even Lawrence's fascinating exploits in Arabia are no more engrossing than Burton's dangerous journey to Mecca disguised as a pilgrim. Hardly less spectacular was his entrance into Harrar, the forbidden city of Abyssinia, and the vast explorations which revealed the source of the Nile.

Burton came to America, paid an inquisitive visit to Brigham Young and the Mormon fountainhead at Salt Lake City, then returned to England, resigned from the army and entered the consular service. He died at Trieste, his last post, attended by the faithful Isabel, Lady Burton, who promptly committed an immense literary sin by burning the diaries he had kept for 40 years, as well as many manuscripts. But he left almost 50 published works, as well as the 15 volume translation for which he is now most famed.

The Latest Adventure of Bulldog Drummond.

"Challenge," by H. C. McNeile. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.]

This is the latest adventure of Bulldog Drummond, and none of H. C. McNeile's followers can complain that his hero disappoints. All the elements of romantic melodrama are here—murders, mysterious and beautiful ladies, dangerous spies, and a plot to destroy England. Drummond, equally at home in deeds of daring or polite dinner conversation, triumphs over all.

Thrills Abound in These New Mystery Tales

Variety Offered in Some Recent Selections.

"A Case for Three Detectives," by Leo Bruce [Stokes, $2].

LEO BRUCE'S "A Case for Three Detectives" is an extremely clever mystery thriller that provides not one but three solutions. The setting is an English country house, where are gathered a few friends of Dr. Thurston and his wife. With no warning of impending horror Mrs. Thurston suddenly is found murdered in her room.

Two brilliant sleuths are called in, Lord Simon and Amer Picon, satires of popular detective heroes done by the author with tongue in cheek. So is another follower of clews, Msgr. Smith. Sergt. Beef, an amusing member of the local constabulary, seems merely a small scow bobbing about in the wake of these giant steamships, but it is the scow that makes port, after all.

A Thrilling Volume of Real Life Spy Stories.

"The Story of the Secret Service," by Richard Wilmer Rowan. [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50.]

More thrilling than the most exciting of fictional spy stories is this fascinating volume of true tales of espionage covering 33 centuries.

Richard Rowan shows that women have stood the grueling test of espionage service as well as men. There can be no more daring, selfless, and heroic conduct than that of the two Belgian girls who pitted their lives against the Germans in Belgium, gathering valuable information and delivering it to the allies in the world war.

Equally intelligent, shrewd and unceasing were the activities of the mysterious German woman, known only as "Fräulein Doktor," who conducted the most rigid spy school of them all, in Antwerp, in a neutral country.

But spies are nothing new. Mr. Rowan shows that even in Roman days there was a secret service.

Blind Detective Hero in Unusual Thriller.

"The Last Express," by Baynard Kendrick. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.]

This Crime club book is sure to fascinate mystery novel fans, for it has unusual situations, lots of excitement and suspense, and an extraordinary detective, Capt. Duncan Maclain, to hold your interest. Maclain is blind, but, thanks to his Seeing Eye dog, his sharp wits, and his grim determination to master all obstacles, he "sees" better than a lot of men who have nothing the matter with their vision.

The plot centers around the violent death of a young assistant district attorney. Evelyn Zarinka, his beautiful sister, appeals to Maclain to help her. It is complicated by the death of a night club girl, her murder implicating Charles Hartshorn, the fiancé of Evelyn.

Besides the suspense of the unraveling of the tangled skein of crime the reader is always intrigued by the methods with which the blind detective works.

Ex-Premier Blum Offers His Views About 'Marriage'

"Marriage," by Leon Blum. [Lippincott, $2.50.] Published last Wednesday.

Thirty years ago Leon Blum, former premier of France, published a book on "Marriage" which was something of a bombshell, but which, like most of his literary efforts, was completely overshadowed by his subsequent political brilliance.

Since M. Blum succeeded to the premiership more than twenty editions of the book have been published in France, and an English translation won praise from London critics. It has just come to this country.

M. Blum's major premise is a very unconventional one, but his method of arguing it is as much like a legal hearing as any book could well be. It is written with the cold skill of a legal brief, pointed rather than enlivened by the stories of actual cases which he cites.

His premise is this: Both men and women have two distinct phases of love-life, an early, polygamous phase, a later, monogamous one, which correspond, roughly, to the 'teens and early twenties and to later years. Marriage should be entered into only after the polygamous stage has passed, he declares, but love should be allowed complete fulfilment for both sexes during the polygamous period, for marriage is a serious matter and deserves every chance for success.

M. Blum argues with deep conviction, and his last words are: "One thing I can claim. It is that I thought about this book, and that I have written it in all good faith."

HITLER LETS HIS PEOPLE SEE HIM LIKE KING OF OLD

4,000 Toil Up Hillside to Cheer Him at Home.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 9.—Like a king of olden times who allowed his subjects to step up and petition him when he stood under a historical "tree of justice," Reichsfuehrer Adolph Hitler today threw open the gates of his summer home and, standing on the terrace of his white house, presented himself to those eager to see him.

Today's reception was the first of a series which will be given by the fuehrer, whose summer home is near the village of Berchtesgaden. It began at 3 p. m., and turned into a great ovation for the Nazi chieftain.

Women Toil Up Hillside.

From early morning nearly 4,000 Nazis—mostly women—toiled up the steep hillside from the village to the home, formerly an unpretentious chalet, but now an impressive residence. At its gates they waited patiently until members of Hitler's black uniformed bodyguard threw open the gates and let them enter the grounds of the estate. Hitler then stepped out onto the terrace to be greeted by cheers.

He thanked them for the ovation and scanned the crowd for familiar faces. Then he stepped back into the house.

Guards March Guests Out.

The bodyguard promptly marshaled the visitors, lining them in marching formation, and escorted them from the grounds, ending the reception. No petition was presented today.

When Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, reichsminister of propaganda, arrives this week-end, he will be accompanied by his two little daughters, who are among the fuehrer's favorites.

It is expected, however, that Hitler will have little time for recreation, since Germany is watching eagerly the developments in the Spanish civil war and the international difficulties growing out of neutrality efforts.

BRITAIN IS GIVEN U. S. VIEWS ON PALESTINE PLAN

Bingham Silent About Advice on Partition.

LONDON, July 9.—(AP)—The United States government's views on the British plan to partition Palestine were presented to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden by Ambassador Robert W. Bingham today.

Leaving the foreign office the ambassador declined to disclose the American attitude, but admitted he had discussed the Palestine situation with Eden at some length and had left a document for the British government's consideration.

[By an agreement of 1924 Britain undertook not to alter the status of her mandate over Palestine without consultation with the United States.]

Jews and Arabs Fight Plan.

JERUSALEM, July 9.—(AP)—Both Jews and Arabs, although disagreeing among themselves, plunged tonight into the work of organizing opposition to Great Britain's plan to partition Palestine. British soldiery preserved order.

The Jewish Labor party met to try to form a united front against the report of the British royal commission that proposed cleaving the holy land into a Jewish state, an Arab state, and a British mandated territory.

The Labor party polled more than 60 per cent of the Zionist vote in the congress elections this week, evidence of its sway over the Jewish population.

The staunchest opposition within the party to the partition plan came from the communal agricultural groups which vehemently demanded that the whole thing be scuttled.

Factional Moslem Support.

The Arab higher committee meanwhile also took a stand opposed to the plan except for the dissenting Nasha Shibi group which is supported by the Emir Abdullah of neighboring Transjordania.

Most Arabs have contended that creation of an Arab state adjacent to Transjordania would put it in danger of being submerged by other Arab nations to the east. The Nasha Shibi group favors the plan for the same reason.

The committee telegraphed King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia and the imam of Yemen, asking for guidance. They did not, however, appeal to the Emir Abdullah of Transjordania or his nephew, the ghazi of Iraq.

It pointed out that King Ibn Saud and the imam of Yemen have helped the holy land's Arabs before—in calling off the recent six months' general strike—and it was seeking their counsel again now when it considered Great Britain has fallen down in its obligations toward the Arabs.

KIDNAPED AND ROBBED OF $2,700.

CHINESE PUT UP STUBBORN FRONT IN CLASH PARLEY

Deny Blame for Battle; Jap Army Prepares.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 10 [Saturday].—Because China flatly refused to be held responsible for the clash of Japanese and Chinese troops which began Wednesday near Peiping on the Yungting river, the effort to settle the incident was deadlocked early today. Official statements of the two governments even conflicted on the terms of yesterday's truce which halted—or at least quieted—hostilities.

All Japanese military forces on the continent were ordered today to prepare for any emergency, according to reports here from Tokio, which said also that one division at home had received warning orders to be ready to embark for North China.

An official Chinese news agency dispatch from Peiping asserted that Japanese troops had bombarded and stormed Wanpinghsien, a town west of the Fengtai junction, which the Nipponese army took over last year. Wanpinghsien.

Lukowkiao, where the fighting occurred, lies about ten miles west of Peiping, whose mayor, Gen. Chin Tehchun, announced that orders had been issued to defend Lukowkiao at all hazards. During the thirty hour fight, which centered on the nearby Marco Polo bridge and which involved 3,000 men, 500 Chinese locked themselves within the town's walls. Ten of the invaders were killed and twenty-two wounded.

Under the terms of armistice, according to the Japanese, all soldiers were to withdraw from Lukowkiao; according to the Chinese, the force was to be reduced from 1,000 to 500—with which condition Gen. Chin said they had complied.

ENGLISH AIR BOAT REACHES LONG ISLAND; IT'S MET BY OFFICIALS

Port Washington, N. Y., July 9.—(AP)—Imperial Airways' silver winged flying boat Caledonia dropped into the waters of Long Island sound off Port Washington late today to end the first westward trans-Atlantic crossing of a commercial seaplane.

Three members of the interdepartmental committee on international civil aviation, Harllee Branch, second assistant postmaster general; Stephen F. Gibbons, assistant secretary of the treasury, and Richard Southgate of the United States department of state, flew here from Washington to extend greetings. Sir Gerald Campbell, consul general for Great Britain, and Lady Campbell; T. F. McCauley, consul general of the Irish Free State, and Air Commodore T. E. Howe, air attaché of the British embassy in Washington, also met Capt. Wilcockson.

SHOCKED CHURCH GROUP SILENT ON ACTRESS' ATTACK

LONDON, July 9.—(AP)—Members of the Oxford group declined "comment of any sort" today on a critical speech by their Thursday luncheon guest, the actress Margaret Rawlings.

Miss Rawlings, introduced by Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the religious movement, addressed the luncheon after several members had spoken in line with what they term "sharing," or giving public testimonials to aid in ridding themselves of inhibitions and fears.

The actress, daughter of an Anglican clergyman, asserted she considered "such public confessions" to be "exhibitionism as shocking in the Victorian sense, as indecent and as indelicate, as if some one were to take off all his clothes in Piccadilly Circus." She insisted she was not "stunting," and said "some one blundered in asking me my views."

BOY DROWNS AS TIMBER FLOATS OUT INTO LAKE

Richard O'Brien, 10 years old, 3444 Janssen avenue, was drowned last night at the Wilson avenue beach when he was unable to cling longer to a piece of timber which had carried him and a companion, Edward Groya, also 10, of 1457 Cornelia avenue, into deep water. The Groya boy held on until his screams brought a life guard. The O'Brien boy's parents were on the beach.

A Y. M. C. A. outing for 100 girls at Camp Rotary, near Rockford, Ill., ended in death yesterday for Jean Soderberg, 8 years old, 421 South Greenwood avenue, Park Ridge, who drowned swimming in the camp pool.

The body of an unidentified man, about 50 years old and weighing 200 pounds, who was drowned several months ago, was recovered yesterday from the lake at Center street.

The bodies of Mrs. Bernice Nordtvedt, 39 years old, and her daughter, Joyce, 17, drowned Thursday near Cassopolis, Mich., were being returned to Chicago last night.

$1,200 Gems Stolen from Apartment of E. W. Sims

Mrs. Charlotte Sims, wife of Edwin W. Sims, former United States district attorney, reported to the Chicago avenue police yesterday that jewelry valued at $1,200 and a sable scarf worth $475 had been stolen from her apartment at 112 East Bellevue place on Thursday.

C. I. O. PASSES ITS PEAK.

On successive days this week two well informed observers have expressed the opinion that the C. I. O. has passed the peak of its development. Prof. Raleigh W. Stone of the University of Chicago in a lecture at the university on Wednesday called the C. I. O. a waning movement, and attributed its decline to the erroneous assumption on which it rested, that we have a separate and distinct working class, thinking in terms of a class interest.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement issued on Thursday declared flatly that the steel strike, C. I. O.'s first major test, had been definitely lost. C. I. O. was destined to fail, said Mr. Green, because of the methods and policies pursued. He continued: "The violation of agreements, the seizure of public property, violence, riots, and uprisings can have no place in the social, economic, and industrial life of America. No union of workers who resort to the use of such methods can succeed."

Prof. Stone's analysis emphasizes the similarity of C. I. O. and I. W. W. Both made their appeal upon a pretended clash of interest between employer and employed. The basic thought of the I. W. W. was that "the working class and the employing class have nothing in common." The underlying assumption of C. I. O. was that, in Prof. Stone's words, "the workman expects that he will always remain a workman, and that his children will keep the same status." Alike in theory, the two were also alike in method. No organization except I. W. W. ever used massed picketing as it has been employed by C. I. O.

Like I. W. W. in theory and practice, C. I. O. is apparently to follow it in results. Like Bill Haywood, John Lewis is able to get a great following during his strikes. But when the I. W. W. strikes were over heads cooled and the membership in the radical union was forgotten. An authority has credited the I. W. W. with a membership of 100,000 in 1912, but by the next year its active cards had dwindled to a few thousand. C. I. O. may retain a goodly share of the members who were signed up in the course of strike activities, but if it does it will have to abandon the tactics of I. W. W.

Prof. Stone has pointed out a number of false assumptions in the C. I. O. theory. One which he did not mention is the assumption that by signing up members in a quick membership drive a basis is laid for collective bargaining. In a successful collective bargaining arrangement the will of the majority of the employés as represented by their agents must be imposed upon the minority. That means that a union must be able to maintain a discipline over its members so that its engagements are carried out.

Labor organizations quickly formed without a period of preparation [education, Gompers called it] are not able to provide that discipline.

The repeated strikes in the automobile factories, in violation of agreements, show conclusively that the workers were not prepared for the part which they must play in a collective bargaining scheme. Not alone employers but workmen grow impatient with unwaranted interruptions of their work. Prof. Stone has said that if C. I. O. is to succeed it will have to embrace the philosophy of the A. F. of L. If it is to succeed it will also have to adopt not only the philosophy but the methods of the A. F. of L.

NO EXPORT OF HELIUM.

A proposal to permit the export of helium gas, of which the United States is fortunate enough to have a virtual monopoly, was a natural result of the tragic loss of the German zeppelin, Hindenburg. The idea was of course favored by the zeppelin interests and appealed to its American advocates on humanitarian grounds. From the viewpoint of international communication and increased safety of air travel the suggestion was plausible, and some attention was given it in congress, though no impulsive action was taken.

We trust the proposal will be dropped. It is of prime importance that the helium monopoly be retained in the United States government. It constitutes an important factor in national defense. With the exclusive use of helium our lighter-than-air craft would possess a decisive advantage over any foreign craft using hydrogen or other inflammable gas. Their military use would be more extensive than the use of any similar enemy aircraft and they could proceed even to the battle line with far more safety. The American craft could destroy any enemy craft using inflammable gas and deal much more efficiently even with airplanes.

Our supplies of helium are fortunately considerable, but, as Mr. H. A. Laird has pointed out in a recent discussion in the Graphic Section, if helium exports were permitted there would be no practical way of checking the quantity used for commercial purposes and therefore of determining the volume that would be stored abroad for war purposes. We have, in short, a special resource in defense equipment and should strictly protect it for that purpose.

While military considerations are controling, there are also commercial aspects. If lighter-than-air transports utilizing helium are of value to commerce, America should not only supply the gas but should build and operate the airships. Foreign nations practically monopolize waterborne trafic through low cost boat construction and cheap operation. The advantage is further enhanced by direct government subsidies. If nature has given America a distinct advantage over the water it should not be thrown away.

IMPLICATIONS OF THE COURT PLAN.

Tactics of the supporters of the substitute court packing bill are exposed in the opening debate. When the majority report of the judiciary committee on the original bill was published nothing was heard from the minority. None has since appeared. No doubt discretion was in this instance the better part of valor, but if there were arguments for the original court packing bill which its supporters on the judiciary committee were willing to submit to the senate and to the people, that was the time to submit them. The people had a right to hear them.

In place of this a substitute bill is offered. But it does not meet the objections so forcefully made in the unanswered and unanswerable report of the majority of the committee. It is natural, therefore, that the proponents of the new measure prefer to make their appeal not on the strength of their measure, whatever it is, but on partisanship and loyalty to the President.

Perhaps this is for the moment good politics. But it takes no account of the duty of congress to the nation. For it is plain beyond argument that if the form of their government is to be altered without reference to the people the least the advocates of this transformation owe to the people is to be informed on what grounds and for what reasons the transformation is to be made.

This line of procedure is characteristic of the effort to destroy the independence of the courts. It is but another step toward the vesting of all power in the executive.

And this transformation is to be accomplished by a congress subservient to the executive. If it should be accomplished, what assurance have we that in due time the power of the central executive will be such that it will make little difference to the people whether our chief magistrate be called a fuehrer, a duce, or a chief commissar? He will be the government of the United States. If the independence of the courts is abolished and the authority and power of the executive branch of government continually expanded as they have been expanded and as it has been attempted to expand it to dominate the legislative, the form of government which we have cherished will cease to be.

Devotion to Mr. Roosevelt should not obscure this issue. The rewards he has bestowed and can bestow upon those who obey his will are no compensation to the nation for the surrender of its liberties to his exclusive keeping. The benefits which have flowed or are alleged to have flowed from his administration are no adequate exchange for the constitutional safeguards an all powerful executive seldom, if ever, tolerates.

The character of the present incumbent of the presidency is irrelevant in this issue. Neither devotion to him nor opposition to him is relevant. The issue is our form of government; shall it be a government of limited powers, of checks and balances, or a government of the executive? If we are to retain the former, there must be independent courts to protect and maintain it.

MAE DID NOT GO WEST.

Mae West, the perennial Hollywood teammate in Frankie and Johnnie, who is not by anybody's observation a spinster in spirit, admits that, although she has been married for twenty-five years to an in-and-out husband, she is still so aloof from the Hollywood tradition that she has never had what the movie center would know as a boy friend.

Miss Mae West's art is so warm that a great many people have thought that if they did not see it it would do them no harm. Nevertheless Miss West tells an open eared world that as a matron she has dwelt consistently in an ivory tower.

Hollywood, we think, should get the advantage of this remarkable episode of the Lady Galahad who conformed with conventionality by getting married but resisted every Hollywood idea of propriety by not seeking a divorce and a new marriage every three months. Variation in all things is needed for the spice which keeps all beef from tasting the same, not meaning that Miss West belongs to the beef trust, because it is understood that when she is buxom it is not the work of nature but that of her skilful upholsterers.

Hollywood has tried many eccentricities and most of the persons so enterprising seem to have enjoyed it. A super-eccentricity can always find its place in a dramatic scene and so the world will welcome the dangerous siren who in her cloistered life has avoided all knowledge of the less dangerous male.

Curves, apparently, if properly brought up in the right way of living, can sidestep cupidity.

MARRIAGE LAWS.

[Indianapolis News.]

One of the things public officials of Indiana may as well realize is that neighboring states, where marriage laws have been strengthened, expect similar action in this state. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE recently pointed to Indiana's lax marriage laws, its apparent invitation to elopers, and its disposition to make itself the dumping ground for undesirables who cannot comply with the stronger legislation that has been enacted to raise public health standards.

Michigan for several years has required an interval between the time of application for a marriage license and the date of its issuance. Illinois has a new law, effective July 1, requiring applicants for marriage licenses to present certificates from reputable physicians, showing that they have no venereal disease. Legislation of like character has been enacted in Wisconsin.

The forward steps taken by our neighboring states rebuke again Indiana's refusal to act. One reason is the lobby of county clerks, many of whom profit from the sale of unauthorized certificates when they issue marriage licenses. If it were not for this practice, which the legislature has declined to prohibit, probably no county clerk would be willing to keep his office open continually. Indiana's marriage mills have become a public scandal, and this evident frenzy to make money out of marriage, coupled with the refusal to enforce whatever regulatory laws the state has, makes it possible for residents of neighboring states to flout their own marriage laws. Bills to remedy this situation were introduced at the 1937 session of the legislature, but so much opposition was shown by persons who are commercializing the marriage business that the proposals did not even come to a vote.

WE WAIVE OUR HEAT.

Tradition dies hard in the newspaper business. One of the legends is that summer and winter should be dramatized. Thus, if the temperature in Chicago crosses 88, it is an inviolable rule in some print producing shops that there must be mention of "50 Dead in Heat Wave." The figure will, of course, grow until the saving lake breeze arrives. Every thinking person knows that people who suffer not at all in 80 degrees do not die in squads because the temperature (mercury is more trite and therefore better) rises eight or ten degrees. But summer must be a villain painted in black ink.

STARVED ROCK AT NIGHT.

This rocky promontory, steeply reared,
Stands like a sentinel of a brave past;
But quiet are its thronging ghosts, at last,
And all the sudden dangers that they feared—
The lurking terrors that each rock and tree
Hid from the cautious watcher—all are fled;
Gone, when the final campfire burned to red
And dying ash, all ancient enmity.
Now swiftly flows the river at its base;
The tall trees reach up to the arching sky,
Catching within their branches every sigh
Of every wind that passes o'er this place;
Hushed is the world—no bitter vision mars
The ceaseless march of the eternal stars.

SUPPORTING SUBURBIA.

You may remember me. I am he who asked help in the sol-disant spring when I was seeking the ideal suburb. And indeed I found what I I thought was the right one. It is full of trees. The lawns are green and are bordered by trimmed hedges. The streets are wide and have so little trafic that the dogs sleep on the asphalt. And I have a home that cost only 50 per cent more than I planned to pay. . . . But I am now realizing how much wiser are those who let apartment landlords worry about such mundane things as heat, janitors, etc. My basement is full of meters, water, gas, and electricity—and none of them ever takes a rest. I pay a fee to the fellow who hauls away the garbage. If I want to use the parks I dig down for a season ticket. The trees all have some sort of disease that makes you spend $11 per tree for what they call sealing. The special assessments for the streets the dogs sleep on are magnificent in their effrontery. . . . Please guess what suburb I am in. Hoping you are no diff.

TRAINING WILL CONQUER BEDWETTING.

BEDWETTING is a comfort destroying habit. As a rule it signifies that the child's training has failed. In the main the condition is purely functional—that is, no organic cause can be discovered. In a few instances, however, some irritation within the bladder or along the external canal may be found.

For the most part these little patients are alert, bright, and highly intelligent. They may, however, be somewhat more nervous than the nonbedwetters, and if so the tendency will usually be an inherited one. In fact both parents may give a history identical with that of the son or daughter. Mental characteristics—jealousy or a feeling of inferiority—may play a part. Now and then the symptom is a subconscious demand for more attention, should the young one feel neglected or be convinced that he is being deprived of his proper share of mother love. Certain it is that emotional tension counts for much.

After all, the important question is, how can the trouble be prevented? Or—if it exists—how can it be cured? To begin with, stated periods for emptying the bladder should be set just as soon as the infant can sit up—from 8 to 12 months of age. If an opportunity is offered—prior to each feeding—regular habits of bowel and bladder response can be established. Few youngsters reared under this régime will have an "accident" during the hours of slumber.

If there are frequent "spill overs," however, a more drastic plan may be required. Little or no fluid is allowed after 4 p. m. About four hours later—whether the child is asleep or not—he is taken to the toilet, where he remains until the bladder contracts. Occasionally the sound of running water will help start a reflex.

Many parents have observed that if the child spends an exciting evening, stays up later than usual, or goes to bed profoundly fatigued, there is more likelihood of trouble. Prevention lies then in restricting liquids somewhat and in avoiding nervous strains, particularly during the evening.

It is a good deal of a sacrifice, but it is helpful, to set the alarm clock somewhere between midnight and 2 a. m., when the boy or girl is again taken to the bathroom. In order that the lesson may be impressed upon the child's consciousness he must be thoroughly awake.

From the standpoint of drugs, belladonna is the most useful, and physicians often prescribe this remedy to its full effect. Most children can take this without difficulty, but sometimes there will be found one with whom the remedy must be used with great caution.

As the child grows older the desirability of mastering the condition can be impressed upon him without making him feel that he is abnormal or queer in the slightest degree. Encouragement is called for and rewards may be offered. The worst possible procedure is scolding or punishment.

That the victim can help materially is borne out by the fact that when he goes to a summer camp the phenomenon often disappears as if by magic. The explanation is that pride is aroused and he does not wish to be disgraced before his tentmates.

From the age of 6 or 7 to that of 15 or 16 youngsters may be talked to and the whole matter conquered by securing their interest. A recent report by McGregor, in the British Medical Journal, details the successful management of 70 cases of bedwetting in the 4 to 15 year age group. Each patient was given a calendar diary which he was required to keep. If a dry night was passed that fact was recorded.

One case—a 9 year old girl—had been subjected to incessant scolding at home. So fearful had she become that she was persuaded with difficulty to discuss the matter with the family physician. Cure was effected by employing at first an alarm clock which aroused the girl every two hours during the night. The calendar was then tried without the alarm. During the first week there were five dry nights and complete relief followed in three months.

THYROID SYMPTOMS.

Mrs. W. writes: Eight years ago I was operated on for cyst of the thyroid gland and, although my health has improved, some of the old symptoms still persist. Occasionally I have palpitation, spells of sweating, can't stand the heat, and—recently—fainting spells. During the last six months I have lost weight. A physician tells me my heart, lungs, and blood pressure are all right and thinks my trouble is nerves.

1. Could the symptoms mentioned be caused by thyroid trouble?
2. Would being overtired or nervous cause the same symptoms?
3. Would cold water baths help?
4. Should I be on a diet? What about coffee?

REPLY.

1. Yes, and by the menopause as well.
2. Possibly.
3. No.
4. Your diet should consist of nutritious, easily digested foods. The caffein contained in coffee is undesirable.

INSOMNIA.

D. S. writes: I can't sleep at night. I have tried counting sheep and other methods of concentration on dull subjects. The neighbors are noisy and keep bright lights and radios on until quite late. I do not like to use sleeping tablets.

REPLY.

It is quite possible that your inability to sleep may be due to your inconsiderate neighbors. If the disturbances continue, why not move? Do not take sleeping tablets unless they are prescribed by your physician.

If the health is excellent, insomnia may be due to any one of a number of causes, such as some change in the routine of the day or the evening; exposure to undue excitement or bad air; too many bedclothes; going to bed on too full a stomach; drinking strong tea or coffee too late in the day; too much tobacco. A cup of hot milk may help.

FLUOROSCOPE.

R. A. C. writes: Does a fluoroscope show as much as an X-ray? In heart and lung conditions which is better?

REPLY.

A fluoroscope is more satisfactory in determining the condition of the heart and lungs than an X-ray because it shows the parts in motion, whereas the X-ray merely takes a photograph at a given moment. Furthermore, the region may be studied for quite some time.

THE ONE THAT GOT AWAY

From Across the Sea

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil.—A gun battle in which forty-eight Brazilian gold washers led by Appolonio Bezerra Lima, a merchant, defeated 200 native colored men officered by a few white men was described in dispatches from Belem, state of Para, in northern Brazil.

The incident, it is asserted, involved an open violation of Brazil's territory along the French Guiana frontier by French outlaws, adventurers, and escaped convicts. It took place in the gold settlements located on the Upper Gassipore river, a section of Para which is but sparsely policed. As a result of the shooting, in which several colored men were killed and wounded, troops from Belem have been hurried to the border line in the fear that a stronger revenge raid may be made by escaped convicts who live in the wilderness along the frontier and apparently are well supplied with ammunition.

Fernand Odel, a Frenchman, led the invasion of the gold washers' settlement, dispatches said. The attackers attempted to drive the Brazilians from their property, declaring they intended to establish in that portion of Brazil a communist settlement, it is reported.

The Brazilians defeated the invaders after an hour's battle. The bulk of the attackers ran away across the border into French Guiana. Odel and Felinto Moraes, a white man, were captured. Odel was jailed at Belem. Thousands of rounds of ammunition and 134 rifles of French make were captured from the invaders.

According to Bezerra Lima, the invaders were organized into a soviet and the leaders bandied about their titles of "people's commissars."

Minor violations of law always have been common along the border, and trafic in contraband is carried on with almost as much safety as legal business. The gun battle, however, is considered serious.

PROBATE.

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Nine years ago my father died leaving two heirs, my mother and myself. His estate consisted only of a piece of real estate which he owned jointly with my mother. Our attorney advised my mother that it was unnecessary to probate his will. Since that time my mother has passed away and I am the only heir. The abstract for the property was brought down to date shortly before her death, the deed still being in their names jointly. I have been told that it will not be necessary to probate mother's will, but that there is a legal form or affidavit, which will not cost much, which I can sign and be able to give a clear title to the property should I sell it. I have asked two attorneys about this matter and each gives me only evasive answers. I am not in a financial position to probate the will unless it is absolutely necessary. Incidentally, I was of age at the time of my father's death. I. M. W.

Probate would be necessary in order to produce a technically merchantable title, but if the value is small and if a substantial time will elapse before the sale, then you might find a purchaser who would waive the requirement.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ESTATE DISTRIBUTION.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Part of an estate of a party who died a number of years ago is still awaiting distribution. Since the death of this party several of the original heirs also have died. These [original] heirs are survived by a number of sons and daughters. What I wish to know is whether the issue of the original heirs is entitled to that part of the inheritance which would have come into possession of the deceased heirs, in this instance sons and daughters of mothers who were original heirs, but since deceased. Or would the share of these deceased heirs come into possession of the surviving original heirs? C. L.

If the original estate involved no will, then the interests of the heirs in that estate would, on the death of the heirs, descend to their respective heirs.

If there was a will, the question whether the interest of the beneficiaries would be similarly inheritable would depend upon the wording of that will.

OBITUARY NOTICE.

Midlothian, Ill., July 8.—Notice is hereby given of the death of C. I. O., due to shock and overexertion. Funeral services will be held throughout the nation any time now. Chief mourners are John L. Lewis, Homer Martin, and a long list of communists such as Jack Stachel [C. I. O. director in Pennsylvania], John Brophy, Powers Hapgood, and William Z. Foster. Honorary pallbearers will be Franklin Delano Roosevelt, James A. Farley [head of the United States mails], and Govs. Davey, Murphy, and George H. Earle.

Services will be simple. Madam Frances Perkins will render "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground." The audience will stand, pledge allegiance to the American flag, and, as the benediction, will sing joyfully all four verses of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

MRS. PERRY NEWPORT.

IS CONGRESS A VALET?

Chicago, July 8.—A United States senator recently, in asking support for the compromise court packing measure, is reported to have said: "If this is defeated it will wreck the President."

Has the time come when we must give first consideration to the whim of a temporary President against the country and its cherished institutions? If one must be wrecked, let it be the President and not the country. To that senator I would say:

"Tell me, Mister, fair and square,
Were you elected to that chair
To do your best for Uncle Sam,
Or just be valet to a man?"

GEORGE C. LONGMAN.

MORE FORFOTTEN PEOPLE.

Chicago, July 9.—The letter entitled "The Forgotten People" sent in by Mrs. Ruth Henderson is a masterpiece, and I for one feel that it expresses the sentiments and feelings of all clear thinking, intelligent citizens who are vitally interested in their future and the future of the American form of government.

What has surprised me most has been the lack of expressions of this sort appearing in the Voice of the People. I daily encounter farsighted citizens like Mrs. Henderson who are wondering what the outcome of it all will be, and who no doubt are wondering when we as a nation "will wake up" to what is happening under this so-called "New Deal" of the Roosevelt administration. F. T.

WE SELDOM ARE EXPOSED TO HAND SHAKES.

New Albin, Ia., July 7.—We would like to shake your good right hand and pat you on the back for the two left-hand columns of the editorial page of THE TRIBUNE of July 7. Even Jim Farley's new book containing our chief executive's signature deserves the fate of the book mentioned at the bottom of column two.

Three cheers and a tiger for Vice President Garner and another for THE TRIBUNE. C. J. TRAVIS.

THE ALL-STAR GAME.

Chicago, July 7.—As I happen to be the person who first suggested the idea of an all-star game to Mr. Harridge, president of the American league, as a possible attraction at Soldiers' field during the Century of Progress—only to have it turned down by the World's Fair authorities—and then presented the idea to Mr. Burns of THE TRIBUNE sports staf, possibly I may be permitted to make a suggestion.

My original plan for this game was to have every team in each league represented in the game and limit each player to three innings of play, just as the pitchers are now. I thought then and I still think that such a plan would offer a better actual test of the two leagues, and I am not sure that it would not be even more interesting to the crowd. They would not only see the stars but they would really see both leagues in action. AN OLD TIME FAN.

BOYS BEING BOYS.

Oak Park, Ill., July 3.—It was with mingled feelings of amusement, disgust, and finally much regret that I read the account of the proceedings which took place in the house chamber of the legislature at Springfield as reported by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE recently. The firecracker episode, particularly, struck me as a grim reminder of "fiddling while Rome burns." Notwithstanding the fact that the drivers' license bill, a measure to save human life, and other important pieces of legislation were before them for serious consideration the "chosen representatives" of the people had to have their fun. The play boys must have their fill at the expense of human misery. When will the people of the state of Illinois rise in their wrath and realize that by getting rid of this type of politician, and then only, will they be able to better conditions? R. L. WETZEL.

COMPLAINS OF ARREST.

Chicago, July 6.—Recently, the writer and three others were driving south on Sheridan road one or two blocks south of Morse avenue when Officer R. O. Man, star 188, stopped us and said we drove through a red light at Morse avenue. Before the officer got out of his car ahead of us we had decided not to have any argument. We denied having driven through a red light and he handed the driver a ticket requesting him to send $3 to 810 city hall. The officer knew full well that it was much easier to mail a check than for four persons to go down to court and wait around to give their argument. RICHARD J. JACKER.

Show Portraits of Chicagoans for City Jubilee

BY JUDITH CASS.

INTERESTING from other standpoints as well as the artistic will be two exhibitions which are to open next Thursday at the Art institute. Portraits of prominent Chicagoans, loaned by their families, have been assembled for one of the exhibits. Theother will feature Chicago scenes, painted by Chicago artists.

The exhibitions, which have been timed to ward off the midsummer doldrums in the city's art center, have been arranged in connection with Chicago's charter jubilee, and will hang until Oct. 31.

Seen in the portrait exhibition will be the first Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Howard Linn and her sister, Miss Edith Blair; the late Charles Deering, Mrs. Francis Neilson, Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, and the late Mr. Hutchinson, Miss Frances McFadden, the late Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, for many years superintendent of schools, three of the Gustavus F. Swifts' four children, Miss Marie, Miss Jane, and Gustavus Swift Jr., and Dr. Frederick A. Stock.

The last portrait of the three young Swifts was done about seven years ago by Jacques Emil Blanche, French artist, when Marie Swift, the eldest of the trio, was in her early 'teens. The nearly three-quarter length portrait of Mrs. Linn was painted a few years ago by Glyn Philpot, British artist, and that of her sister was done by Giovanni Boldini, an Italian artist, who was fashionable in Paris during the first years of this century.

Neilson Portrait By James Shannon.

Mrs. Neilson's portrait was done by James Shannon, a Britisher, and Louis Betts did that of Mrs. Young. The portrait of Miss McFadden will be of especial interest to her friends and relatives here because it was painted by her uncle, Abram Poole, a former Chicagoan, who lives now in New York.

Gari Melchers painted Mr. Hutchinson, who for many years was president of the Art institute, and Elie Delauney painted Mrs. Hutchinson. John Singer Sargent painted Mr. Deering in Palm Beach clothes and straw hat against a colorful background at his Brickell Point home, in 1917, in Miami. The portrait of Mrs. Palmer is especially appealing. Anders Zorn, the Swedish artist, who was commissioner from Sweden to the Columbian exposition in 1893, painted her full length, in an exquisite ball gown, fragile and fresh as her own beauty that shines from the canvas. Mrs. Palmer was president of the board of lady managers of the exposition.

The aim of the exhibit, artistically speaking, is to show the various approaches of skilled portrait artists. And Mr. Poole's modern full length striking likeness of Miss McFadden is different indeed from Mr. Zorn's of Mrs. Palmer. The Chicago club is lending its Zorn portrait of Arthur Caton.

Mr. Betts' full length portrait of the late Martin A. Ryerson, who with Mr. Hutchinson was among the energetic founders of the institute, is another included in the exhibit. The Orchestral association is lending its portrait of Dr. Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick has lent the portrait of her father, Mr. Deering, which was presented to him by the artist when Mr. Singer was a guest of the Deerings in Florida.

Joseph Valentines Arrive Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Valentine will observe their seventh wedding anniversary today. The Valentines have taken a house in Lake Forest for the summer, since his parents, the Joseph L. Valentines, are going to be in China instead of at their farm in Ashland, Mass., where the younger members of the family usually go in July and August.

The senior Mr. and Mrs. Valentine and Joseph W. Valentine are expected here on Monday on their way from Ashland to Vancouver where they will sail for the orient. They will spend a few days in Chicago. The former Jane Valentine and her husband, Newton S. Noble Jr., have been living in the Valentine home since their marriage a few weeks ago. The Nobles expect to take an apartment on the south side in which they will be settled by the time her parents and brother return from their travels in the fall.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon in London, Miss Lillian Wylde Fraser will be married to Frederick Arthur Martin Macquisten. The ceremony will take place in St. Ethelburga church, Bishopsgate, and a reception will follow at the Savoy hotel.

Mr. Macquisten and his bride will sail next Wednesday on the Aquitania for New York, and are expected to come to Chicago shortly afterward so the bride's relatives and friends can meet her bridegroom.

Adelaide Criswell to Become Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gifford Kellogg of 80 Locust road, Winnetka, have announced the engagement and approaching marriage on Aug. 18, of Miss Adelaide Criswell to Gordon Grant of Tampa, Fla., son of Mrs. Blanche Grant of Chicago, and Bruce Grant of Evanston. The wedding will take place at noon in the gardens of the Kellogg home, and Mr. Grant and his bride will make their home in Tampa.

Miss Criswell is a graduate of the Roycemore school in Evanston, and the Evanston Academy of Fine Arts. Mr. Grant attended Northwestern university, and the Evanston Academy of Fine Arts.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Prince are the parents of a son, Leonard Morton Prince III., born Thursday after-

Studio Tempts Jeanne Cagney, Sister of Jim

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 9.—[Special.]—It is going to be hard for Jeanne Cagney, 18, sister of Jimmy, to go back to her college in New York in September because the directors keep offering her screen tests at Grand National studio. She has been visiting the sets daily to watch her brother film "Something to Sing About."

Miss Cagney came west with her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Cagney, last month, to spend the vacation with her brothers Jim and Bill here, but unconcerned about the movies for herself.

Since then she has been weakening. She is attending Hunter college, and still intends to return and graduate next June. But after that, well, the movies, perhaps.

We were watching a scene in the film whose working title is "Bulldog Drummond No. 2" at Paramount. John Howard, Reginald Denny, and E. E. Clive were drinking beer in a disreputable looking Limehouse joint. In sidled the most forbidding looking human we have seen since the death of Lon Chaney in 1930.

The creature jostled to an end of the bar next Clive, who flung a look of distaste his way. The most battered bowler your observer ever has seen clung to the sagging head of the newcomer. It was streaked with mud and grease, and had several three-cornered rents in what once was its crown. Straggly gray-streaked hair twisted from under the hat. Hundreds of pock marks filled the bleary one's cheeks. His nose was long and red and pitted. His whiskers were frowsy His eyes rolled. His lower lip drooped. His head jerked toward his folded claws of hands which rested on the bar.

Denny looked over Clive's shoulder at the repellent vision, and he didn't have to do any acting to evidence a show of surprise and disgust. Howard looked, too, and shrank in the other direction.

"Who's that dirty extra?" we inquired of George Templeton, the assistant director, who used to be the all-star running guard on University of Southern California football teams seven years ago. "Who, him?" Templeton asked us right back, in amusement. "Don't you know him? That's John Barrymore."

Templeton moved on, and, of course, we didn't believe him. Barrymore wasn't little and humpbacked like the repugnant wreck at the bar; but just then the "take" was finished and the tramp winked a sardonic wink and turned away.

A stand-in took the stranger's place alongside Clive and Denny and Howard. The humpback straightened a bit and removed the greasy bowler, and we could see the long, silver-tipped black hair of the Barrymore pompadour, and realized we had seen a great bit of makeup and character acting.

In the "Bulldog Drummond" picture, Barrymore plays a Scotland Yard inspector who is the champion at disguises. As the detective, he wears another makeup, that of an old fisherman whose face is fringed in whiskers that sprout from both temples and loop around his chin. It is just as hard to recognize Barrymore in that get-up as it was to spot him as the sodden bum.

"Who gets credit for that makeup?" we asked Wally Westmore, the makeup expert.

"I worked out the foundation of it, and Barrymore took the idea and puts it on himself," Westmore said. "That man is a wizard. He can do things in characterization that honestly don't seem possible."

In "Bulldog Drummond No. 2" John Howard is playing the gay crook who was personated in prior Bulldog Drummond films by Ronald Colman and Ray Milland.

United Artists studio narrowly escaped a débâcle when the eight live carp imported into its lily pond for use in scenes of "Marco Polo," failed to eat, wiggle, or otherwise respond, and seemed to be getting worse all the time. When everything else had failed some bright fellow of the prop department looked at the thermometer and decided to try the effect of fifteen 50 pound cakes of ice in their water. The fish perked up into camera possibilities within an hour.

A Fall Wedding Styled in Velvet

The brasso orchid inspired the color scheme of this velvet wedding party at a New York style show. The bride's gown of white velvet has a three and one-half yard train and the headdress is decorated with orchids. The maid of honor, at the bride's left, wears chiffon velvet in green. The jackets of the deep purple velvet suits of the bridesmaids are removable, converting the suits into simple, youthful evening gowns for other occasions.

Bad Temper Is Sure to Drive Away Charm

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

We had the misfortune to view an exhibition of bad tempered charmlessness recently in a certain young professional who came to have her picture taken in our photographic studio.

But we are grateful to the minx for letting us see a so-called beauty at her worst possible and to see how ugly she can be. We are tempered a little in our judgment by the possibility that she may have been ill advised in her ill-tempered display on the ground that temperament is a good trait in stardom. She's young, but not too young to be earning her living and to know that enduring popularity is based on far more pleasing character portrayal. Nevertheless, she's not yet mentally old enough to realize that greatness is not built up on mean, petty traits and exhibitions. You have to have an enormous gift to offer to offset temperamental outbursts of ugly nature.

This particular vixen is far from that class. Nor can she hope to appropriate fame by stealing really big time temperamental idiosyncrasies. We repeat, you have to be big, very, very big, and have something impressively big to offer, to be excused the extreme rudeness displayed on the momentous occasion. Even then it is not the becoming rôle of woman. Garbo may be elusive, mysterious, aloof, but it's never been written of her that she's rude.

The truly big ones of the screen and stage, in my experience, are women of great charm, such as Grace Moore, Madeleine Carroll, Claudette Colbert, countless others of topnotch fame. Although I've seen some of the big ones under circumstances when they might have been justified in indulging a tantrum, a quiet, fine restraint marked their conduct.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

PARIS.—[Special.]—The French government owes something of a debt to the large American beauty salons in Paris. In recent years the government has concerned itself with racial health and has tried its best to promote healthful exercise and sport.

There are good exercise programs in the schools and the mature are urged to develop a taste for tennis, hiking, cycling, and sport of a similar nature. The results are not much to brag about. Not even the forty hour week has encouraged the women to take to athletic activities.

But in the last three years the American beauty establishments have actually worked up a good appreciation of the services of a body department. More and more women come in for gymnastics, for body massage, and for circulatory treatments. The American clients led the way and the French women of means are following suit.

French women are not inclined to broadcast the fact that they have beauty services. They're prone to be secretive about their program of good looks preservation. They take perfectly marvelous care of themselves, but they are never obvious about the mechanics of the business.

A French woman usually won't tell her closest friend of her appointments with the masseuse or the hairdresser. The finished picture is what interests her.

She eats, drinks, and smokes with admirable moderation, we think, and the figure of the fashionable woman is usually excellent. You'll never hear her talk about her diet, as you almost invariably will hear American women do. If she diets it's quietly and conscientiously. And more and more she is turning to the exercise department of a good beauty salon to keep her in trim. The beauty salon is doing what the government projects couldn't quite pull off.

Ansermet Gets All There Is in Tschaikowsky

BY CECIL M. SMITH.

For the second of his four programs as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia Park, Ernest Ansermet, magnetic Swiss conductor of international repute, last night chose to place side by side Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony and three modern compositions—the overture to Casella's opera "La Donna Serpente" Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" suite and Kodály's "Dances of Galanta." The Casella and Kodály works were played here for the first time.

In Mr. Ansermet's conducting we are having an unsual opportunity to observe a kind of workmanship thoroughly typical of the well schooled French-trained musician. In French musical performance, as well as in French musical composition, the attributes most highly admired are economy of means and aristocracy of taste.

So Mr. Ansermet's interpretations are as effective as they can be within the bounds of the choicest taste. Never overassertive, they are none the less marked by a full realization of every means by which music can be made forceful without becoming overdone or ungenuine.

In Tschaikowsky's much-played Fifth Symphony this gift for making musical performance dramatically effective without vulgarizing it made Mr. Ansermet's approach to the score one which stirred his public strongly without giving musical purists any reason to lift an eyebrow in disapproval.

The conductor's shrewd and well calculated estimate of this score was the more remarkable when one realizes that most French conductors do not play Tschaikowsy, and that Mr. Ansermet therefore came by his command of the symphony in a musical environment where it is neither greatly admired nor frequently played.

It is interesting in connection with the Parisian distaste for Tschaikowsky to observe that the first Paris performance of this Fifth symphony was conducted by Frank Laird Waller in 1926, although the symphony had been in existence since 1888.

Kodály's "Dances of Galanta," written two years ago for the eighteenth anniversary of the Budapest Philharmonic orchestra, were superlatively well worth hearing. The dances are richly orchestrated, and evoke the Hungarian folk life with impassioned intensity.

The overture to Casella's "La Donna Serpenté," the evening's other novelty, is short, fast, and immensely jolly. Innocent melodies simply constructed out of the familiar major scale become entangled in dissonant development, and free themselves for a bright, cheery close.

The "Petrouchka" suite was played better than the orchestra has played it before. For the most part it was a genuine virtuoso performance, although a half dozen slips indicated that the orchestra has not been used to playing a brilliantly as Mr. Ansermet likes to require.

Simple Quilt for Beginners

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This simple pieced pattern is one of the first blocks which beginning quilt makers like to attempt, because the patches are so easily set together. When the pattern first was made, it was copied from an old homespun design and it carried out the color combination of the homespun piece by using the blue, white, and yellow. The entire quilt was composed of pieced blocks and set together to form an all over design. The 18 inch blocks are set together and bound with a one-half inch bias binding for the border, and the finished quilt measures 90 by 108 inches so that it may be used as a coverlet or spread.

Good Morning!

The precipitation of an ace racing driver into a taxi war, and developments attendant thereon, form the nub of this picture's activities.

"Born Reckless" is breezy melodrama. It has lots of action, a good portion of excitement and enough romance to keep sentimental folks intent on the outcome.

The film opens with quick shots of the Indianapolis race, won by "Hurry" Kane. He announces he'll put his winnings in a "good, safe investment" but his sugar baby doesn't prove to be that little thing, and papa soon goes broke.

In a strange city he is employed by his friends, the Martins, owners of an independent cab company, who refuse to pay homage to taxi racketeers. His courage and driving skill make him the Martins' lord high protector—and run him into a lot of trouble. . . .

Brains and brawn win out, however, and the picture closes with the war over, most of the casualties where they should be and the flag of romance flying high.

The acting is all commendable and direction was excellent. I'm always so glad to see Harry Carey in a film! He's one of the old reliables who never lets a rôle down.

See you tomorrow.

Radio Favorites Are Heard at Park Concert

BY EDWARD BARRY.

When Henry Weber came to the Grant park band shell last night to direct the W-G-N-MBS orchestra in the ninth of the free lake front concerts he brought with him as the nucleus of the larger unit several of the men who customarily play for the public broadcasts in W-G-N's audience studio. Philip Kaufmann, concertmaster, and Adolph Hoffmann, cellist, were among them. In order to make everybody feel completely at home he engaged Kathryn Witwer, W-G-N staff soprano, as soloist. Neither the station nor the chain could overlook such a setup and a big piece of the program was dutifully broadcast.

Opening with the Beethoven Eighth symphony, the conductor did an especially good job with the first movement. He was careful that the exquisite counter melodies which play such an important part were given their proper value and prominence.

The Caucasian Sketches of Ippolitow-Ivanow, surely the dullest suite in the répertoire, profited mightily when the conductor or the timekeeper, in an access of mercy, cut the third movement. Smetana's heartening "Moldau" [to which Frederick Stock sometimes lets his less formal audiences sing a song about apple pie or something of the sort] brought the program to the intermission.

The novelty of the evening was Gustav Holst's "Japanese" suite, which was played here eleven years ago by the Chicago Symphony orchestra but dropped like a hot potato after one performance. The reasons for this were not apparent last night. The music seems interesting, at least. The suite is based in large part on authentic Japanese themes and one movement, "Dance Under the Cherry Tree," is an especially fragile and attractive example of the far east's cult of the exquisite. This Gustav Holst, by the way, is the man who wrote "The Planets."

Salome's ecstatic "Il est doux, il est bon," from Massenet's "Herodiade," demonstrated Miss Witwer's ability to sustain an eloquent melodic line. The vocal fluency which she possesses made the second solo, an arrangement of Strauss' "Tales from the Vienna Woods," as successful in its way as the first.

It was cool in Grant park last night.

New Costume Jewelry Goes at Low Prices

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Searching for the last flippant accessories of the summer, we found some button mold costume jewelry that is the best looking loot for the money we've ever seen. It comes in red, blue, beige, and golden sun tan, but the beige and sun tan take top rating.

This stuff is perfect with black or navy clothes, goes slick with linens, nets, or cottons. You'll find head bands that can double for longish necklaces, short chokers, bracelets, and even the ball earrings. Aside from the grand color and amazingly low price, it's featherweight and different. See it with black and realize what a find it is.

For sheer flippancy try and beat the clocked stockings just arrived. Good sun tan tones for evening wear. On the sides or directly in front are the giddy new clocked effects. These are in color—red, blue, green, and navy—in floral motifs and scrolls that look like initials. These are effective hosiery for fluttery dance dresses of cotton and other summer time materials.

Big white enameled daisies are the latest lapel decorations. You can wear just one or one on each lapel. As the only white contrast for a dark ensemble they can't be beat. Priced around a dollar, they are good buys right now.

With this we gleefully ditch you all for a vacation. Be back in a couple of weeks. Until then, don't neglect your shopping!

Charities Refuse Cut in Jardine Lecture Receipts

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—[Special.]—The Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine, the vicar who officiated at the Windsor wedding, will give a talk at the convention hall here tomorrow night as scheduled, but three Atlantic City welfare agencies, at their own request, will not share the proceeds, as scheduled. William L. Moise, representing the agencies, objected to the use of airplane trailers and automobile banners and felt a lecture on the duke's marriage was "not ethical."

Only WILSON & CO. Makes Tender Made Ham

Leading Chefs in the finest hotels and restaurants choose it for its unheard-of tenderness and marvelous full-bodied flavor.

U.S. Inspected and Passed by the Department of Agriculture.

A NEW WARM WEATHER RECIPE
PIGS IN CLOVER

Cut 12 fairly thin but large slices from your Wilson's Tender Made Ham. Spread with prepared mustard, according to individual tastes. Open a can of baked beans, and place a generous spoonful on one end of each slice. Roll the ham up as tightly as possible around the beans, and wrap a long strip of Wilson's Certified Bacon, spiral-fashion around each roll and fasten firmly with a toothpick. Next, cut in half four well-shaped, firm tomatoes, and sprinkle them with salt, pepper and a little flour, and dot with butter. Preheat the broiler. Arrange the meat and tomatoes on the grill and broil for ten minutes.

It's the last appetizing word in ham quality. An All American product. Sealed, with the bone removed, in sanitary tins. Then cooked by our experts to the very pinnacle of tenderness and flavor in its own rich ham juices. Nowhere is there finer ham than this. Ideal for picnics, buffets and all hot weather dishes. Comes ready to slice and serve, in whole, half, and quarter ham tins, or sliced by the pound at your nearby Wilson dealer's. There's no waste—so it's very economical.

SYNOPSIS.

On his return from abroad Michael Eden, heir to millions, postpones his marriage to Katharine McCann because his foster father, John Millis, tells Michael his foster mother is ill and needs him. Katharine's roommate, Joan, is engaged to Michael's friend, Terry Newton. From all sides Katharine is warned to break Michael away from John Millis. Millis asks Michael to sign a will making him Michael's heir. Michael signs, expecting to change the will after his marriage to Katharine. Mrs. Millis attempts suicide when she discovers her husband flirting with her nurse. Michael rescues her and agrees to take her away from Millis without telling any one where they are going. Millis tricks Katharine into a ride with him and makes love to her.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

FORCED KISSES.

Katharine lifted her head with a startled glance, but Millis was looking down at her lazily, with evident amusement and satisfaction. He drew her head back gently to his shoulder.

"You were never quite perfectly beautiful to me before," he murmured. "Poor child! You will never be able to content yourself with our nice boy. One side of you can, of course. And it is a lovely side. But what is to become of the side of you that wants a man like me?"

Without the slightest warning he was holding her tight against him, had tilted up her face, and was kissing her again and again.

"Play it's Mike," he was commanding. "He can kiss this way—some day when he grows up. He will—undoubtedly. Possibly it will be you he kisses. If it isn't—well, dear Katharine, you will have known what it is to be properly kissed."

When he released her, he lifted her gently to her own side of the car, smiled at her white face and blazing outraged eyes. Only a dazzling brightness in his own betrayed his excitement.

"Mad, aren't you?" he laughed. "Mad, and gorgeous to behold. Maddest of all to think you can't be madder."

With a mocking smile, he headed his car homeward, into the flooded drive and the whirling storm.

Joan was not home when Katharine got back from her stormy drive. She came in not long after.

"Katharine," she cried, "are you using that beastly stuff that Terry brought over, that mange cure?"

"Yep."

Joan marched to the bathroom door and stared at her roommate. The girl's dark curls were dripping. Katharine's face had been scrubbed until it was actually skinned in places, her hands looked as if they had been boiled. But she smiled at Joan quite cheerfully.

"I have had the misfortune to be dragged through the dirt."

"One just can't go about in a city without coming in contact with dirt occasionally," she explained smoothly. "I have had the misfortune to be dragged through the dirt. I thought that I should feel unclean the rest of my life, but I find that it all comes out in the wash." She set to work scrubbing out her mouth with a strong kitchen soap. "I'll be with you in a minute," she promised. "I plan to sit up all night—reading the Bible."

"Anything that I can do for you?"

"Yes, dear. Get me some sackcloth and ashes if you have any handy."

Joan withdrew. When Katharine joined her later in the living room she was plastered as to her face with boric acid, but otherwise looked quite herself.

"I meant to tell you two things," Joan said. "Mr. Amos Newton has tried to reach you on the telephone several times, and will probably call again. And here is a nice fat letter from Michael, postmarked Bassett."

"So that's where he is?" Katharine whooped. "O, good! He does love Bassett."

"Does he, indeed?" Joan said drily. "When you have read your letter you might enlighten me as to Bassett."

Katharine played with her letter, holding it up to the light, and weighing it, and turning it over and over.

"Bassett," she explained, "is a hamlet in northern Maine where one line of Michael's forbears have lived for two or three hundred years. He inherited a farm up there, through his mother, and he discovered it when he was east at school. He has been building it up ever since, whenever he could get his hands on a little money. He is just crazy over it. Suppose this isn't a letter after all? Maybe it's just a circular, an advertisement of a milking machine. O, I'm glad to know where Michael is," she said tremulously. "Maybe he is telling me to come on."

She felt cautiously of the raw spot on her face.

"Kit, open his letter," Joan begged.

"In a minute. When I've read it it will all be over. Now I can imagine such lovely things. It's sent in a stamped envelope," she giggled, "best Bassett style. Wonder if we might not like to live in Bassett."

Bit by bit she nibbled off the end of the envelope.

"It's no circular," she announced triumphantly, peeking into the little hole she had made. Then, tired of the play, she ripped open the envelope with hands that shook slightly, and read rapidly.

Joan could not resist watching, and her heart sank as she saw the life die out of Katharine's face, and saw it take on its all too familiar expression of stoic patience.

"It's all right," she said, with forced cheerfulness. "It's just not hilarious. When I've read it again I'll pass it over maybe."

She carried it off into her bedroom. It was some time before she emerged, but when she came she was briskly brushing the tangles from her hair and sniffing it experimentally, and she handed the letter to Joan quite casually.

It was not a reassuring letter.

Dear K.:

I think that I may have a touch of flu or grippe or something. Maybe I will not write for a few days. It will mean nothing at all excepting that I feel dull—duller than usual—pretty dull.

I wish I were not dull. I wish I flashed and sparkled and scintillated and shone, until I dazzled you and you could see nothing but me.

That would be horrid, wouldn't it? I don't wish it. I wish I were like the star I see from my window, I like to look at it. It makes me feel peaceful and serene and steady. I call it your star, Kit. Sorry, but it isn't working so well tonight. Do you suppose that I went out and got awful drunk last night—absentmindedly? I feel as if I might have.

I am having an amusing time, most amusing. Mother is a constant diversion. We are a bit secluded here, she says. She assures me that in another week she will elope with the parson who lives down the lane. Remember the limerick about the monk of Siberia whose life grew drearier and drearier? Mother likes to quote it.

There are lights dancing in front of my eyes.

I wonder if mother would mind if I went in and played the organ. I tried to sing a while ago, but mother seemed actually alarmed.

I have meant to tell you, K. McCann, that we have the best radio I can find, and every day I write for a newer and better one. Just a few minutes each day I listen in. Your songs make me hurt inside, but I hurt inside anyway, and your singing makes a nice sort of hurt.

Kit, if I never see you again, be a good little sport. Think of the fun we've had together all these years, you and I. M. E.

"Why, Kit!" Joan gasped, "Mike's sick."

"What can I do about it?" Katharine asked, with a hard little stare. "By this time he may be well again. By this time he may be dead." She paused, then added in a stifled voice: "He didn't send for me, Joan. Mike didn't send for me."

She turned mechanically to answer the telephone.

"This is Miss McCann. . . . This is Katharine, Mr. Newton. . . . You want to talk to me? Tonight? You want to come over." She hesitated. "No, I'd rather you didn't. I will come to your house. We can't talk here. Joan infests the place, and it's late to turn her out. . . . No, don't come get me, please. I'll take a cab and save time for both of us. Good-by."

She hung up unceremoniously, and began jerking into her street dress.

Mother-in-Law Appreciates a Bit of Regard

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Please advise me concerning this matter. I am to be married in three months and the other night my fiancé informed me that his mother does not like me. I do not go to his home very often. In fact, I haven't been there in four months. What do you think I should do in this case? Your advice would be appreciated." VINA.

Your fiancé is not the world's most tactful gentleman. But then you may have deserved the rebuke, avoiding his parent and giving the impression that you didn't like her. Anyway, it is better to hear the news before you do marry and see if you can't manage to win the older woman over sufficiently for congenial living. When your in-laws live in the same community it is going to simplify your life appreciably if you do arrange a compatible sort of feeling between you.

Your man has affection for his people you must understand, Vina. You're not going to wean him away from it in a hurry either. You're the comparative stranger in his life, you know. You are the one who will spring the surprises on him, not the mother he has been used to and has loved all his life. He will be persuaded, if he loves her, that she is a woman whose friendship is worth cultivating. And he will and undoubtedly does resent having you treat her otherwise.

Mothers-in-law are exactly like other people in that they are won over by people who make it their business to win them over. It isn't easy for you young brides and brides-to-be to share this man of your heart. If she is an up to date mother she isn't going to ask any equal sharing of you. But she is going to appreciate it enormously if you are the kind of girl who can thank her for producing and rearing a boy who spells happiness in your life. She, like any one else, will appreciate you and like you in exact ratio to the affection you extend her.

Perhaps in the mother-in-law case you have to be a little more understanding and advance more friendly gestures her way because she, too, feels that barrier that so commonly arises between the older and the younger woman. Don't expect her to make all the advances, consider you the world wonder for her son's future, without a move on your part toward friendly relations. Now, if you'd use just a little of that blarney and good nature on her that you've undoubtedly used to get her son you'd probably find her running to your side and extoling you as just the girl for her boy.

noon at the Presbyterian hospital. The baby has a sister, Joan Tyner, and a brother, Gordon Kimball Prince.

Luncheon Parties at Arlington Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peacock, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Harding, the Thomas E. Wilsons, the Philip D. Blocks, Mrs. William M. Collins, Mrs. Walter Schuttler, the Robert J. Thornes, the George E. Van Hagens, and Edward N. D'Ancona, are among those who will entertain guests at the Post and Paddock club before the races today at Arlington Park. Miss Mildred D'Ancona of St. Louis, has been visiting her uncle, Mr. D'Ancona, who is one of the directors of the Post and Paddock.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers and her daughter Miss Dorothy Counselman, are leaving the end of the month for Nantucket, Mass. Miss Counselman will not be among the debutantes this fall, for she is to have another year away at school before she is introduced. In September she will enter Bryn Mawr college.

Mrs. Aldis J. Browne and her daughter, Elizabeth, are going east next week to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Secor Cunningham, at their summer home at Hyannisport, Mass.

Young Potter Palmers Guests of Her Mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer III. and their children have gone east to visit her mother, Mrs. West Movius, in Boston. They will be away until some time in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr. have gone to their summer home at Oakland, Md., and will be there until autumn except for an occasional flying trip to Chicago.

The Champ Carrys are spending the summer at their farm near Mundelein. Mrs. Carry's mother, Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, will be with them most of the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Castle and their twin daughters, Miss Josephine and Miss Caroline Castle, debutantes of the last season, left Tuesday night for California, where they will embark for Honolulu. After a month there they will visit in Los Angeles and Menlo Park, Cal., before returning home Aug. 22.

Priscilla, Martha and Nancy Pirie, the Gordon L. Pirie's young daughters, have gone to a camp near Sayner, Wis., for the summer. Suzanne Ford, daughter of the Edwin Fords; Katherine Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nell B. Dawes; Peggy Hoyt, the junior N. Landon Hoyts' daughter, Cynthia Ketcham, the Frank W. Ketchams' daughter, and the Bentley McClouds' daughter, Nancy, are others who are at the camp.

Miss Jeanne Kimball, daughter of the T. Weller Kimballs of Kenilworth, and Miss Courtney Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett R. Cook of Winnetka, went north last week to a camp near the Canadian border in Minnesota.

The Lake Shore Athletic club has issued invitations to a preview of the four model apartments decorated by Mrs. Schreve C. Badger, Mrs. John C. Murphy, Mrs. James Hume, and Mrs. John W. Root next Wednesday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock. Tea will be served afterwards at the Casino-in-the-Air.

GASOLINE ALLEY—LAUGH IT OFF

YES, MR. TOPPER, I THINK I CAN COME RIGHT OVER.
MY SON, SKEEZIX, SAID YOU HAD THEIR CAR LOCKED IN YOUR GARAGE.
I THOUGHT I HAD. LOOK! LOCKED TIGHT AND HAS BEEN ALL ALONG.
BUT THOSE YOUNG RASCALS UNSCREWED THE NUTS ON THE INSIDE SO THE BOLTS WOULD SLIP THROUGH!
AND OPENED THE DOOR WITHOUT UNLOCKING IT!
AND HAVE BEEN DRIVING THE CAR AROUND DAYTIMES FOR A WEEK. I JUST GOT WISE TO IT.

Frock to Make in a Jiffy

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

We hope the warm weather hasn't caught you in the lamentable position of being without cool clothes! If such is the situation, take heart! This frock may be made in as little as two hours, because it is the simplest thing in the world to sew.

It is a style becoming to both maids and matrons. We think that, perhaps, the version shown in the sketch at the left is most appropriate for the mature woman, since it has a low yet soft neckline. The higher neckline is more becoming to slim and slender young throats, and the two bows are debonair. You all will like the sleeves or, rather, lack of them, in this model. There are mere bands around the full, wide armholes, thus achieving chic with utter comfort for warmish days.

Soft materials, rather than crisp ones, are preferred for this design. Soft tub silks and sheers are perfect, and both prints, and plain shades are suitable. Prints trimmed with plain fabric are pretty, too.

Style No. 3152 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Sizes 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material, with ⅞ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

People seem to be just as hungry on a Sunday morning in summer as on a Sunday morning when snow is blowing around in the air. This is queer, because one wouldn't think as much energy would be needed to go golfing as to shovel off the front walk. But the fact remains, and the kitchen must acknowledge it.

It's possible to have dainty breakfasts as well as hearty ones in summer, drawing from the array of colorful fresh fruits now in season. These ten Sunday breakfast menus for summer are planned to include a variety of fresh fruits.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

WHEN TO MAKE A SLAM TRY.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

A player should begin to expect a slam when the previous bidding and his own hand indicate that the following essential factors must or may be present:

1. A trump suit is available in which there is no loser or at the most one loser.

2. The combined honor trick holding of the partnership must be:

[a] Six honor tricks if the hand of either partner is a freak. A freak is a hand which contains a void suit or two singletons.

[b] Six and one-half honor tricks if the player's distribution is unbalanced [containing a singleton].

[c] Seven honor tricks if the player's distribution is balanced [containing neither a singleton nor a void.]

3. The combined hands must contain at least eleven winners.

TODAY'S HAND.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following hand almost broke up a three table social duplicate last Saturday night. The bone of contention was South's original bid.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

♥ Q J 7
♦ K 6 4 3
♣ J 10

WEST
♠ K Q J 6 3
♥ 10 5 4 2

EAST
♠ A 9 2
♥ 8 6 3

SOUTH
♥ A K 9
♦ A Q J 10 7 2
♣ A Q 8

"The bidding at my table:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 spade	Pass	2 spades
3 diamonds	Pass	Pass	Pass

"I happened to be the only South who did not get to game. After two free bids and a passing partner I did not feel that I was justified in bidding four diamonds vulnerable with five possible losers. The fact that the bids of East and West were semiphonies did not excuse me to my partner, who claimed that I should have opened with a two bid. I claimed that a two bid was not in order, as I did not want to play five diamonds with a near 'bust' in his hand.

"Will you kindly let us have your opinion as to the correct opening bid, together with the subsequent bidding? Your coöperation will be greatly appreciated by all of us.

"Yours very truly,
"H. S. B., Philadelphia."

Let us consider the points involved, in order. Examining South's hand to determine whether it is an opening one or two diamond bid, we see that he has a total of five plus honor tricks. The losers are one in spades, one in hearts, one and one-half in clubs, and one in diamonds. Let us go further and add another one-half loser to the club suit on the pessimistic theory that we may not be able to enter dummy for a finesse. The honor trick total still is slightly above the losing trick total. Moreover, the honor tricks include the three aces, which always is an important and persuasive point in gauging two bids.

As proof, however, that usually it takes more than one bad bid to ruin a hand, South still had plenty of opportunity to reach game on later rounds. North nearly had a free raise to two diamonds over one spade, and if South, over East's two spades, had jumped to four diamonds there would have been no doubt about North raising to five. Since a slam depended on the club finesse it was a toss-up whether or not it should have been bid in a duplicate game.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the correct opening bid on the following?

♠ A 5 ♥ A 8 6 5 ♦ A J 5 4 ♣ A 10 6

Answer: One diamond.

Girls to Fix Undressing Limit in N. Y. Burlesque

New York, July 9.—(AP)—Actors instead of managers are made the arbiters of theatrical morals in the new code of conduct under which Broadway's padlocked burlesque houses are scheduled to re-open. The shapely ladies in the strip-tease used to check their modesty at the stage door and some of them claimed, when their business was banned, that they never had liked it. Their successors will be guided by their own consciences. Such a code has won official approval.

America's Social Soldiers Seek King as Member

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, now visiting in Great Britain to join the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the Honorable Artillery Company of England, intend to offer King George VI. of Great Britain a certificate of membership. The American "ancients" with their wives, making a party of 128, arrived in London tonight. On Sunday they will parade to St. Paul's cathedral.

Bottle Feeding Detrimental to Child's Health

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Perhaps you read in the papers not long ago the statement made by Dr. Harry S. Bikoff, assistant pediatrician of the Jewish hospital in Brooklyn, N. Y. It was given before the annual conference of the American Associations of Medical Milk commissions and the Certified Milk Producers' Association of America.

Dr. Bikoff is quoted as saying: "Breast feeding exclusively, for the newborn, is almost extinct in Brooklyn among middle class mothers.

"Most young mothers refuse to nurse their young. In fact in the past year I have had only two exclusively breastfed infants in more than 400 newborn," he said. "About half these mothers attempted breast feeding on my urgent advice at first, but most of them quit. They had heard that babies do as well on cow's milk nowadays and did not want to overeat, gain weight, and lose their girlish figures.

"Most of these mothers were highly neurotic and smoked heavily. They are of the average middle class, being able to have domestic help, afford a nurse for a few weeks, live in pleasant apartments, and buy good food."

That is one doctor's opinion on a group with which he has direct professional contact. While one would not want, on the strength of such a statement, to go further and make that a sweeping generalization about all average middle class mothers, the fact remains that many women who could nurse their babies do not and thus deprive them of their birthright. Baby doctors cannot speak too strongly on this subject. But mothers who care so much for their own freedom, their figures, or their social activities will not heed him.

Nursing is a normal, physiological process. Artificial feeding, on the other hand, is abnormal.

It is modern and scientific and intelligent to nurse one's baby if one possibly can.

WEDDINGS

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Kathleen Mary Gallagher, daughter of Mrs. Rita Gallagher of Fort Logan, Colo., and of John J. Gallagher of Philadelphia, Pa., to Lieut. Walter A. Pyhrr, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Pyhrr of 1621 Catalpa avenue. The wedding took place July 1 in the chapel of the Loretta Heights college at Denver, Colo., and a reception was held afterward at the home of the bride's uncle, Lieut. Col. Cleveland C. Gee, at Fort Logan. After a wedding trip to Chicago and Michigan, Lieut. and Mrs. Pyhrr will live in Little Rock, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Huntoon of La Grange announce the marriage of their daughter, Della Elizabeth, to John Cornelius Stamm, son of Earl Stamm of 7300 South Shore drive, on June 19 at the Huntoon home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Bays of Evanston announce the marriage of their daughter Catherine to Lawrence J. Parrish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Parrish of Riverton, N. J., on June 22, in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston.

The marriage of Miss Muriel Ardelle Menor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis James Menor of Oakland, Cal., to the Rev. Roy J. O'Brien, minister of the People's Liberal church of Chicago, will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Chapel of the Holy Grail at 57th street and University avenue. The board of trustees of the church will hold an informal reception from 5 until 7 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall D. Snedicor, 9311 South Damen avenue.

Announcement is made of the marriage on July 1 in Dixon, Ill., of Miss Helen McDonald, daughter of Mrs. William G. McDonald of Portland, Me., and Archer, Fla., to the Rev. Allan Andrew Zaun, son of Mrs. M. J. Zaun of Milwaukee. The bridegroom, who is assistant pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, is a graduate of Wheaton college, the Presbyterian Theological seminary of Chicago, and has done graduate work at the University of Tübingen, Germany, and at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, from which he received a degree of doctor of philosophy. The bride is a graduate of the Florida State College for Women.

Sally to Have Good News in Sunday Paper

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[The activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Sunday is good news day for youngsters. A list of winners selected from all the children who wrote in for invitations to our party at the United Artists theater will be printed tomorrow in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE. There will be 50 boys and 50 girls included and every one of them will receive an invitation. Next Thursday we'll see "A Day at the Races" featuring the Marx Brothers, Allan Jones and Maureen O'Sullivan.

There were a large number of fine letters this week, although in spite of all my warnings some of you forgot those items I told you to remember. About twenty youngsters forgot to give their ages, and more forgot to put addresses on their letters. A few of you continue to say "Please send me an invitation for my cousin, Mary Louise." If you're disappointed at not seeing your name listed on Sunday, try to be careful to write your letter correctly.

At any rate, you'll have another chance to try again—not for the same party, of course, but for a brand new one. It will be announced tomorrow and I know you'll love it! Just see if you don't agree with me.

VANDERLIP WILL SHOWS FEAR OF CHANGES IN U. S.

Financier's Estate Put in Trustees' Hands.

White Plains, N. Y., July 9.—[Special.]—Political, economic and social changes, making it unwise to impose ironclad restrictions on trust legacies, were foreseen as possibilities by the late Frank A. Vanderlip, financier and former assistant secretary of the treasury, when he signed his will on May 20, 1936. He died on June 29.

The 7,200 word testament, filed for probate today contained long provisions for protection of his estate through establishment of conditional trusts, and then specified that the provisions could be evaded if the executors and trustees deemed it advisable in view of changed conditions.

Estate Not Estimated.

No official estimate of the value of his estate, known to run into millions, was obtainable today and the transfer tax affidavit established only a nominal valuation of "more than $10,000."

The will named Mrs. Narcissa Cox Vanderlip, widow, as chief legatee, and their six children and present and future grandchildren as contingent beneficiaries. In explaining why the executors and trustees might liquidate the children's trust legacies by giving them the principal outright, Vanderlip wrote:

"I declare that it is my intention in creating the trusts for the benefit of my children and grandchildren to provide for their best interests and welfare but I recognize clearly that there may be in the future changed conditions in regard to property rights, taxation and many other social, economic and political matters, which, if I could foresee, might lead me to make different disposition of my property.

Trustees Given Broad Powers

"I have, therefore, conferred upon my trustees the powers herein above contained with respect to the payment of principal to the beneficiaries of the respective trusts hereby created."

P. J. Smidl, Ex-Manager of Packing Concern, Dies

P. J. Smidl, 74 years old, manager of the Chicago Butchers' Packing company for 22 years before he retired, died yesterday of a heart attack in his home at 5233 West 25th street, Cicero. Mr. Smidl was born in Czechoslovakia and came to Chicago with his parents when he was 2 years old. Surviving are his widow, Anna, a daughter, Ella, and four sons, George, Henry, Charles, and Joseph. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday from Sokol Slavsky hall, 6200 West Cermak road, Cicero. Burial will be in the Bohemian National cemetery.

Former Slave Dies in Zion; Union Soldier in Civil War

John Watkins, 94 years old, colored, who was born in slavery and served with the Union army in the civil war, died yesterday in his home at 2005 Sheridan road, Zion. He had lived in Zion for 35 years.

EDW. P. FLYNN, BOOKBINDER FOR 50 YEARS, DEAD

Edward P. Flynn, 86 years old, who was in the bookbinding business in Chicago for more than 50 years, died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Monday from the chapel at 7705 Cottage Grove avenue to St. Felicitas church, 33d place and Blackstone avenue. Burial will be in Sacred Heart cemetery, South Bend, Ind. Mr. Flynn did bookbinding work for the government as a member of the bureau of engraving during the Cleveland and Wilson administrations, and he did much of such work for Notre Dame university. For several years he lived with his son, Joseph, at 8211 Kimbark avenue. Three other sons and two daughters also survive.

Weekly Review of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Wild Roses Fading

July 9, 1937.

WHEN walking over the farm a few days ago we realized that the wild roses were singing their last song of the season. These delicately scented flowers, considered by many the most beautiful of all wild flowers, were almost hidden by the tall grass on some parts of the farm.

The wild roses that first catch your eye when you visit the farm are those that lift their heads close to a fence along one of the farm roads. Here the flowers have a rich green background of wild sumac [the smooth variety] with an occasional compass plant thrown in for good measure.

But a few days ago we found a small colony of roses along the edge of an oak woods that apparently had gone through quite a struggle to stay alive, blossomed unseen and unappreciated beneath some osage orange trees, and were slowly losing their beauty and fragrance. They were on plants so low that the flowers were almost hidden by the tall grass and the Queen Anne lace getting ready to unfold.

May Apples Infested.

The mandrakes, or May apples, in a stand of oak timber on the farm, probably would welcome a plant doctor at this season. When these wild flowers were pushing their umbrella tops up from the ground during May and the early part of June they were strong and green without any blemishes. We watched the white flowers come out. And then came the green fruit, or apples, that the mandrake always produces. Now the broad tops of the mandrakes are anything but attractive. A tiny parasite is feeding on them. As it destroys the green of the umbrella tops it leaves behind ugly brown blotches.

A pair of starlings built their nest in a maple tree next to the smoke house and have raised a hungry family there. When we were in the barnyard the other day we noticed how quietly and quickly the birds would fly from the barnyard into the fields, be gone for several minutes, and then return with food.

Nest in the Maple.

On every trip the birds would make a bee line for the maple tree with food in their bills. The evidence indicated that a nest full of hungry little ones was the only reason for all of this activity. We tried to locate this starling home. Although we couldn't see it from the ground we noticed a pretty good sized cavity in the soft maple, which is an ideal nesting site for any starling. So it's a pretty safe bet that the birds have taken over this hole in the tree for their nest.

That's one thing about the starling that enables the bird to get along wherever he is. He's adaptable. If a nesting box is available, the starling is glad to sign a lease for it. If there are no boxes the birds look over the woods for cavities or holes excavated by woodpeckers and they will use these places for their nests. In the woods on the south side of the farm there are several pairs of starlings nesting high in the oaks where there are cavities in the trunk large enough for snug nests.

News of Radio

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Though it has escaped such catastrophes as the wreck of the Hesperus and the mutiny of the Bounty, radio's Show Boat has suffered its full quota of troubles. Even before Major Bowes and his amateurs set up their tent opposite it the craft had suffered internal dislocations which had prompted many a consultation of the medicine men of radio. They differed in their diagnosis, and apparently all their panaceas were tried out. And all without much recovery.

Recently another physician recommended a change of scene. Hollywood and the blue Pacific was what was needed, he said. Thus its old crew was left behind and with a whole flock of new faces, and Charles Winninger, the original pilot who was returned as Capt. Henry, a new Show Boat steamed in on Thursday evening. The new faces included such promising personalities as Jack Haley of the movies, Virginia Verrill, a dusky voiced singer who might some day become as popular as Jane Froman, and Meredith Willson's distinguished music. Also there were Tommy Thomas, an exceptional baritone, and Nadine Conner, who were loaded aboard recently before the craft left New York.

But Show Boat continues to try to do too much. Music, comedy, laughter, drama, romance, hokum, without much real cohesion, integration, or direction. It lacks the good writing that has brought the Bing Crosby show so far. It is too hodge-podgy.

The only cooling note of the day: The MacGregor arctic expedition, which leaves this week for the northern regions, will do a series of broadcasts over NBC and expects to include Christmas greetings from the north pole. We knew that it was only a matter of time before NBC would be claiming an exclusive alliance with Santa Claus!

Amos and Andy yesterday wired confirmation of the reports printed here that they are transferring their allegiance to a soup company. New series starts Jan. 3 and will include Canadian stations in addition to big American network now being used. Reported they got a boost in pay from their present $200,000 per year.

MRS. ANNA PEASE, 83, FORMER N. U. TEACHER, IS DEAD

Mrs. Anna G. Pease, 83 years old, who was professor of English literature at Northwestern university for 16 years before her retirement nearly 20 years ago, died Tuesday in Roosevelt hospital, New York, it was learned yesterday. JUVENILES RUN IN HYDE PARK STAKES TODAY

Ten Named in Race at Arlington.

Field for Stake

THE field for the $2,500 Hyde Park stakes, arranged in the order of post positions, follows:

Horse and jocky—	Wt.	Prob odds.
‡CHIC MAUD [I. Anderson]	114	8-1
‡TEDDY WEED [no boy]	114	8-1
§LASSATOR [no boy]	117	5-1
*C-NOTE [A. Robertson]	117	8-5
†MAR LE [M. L. Fallon]	112	4-1
†MAD MONEY [G. Smith]	117	4-1
JOE SCHENCK [no boy]	117	6-1
GARRY [C. Corbett]	112	12-1
*MOUNT'N RIDGE [L. Haas]	114	8-5
§ROY T. [L. Balaski]	117	5-1

*Mrs. Ethel V. Mars entry.
†Lemar farm entry.
‡Warren Wright entry.
§Valdina farm entry.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Two year olds will step into the thirty golden days of racing picture at Arlington Park this afternoon when the Hyde Park stakes is renewed.

For this old fixture, which in reality is a warmup for the much richer Arlington Futurity to be decided later on, an added cash prize of $2,500 has been offered. It proved to be so attractive that ten of the best juveniles in the west will be sent into the battle.

These include five eligibles to the Futurity and it isn't at all unlikely that the winner of the Hyde Park will come along three weeks from this afternoon and capture the Futurity prize that will gross well over $50,000 this year.

The Futurity eligibles which will go after the Hyde Park prize are Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Mountain Ridge and C-Note, Valdina farm's Lassator, Warren Wright's Teddy Weed, and the Woolford farm's Joe Schenck.

Others in Battle.

Thrown into the battle with them are Chic Maud, also from the Wright stable; Mad Money and Mar Le from the Lemar stock farm stable; Roy T., which will run coupled in the betting with Lassator as the Valdina farm entry, and Garry, a speedster from the Millsdale stable of Chicago.

It shapes up as a wide open race although the success of the youngsters from the stable of Mrs. Mars in juvenile stakes run in Chicago and on other middle western tracks so far this season no doubt will send her entry of C-Note and Mountain Ridge to the post as the favorite. Mad Money, as a result of a brilliant victory scored earlier in the week, likely will be the second choice. He also will be hard to beat, for when he whipped Mountain Ridge in that earlier struggle he gave one of the finest demonstrations of gameness shown here this year by a 2 year old.

First Run in 1884.

The Hyde Park is the oldest 2 year old stake run each year in Chicago. It originated at old Washington Park in 1884. It was run sixteen times at that famous old course. Its winners included such great horses as Domino and Emperor of Norfolk. The race was abandoned in 1903, but it was revived again at Arlington Park in 1929.

Its more recent winners included Crowning Glory, Cavalcade, Coldstream, and Nation's Taste. The Hyde Park victory started Cavalcade out on his championship career.

Sharing honors with the Hyde Park will be the $2,500 Skokie handicap at a mile. It also has attracted a star band, with Hal Price Headley's Whopper the top weight and the likely favorite.

Whopper will attempt to make amends for his defeat in the Stars and Stripes handicap in which he was soundly beaten. However, the mile route of the Skokie will be much more to his liking than the mile and a furlong of the Stars and Stripes.

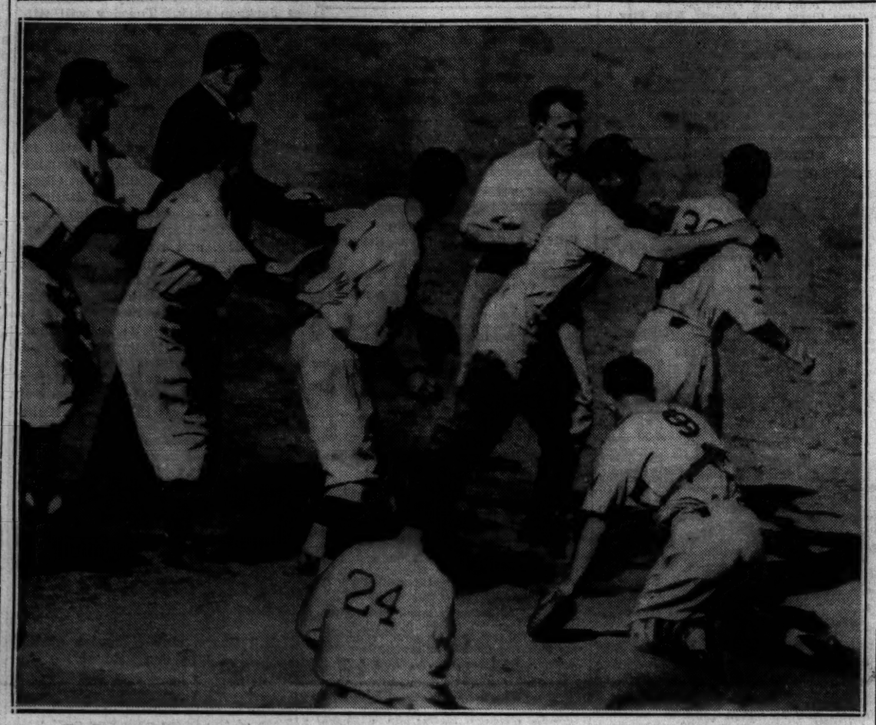
AH, A FIGHT! LET'S GET A PROMOTER



Yankees and Senators mix as feud between Jake Powell and Joe Kuhel is renewed in yesterday's game in New York. No. 30 is Manager Bucky Harris of Washington, who is being pushed away from the bareheaded Powell by Frank Crosetti of the Yankees. Buddy Myer of Washington (No. 1) is being pushed by the Yankee bat boy. Catcher Millies of Washington is on ground. At the left is Coach Art Fletcher of the Yankees. The umpire is Bill Dinneen. Kuhel, Powell Start Senator, Yank Fist Fight

New York, July 9.—(AP)—Joe Di Maggio led the Yankees to a 16 to 2 victory over the Washington Senators today in a game featured by a free for all fist fight on the field.

Di Maggio hit two homers, his twenty-first and twenty-second of the season; a triple, double, and single, and drove in seven runs in the course of the Yankees' seventeen hit assault. Lou Gehrig collected a homer and two singles.

The fist fight broke out in the sixth and was precipitated by the Yanks' Jake Powell and the Senators' Joe Kuhel. Apparently the row picked up where it left off in Washington last week, when Powell bumped into Kuhel in rounding first base and caused the Senators' first baseman to drop the ball. A pop bottle barrage from the left field bleacher fans was the result of that incident.

Today Kuhel, taking Buddy Lewis' throw on Powell's grounder, put out the Yankee outfielder and gave him the shoulder as he crossed first base. Immediately the two squared off and began throwing fists. Players from both clubs poured out of dugouts and in from the field to toss punches at each other. The umpires broke it up, banishing Powell and Kuhel.

Hughes Withdraws from British Davis Cup Team

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—George Patrick Hughes, member of Great Britain's Davis cup team, was lost to the squad today when he was advised to withdraw because of ill health. His place in the doubles will be taken by Frank H. D. Wilde.

The punch that started yesterday's trouble. Jake Powell lands a right on Joe Kuhel's jaw after being bumped by the Washington first baseman. Kuhel retaliated and the free for all followed.

John Montague, Mystery Man of Golf, Unmasked as Robber

Los Angeles, Cal., July 10.—(AP)—John Montague, the mystery man of golf, whose prodigious feats with a golf club have made him a legendary figure comparable to Paul Bunyan, the mythical hero of the north woods, was unmasked today with his arrest here under the name of La Verne Moore on charges involving the robbery of a roadhouse at Jay, N. Y., in 1930.

Sherif Pete Sutton and Deputy J. F. McCuiag said a finger print check showed Montague and Moore to be the same.

"Yes," they quoted him, "my name is La Verne Moore and not Montague. But I'm not saying anything about the robbery or about anything else until I've talked with a few people."

Although John Montague never entered a golf tournament, he was declared by many experts to be one of the best players in the game. He strongly resisted all efforts to photograph him and the few pictures taken were obtained by ruses.

Tales told about Montague included:

He can drive a golf ball 50 yards father than the longest drive Bobby Jones ever made.

He beat Bing Crosby, the film singer, who used the regulation golf clubs, with only a shovel, a rake and a baseball bat.

His best recorded golf score was 61, at Palm Springs, where he lowered the course record four times on successive days.

It is said that he bet and won as much as $1,000 a hole in golf matches.

This tale Montague told himself:

"I was playing in a foursome at the Fox Hills Country club. At the tenth tee I said to the others: 'See those birds on that telephone wire? Watch me pick off the one farthest to the right.'

"I teed up an old ball, took a brassie and hit a full drive. It struck the

PIRATES POUND OUT 19 HITS OFF THREE PITCHERS

Cubs Wilt Before 9 Run Attack in Seventh.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 9.—The inevitable caught up with the Cubs this afternoon. The Pirates, by soaking the Chicagoans, 13 to 1, convinced our fellows of something they perhaps needed to know—that the charmed lives they had been living for a fortnight couldn't go on for ever. Nine of the Pirate runs were scored in the seventh inning.

Despite the ruthless licking they absorbed the Cubs kept their two game lead over the second place Giants, who also staged a foldup at the hands of the Dodgers. The Pirates, in third place, advanced to a point 4½ games behind the leaders.

Cubs Use Three Pitchers.

Those Cub constituents who believe in baseball psychology perhaps should rejoice that the Cubs took a good thrashing instead of being nosed out in a close game. The pitching staf had become smug in recent riotous successes, to which they contributed little. It is difficult to prod winning pitchers and the tossing boys were getting less and less efficient. Manager Grimm had high hopes that today's bogging down would show his talented tossers that the pennant project may yet need their best services.

The Cubs employed three pitchers today to bring their total for seven games to twenty pitchers. Had it been a close game the remainder of the staf, saving one for tomorrow's start, probably would have been shoved into the arena.

Carleton Also Jolted.

It isn't normal for only two pitchers to take a one inning shellacking such as Clyde Shoun and Clay Bryant underwent in the nine run seventh. Tex Carleton started the affair and he wasn't lacerated like Clyde and Clay, but he was bumped for a couple of runs in the first inning and he didn't have a whole lot between then and the time he was knocked out with nobody retired in the third.

The three Cub pitchers gave up nineteen hits, including five doubles and three triples. Two of the doubles and the three triples were made in the last two innings, as were seven singles.

Paul Waner led the onslaught, making three singles, a sacrifice, and a triple. L. Waner made three singles and a sacrifice, and Woody Jensen,

Chicagoland Swim Races Start Today at Two Pools

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicagoland 100 yard swimming tests start today at Cermak pool and at Sherman park. Nearly half of the contestants will swim this afternoon for qualifying positions in the eighth annual championships which will be held July 18 at Whealan pool. The others will take their swimming tests tomorrow afternoon at Whealan pool and at California park.

It still is possible, however, to win a merit button for swimming 100 yards and to qualify for the championships. Entries for the final sectional trials, which will precede the championships a week from Sunday at Whealan pool, will be accepted until Monday midnight. The number of qualifiers in this final sectional will be determined by the total of contestants.

Report at 1 o'Clock.

All contestants who have received cards of admission must report at Sherman park, 52d street and Racine avenue, and at Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden avenue, Lyons, Ill., at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The cards admit you to the pool without charge.

Swimmers will be assigned to preliminary races as rapidly as they report. The first preliminary will start not later than 2 o'clock. Each contestant will be examined by a physician from the Tribune Athletic association before he is permitted to compete.

In addition to the merit buttons, each winner in the preliminary races will receive an award. All qualifiers will be presented with gold medals. These will be awarded at the championships July 18. The prizes for the championships are ten gold medals for the winners, ten silver medals for those finishing second in each race, and ten bronze medals for those finishing third.

And for the Finalists. . . .

One hundred and eighty gold qualifying medals will be awarded to those meeting July 18 for the championships.

Members of the Tribune A. A. will conduct the sectional meets and the championships. The officials have chosen the sectionals at which they preferred to help. The following will report at the sectionals today:

Sherman park—Dr. John C. Wall, Dr Benjamin Turman, Tom Conlin, Frank Oakes, Frank W. Blankley, Dr. T. A. Carlos, Douglas C. Warnes, Herman Henning, Joe Miller, Nick Malloy, Joe Allen, Herman Hofmann, Edwin Parkes, Dick Mastro, Joe Beran, and Harry Cullinan.

Cermak pool—Dr. Edward R. Rategan, Dr. William Rothman, Al Cowan, Roy E. Davis, Harry O'Hare, Walter Sonnenleiter, Fred Caserio, Carl Johansen, Harry Berz, Tobias Orb, Pete Miller, Sam Greller, John Gunderson, Bert Cowdrey, Robert Little, James W. Knize, Harry Hahn, George Sonnenleiter, James Toman, Paul Staff, William Finn, William Faehse, Edward Blohm, Otis Taylor, Arthur Dalton, Maurice Wolff, and Arthur Schroeder.

Others in the association, as well as several of these men, will officiate tomorrow at California park and Whealan pool.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

AS a baseball show the 1937 All-Star game in Washington Wednesday was the best since the original at Comiskey park in 1933. . . . Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, was the reason. . . . His directing hand was apparent from the time the gates were opened at 10:30 in the morning until the last customer had left the field. . . . Mr. Griffith, whose exploits as a player and owner will live forever in the history of the diamond, was attentive to detail. . . . The ticket sale, the handling of the crowd, the ceremonies, the courtesy of employés, everything clicked. . . . Success of this kind doesn't just happen. . . . It is the result of vision and hard work. . . . Through it all, even while escorting the President of the United States to his box, Griffith was the coolest man in the park. . . . The only possible exception was Connie Mack, who sat in the sweltering heat without removing his coat and seldom even changing the expression on his face. . . . Griffith and Mack are about the only survivors of American league pioneers. . . . Baseball won't be the same when they pass on. . . .

Griffith showed no favoritism in the distribution of tickets. . . . They were disposed of on the basis of first come first served. . . . Hundreds of government officials who thought they would be accommodated whenever they applied were disappointed to learn their money was no better in the eyes of Griffith than old Phineas X. Phan's. . . . Mr. Griffith is a business man and he realizes his business depends upon the good will of the fans. . . . That's why he is a leader in the movement to let the public name the teams for the 1938 game. . . . Most of the other American league owners are smart enough to see the wisdom of Griffith's stand and it is doubtful whether the National league can hold out against the idea next year, as it did this. . . . The result of the game dissipates the National league argument that the managers can pick a stronger lineup than can the fans. . . . The only time the plan was tried the National league suffered its most decisive defeat. . . . This department doubts whether the fans could have chosen a group of National leaguers strong enough to whip the glittering array they faced in Washington, but they certainly could have done no worse and they would have nobody to blame but themselves. . . .

At the By-Line Club.

Dear Arch: The gentleman occupying your stool ordered more ice in his glass, then wondered if you would remember the time Lou Gehrig opened an inning by bouncing feebly to the pitcher. The next eight Yankees larruped drives of varying lengths, including a homer or two. When Gehrig came up for the second time in the inning there still was only one out and the bases were full. The pitcher eyed Gehrig with great relief, mopped his brow and sighed: "Gee, I'm glad to see you. I thought you never would come up again."

RIGNEY CALMS BROWNS AFTER DIETRICH FAILS

Big Seventh Clinches Victory.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Although momentarily embarrassed by having their recent no hit hero, Bill Dietrich, knocked flat, the third place White Sox concluded yesterday's chores both vigorously and successfully. In three separate innings they were forced to fight back to stay in a tie. They finally grew tired of such procedure and touched off a real blast in the seventh that rushed five runs across and thus assured themselves of victory over the St. Louis Browns in the opener of a four game series. The score was 11 to 7.

Dietrich's appearance against the same team that he held hitless on June 1 was limited to less than two innings. He was bruised for three runs in the first. The Sox grabbed these back immediately on a homer by Dixie Walker, but the Browns went ahead in the second and Dietrich went away. Then John Dungan Rigney, the freshman of Jim Dykes' staf, was entrusted with the battle and the young man fairly galloped to his first big league triumph.

Rigney Yields Seven Hits.

After successfully cleaning up a full house left by Dietrich in the second, Rigney went down the line on a yield of seven hits and one pass. His mates tied it for him in the fourth, but he let the Browns get away with a run in the fifth. Then he turned out three innings in which there wasn't even one interruption by a base hit. But an error, of which he was the perpetrator, and a fly ball which Jack Hayes and Walker neglected to catch prolonged the life of the enemy long enough for one of them, Beau Bell, to hit a homer.

When the Sox finally got down to serious business in the seventh they made short work of Jim Walkup, the starter. Before the slim lad could retire a man such items as a triple by Mike Kreevich, a single by Walker, Luke Appling's second double, and a two bagger by Hayes had been injected into the proceedings. Out of this batch of hits, as well as a single by Luke Sewell after Walkup had been rescued, the Sox fabricated their five runs. They also scored in the eighth, this being due to Walker's third hit, a three bagger.

Action at Start.

Dietrich looked good in the first inning while retiring two men. Then the Browns suddenly forgot about his recent no hit performance and went to work in a big way. West and Clift singled to center. Bell aimed a triple into the right field corner, West and Clift scoring. Bell hiked home on Vosmik's single to center. Dietrich put on a big rally by fanning Huffman, but this was merely a momentary lull in the young man's adventures.

The Sox leveled off the three run handicap into a tie before an out was registered in their half of the opening inning. Radcliff singled to right and Kreevich singled to center. Walker loitered in the vicinity of the plate long enough to pile up a 3 and 2 count before sending his No. 3 homer into the right field lower deck. Bonura then grounded to Clift, Appling lined to Carey, and Hayes flied to West.

The blast which blew Dietrich off the mound and left a residue of one run in the second could have been far worse. Walkup singled with one

RACING RECORD OF PARMELEE T. IS STILL CLEAR

Warren Wright's Horse Wins Third Straight.

Warren Wright may have the best 3 year old in the country right at this time in Parmelee T., bay son of Victorian. The colt was out for the third start of his career at Arlington yesterday and it brought his third straight victory in easy fashion after running the 7 furlongs in 1:24 1-5. Hal Price Headley's Old Nassau was second, and the Bomar stable's longshot, Noble Boy, third.

Parmelee T. won't get a chance to go against the stars in the 3 year old division in the Arlington Classic because somebody forgot to make him eligible for that $30,000 race.

He has won all his three races easily.

The Princess Pat stakes winner, Well Rewarded, from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' stables, took a whipping yesterday at the hands of Joe Schenck from Woolford Farm stable in Missouri. She was beaten by a head in a thrilling finish. Warren Wright's Bull Lea was third. Joe Schenck ran the 5½ furlongs in the speedy time of 1:04 4-5. He was ridden by Jocky Buddy Haas.

Eleven horses in the stable of J. J. Coughlin have been offered at private sale. They are Roguish Girl, Determined, Miss Chancery, Evil Eye, Roguish Peggy, Honored Sir, Collegian, American Honor, High Lark, Oh Dolly, and Honored Miss.

Racing Secretary Charles McLennan will go to Florida after the close of the Arlington Park meeting to open his newly built home in Coral Gables. He will return north early in September to prepare for the Havre de Grace meeting.

Apprentice A. Loturco, a nineteen year old Brooklyn boy under contract to Gorbet and Irvin of Bloomington, Ill., applied for a rider's license at Arlington Park yesterday.

GIRLS AND BOYS DECIDE TENNIS TITLES TODAY

The girl's and boy's championships in the north shore open tennis tournament at the Country Club of Evanston will be decided this afternoon.

Jane Wagner of Cincinnati will meet Kitty Lawrence of Glencoe for the girl's title. The Ohio youngster defeated Elizabeth Bunnell of Evanston, 6-0, 6-3, in the semi-finals, and Miss Lawrence triumphed over Christine Waples of Chicago, 9-7, 6-2.

In the boy's division, Dan Kreer of Winnetka will play Seymour Greenberg, one of Chicago's ranking junior stars. Kreer won from Arthur Nielsen Jr. of Winnetka, 6-1, 4-6, 6-0, and Greenberg turned in a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Dick Wade of Evanston in the semi-final round.

Helen Fulton of Winnetka, top seeded in the women's singles, advanced to the final round by defeating Mrs. Virginia Hess Grelle of Chicago, 6-3, 6-1, yesterday.

Time, :22 4-5, :46 4-5, 1:00. Two dollar mutuels paid: Mafuta, $14.80 straight, $5.40 place. $4.00 show; Busse Trumpet, $8.00 place, $2.60 show; Brilliant Play, $5.20 show. Winner trained by J. T. Kermath. Went to post at 2:15½. At post 1 minute. MAFUTA, away fast, steadily increased her advantage in the run to the turn, went out best, when entering the stretch, came away when straight but later tired, yet lasted. BUSSE TRUMPET, close up from the start, had started up on the outside when the winner began to bear out entering the stretch, was slow to respond after swinging to the inside but rallied near the end and was wearing down the winner. BRILLIANT PLAY, a strong factor from the start saved much ground and held on gamely.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $1,100. Net value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23, :46 3-5, 1:12 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Denbigh, $36.00 straight, $16.40 place. $11.00 show; Girls Chance, $9.20 place, $6.00 show; Busy Mae, $16.60 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2:40½. At post 6 minutes. DENBIGH, taken out slightly after a slow start, began to improve his position after three-eighths, bore over when coming around PLAY PAL and MISS BALKO in the stretch, was carried out by GIRLS CHANCE in the final eighth but held on doggedly once he was in the final stride. GIRLS CHANCE took command quickly, was under strong restraint on the turn and came again when bearing out in the final eighth but could not hold the winner. BUSY MAE, raced wide, offered good belated response and was going strongly at the close.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse $1,100. Net value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :22 1-5, :46 2-5, :58 2-5, 1:04 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Joe Schenck, $7.60 straight, $4.00 place, $2.60 show; Well Rewarded, $3.00 place, $2.20 show; Bull Lea, $2.40 show. Winner trained by B. A. Jones. Went to post at 3:10½.

JOE SCHENCK, receiving a confident mount, was under strong restraint for about three-eighths, came with good speed and determination through the final quarter and outfinished WELL REWARDED at the end. Latter, under light restraint early, quickly shook off PELTER when called upon and holding on stubbornly barely failed to last. BULL LEA dropped far out of it the first three-eighths, came through on inside when racing to leaders with a rush and by the effort gave way steadily in the last eighth.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23 1-5, :46 2-5, 1:11 2-5, 1:24 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Parmelee T., $2.80 straight, $2.20 place, $2.20 show; Old Nassau, $3.00 place, $2.80 show; Noble Boy, $13.00 show. Winner trained by F. J. Kearns. Went to post at 3:35½.

PARMELEE T., away slowly, made up ground when racing on the inside the first half mile, raced to the leaders gradually after going to the outside and weakening after getting up, won under severe pressure. OLD NASSAU, on the inside throughout, took command approaching the stretch and failed to hold the winner in the last eighth, yet held on well and was holding his own in the closing strides. NOBLE BOY, away to a good start, was steadied for a half mile and under stout pressure, failed to hold the leaders yet held on creditably.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :24 4-5, :48 2-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:38 1-5, 1:51. Two dollar mutuels paid: Lady Montrose, $5.00 straight, $3.80 place, $2.60 show; Chance Ray, $6.20 place, $3.60 show; Brandon Prince, $3.20 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 4:02. LADY MONTROSE, away wide after the first three-eighths and under a snug hold until reaching the final quarter, drew into command very slowly but upon getting up drew out fast. CHANCE RAY, taken under restraint after taking command in the opening quarter, held on well when under energetic riding, but could not withstand the rush. BRANDON PRINCE followed the early pace under steady reserve, went out slightly on the second turn, swerved to the inside sharply when entering the stretch and held on well.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse $1,100. Net value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :25 2-5, :50 2-5, 1:16 4-5, 1:42 3-5, 2:07 1-5, 2:33 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Panalong, $15.80 straight, $7.20 place, $4.60 show; Advancing, $8.80 place, $6.00 show; Swap, $5.60 show. Winner trained by H. Wells.

PANALONG, allowed to remain far back for a mile, was forced very wide when beginning to move up on the last turn, got to the front under strong urging in the stretch, then weakened but managed to stall off ADVANCING. ADVANCING, close to a mile under restraint, took command when called upon and saving ground the final three-eighths, held on well to the finish. SWAP, badly outrun early made up ground in the final quarter.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse $1,100. Net value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

TWO SONS, under strong restraint for about five-eighths and taken out before reaching the front rushed to the lead and increased it without need of strong riding, then drew out, winning with something left. I SEE forced the early pace under restraint, was placed to pressure after reaching the last five-sixteenths and held on well to the final eighth, where she weakened. SLEEPY JOE had no mishaps.

WILLIAM V., never a great distance back and under strong restraint for three-quarters, moved up steadily on the final turn, disposed of SPICKEEN quickly and had something left. BOMBASTIC came from far back with a rush in the final quarter. COLIGNY, also outrun early, came strongly in the late stages.

DODGERS DRUB THE GIANTS, 15-2, BEHIND HAMLIN

Rookie Pitcher Yields Only Five Hits.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 9.—(AP)—The Dodgers pounded Hal Schumacher, Harry Gumbert, and Tom Baker for 20 hits and a 15 to 2 victory over the New York Giants today.

While the 31 year old rookie, Luke Hamlin, held the Giants to five hits—one of them a homer by Johnny McCarthy in the ninth—the Dodgers, with the aid of five opposition errors as well as their own batting, clinched the game with four runs in the second inning. Babe Phelps, with a triple, double, and two singles, and Joe Stripp, with three singles that drove in four runs, paced the Dodger attack.

Sherif Picks Up Mystery Man of Golf

bird in the neck, snapping its head off—170 yards away."

Famous for Strength.

For many months Montague made his home with Oliver Hardy, film comedian. At intervals he would leave town the officers said, presumably going into the desert where he was reputed to own a gold or silver mine.

Standing 5 feet 10 inches and weighing 220 pounds, Montague is said to have demonstrated his great strength in locker rooms at the Lakeside Golf club, disposing of as many as six opponents simultaneously in wrestling and fisticuffs.

Another tale is that when he and a movie comedian were tussling in a locker room Montague picked up the actor, thrust him neatly into a steel locker and closed the door.

A copy of the indictment naming Moore, or Montague, forwarded here, showed that on the night of Aug. 5, 1930, four masked men entered the roadhouse, bound and gagged patrons and employés, including Kin Hanna, operator, and his father-in-law, Matt Cobb, 67, took $600 and fled in an automobile.

Two Are Convicted.

In the getaway the automobile overturned and one of the four men was killed. Two others were caught, convicted and are now serving prison terms of 16 years each.

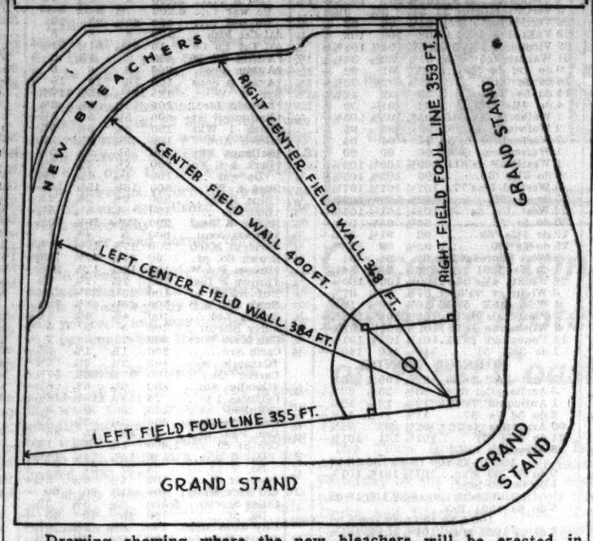
"I made one foolish mistake when I was just a kid," Officers Sutton and McCuaig quoted Montague. "I got into a tough gang and went wrong. I've been trying to live it down ever since.

"I've spent thousands of dollars trying to make good in the picture business or in writing.

"I was just about the place where I intended to go back east and clear the whole thing up. I'm glad this happened. I'm glad it's over."

At Malone, N. Y., Sergt. R. F. Walters of the state police declared that Moore's known ability as a golfer provided the "tip-off." He said that stories from California about a mysterious golfer known as "John Montague," who was averse to publicity, led Essex county authorities to make inquiries that led to the arrest.

Workmen Take Over Wrigley Field



Drawing showing where the new bleachers will be erected in Wrigley field. Work was started yesterday and will be finished about Oct. 1. About 2,000 seats will be added to the present bleacher capacity.

Work Started on Bleachers in Cubs' Park

Work was started yesterday on the new left and center field bleachers at Wrigley field. The bleachers, which will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000, are scheduled for completion about Oct. 1.

The present scoreboard is being moved near the left field foul line and will remain in operation until the new scoreboard, to be erected at the top of the center field bleachers, is completed.

Approximately 2,000 seats will be added to the present bleacher capacity.

New Entrances Planned.

The main section of the new bleachers is symmetrically disposed above the angle formed by Waveland and Sheffield avenues and below them there will be a large open area for shelter and circulation with a new arrangement of ticket offices and entrances.

From each side of the center section the lower level bleachers will be extended facing right and left field.

Twelve Foot Wall.

The new bleachers will be of reinforced concrete construction supported by an open steel framework. Smooth pipe railing and woven wire fences will afford protection where required.

The seats will be of enduring cypress and from the front row the bleacher fans will look down from above a high wall, which will separate the bleachers from the field. This wall will be 12 feet above the field and will be continuous from foul line to foul line.

The bleachers were designed by Holabird & Root. The contract was let to John Griffiths & Son company.

Pirates Score in First.

The Pirates were held to two runs in the first inning despite an accumulation of two walks, a sacrifice, a single and a double. Handley started things by waiting out Carleton for a pass and advanced on L. Waner's sacrifice. P. Waner singled to center, scoring Handley. Vaughan filed to Marty, after which Suhr walked. Todd doubled to left center, P. Waner scoring, but when Suhr tried to get home also he was speared at the plate, Galan to Jurges to Hartnett.

The Pirates knocked out Carleton in the third. Lloyd Waner singled to center and went to third on Paul Waner's single to right, Shoun replaced Carleton and Vaughan dumped the ball near the foul line in short left for a double, L. Waner scoring and P. Waner stopping at third. Suhr popped to Herman and Todd was given an intentional pass. Then Dickshot hit into a double play, Hack to Herman to Collins.

Shoun Goes Out.

In the seventh the Pirates knocked out Shoun on five hits by the first five batsmen. Handley scratched a hit to Herman and stopped at second on L. Waner's single to center. P. Waner singled to right, scoring Handley and when the ball went through Galan to the fence L. Waner scored and P. Waner reached second. Vaughan beat out a bouncer to Hack, P. Waner stopping at third. Suhr singled to right, P. Waner scoring and Vaughan stopping at second.

Bryant replaced Shoun and Todd supplied the first out with a fly to Cavarretta. Then followed a single by Dickshot, doubles by Young and Bowman, Handley's pop to Hartnett and triples by Jensen and P. Waner. Jurges threw out Vaughan and shortly after adding machine operators announced the Pirates had scored nine runs on ten hits.

Cubs Get a Run.

Herman opened the ninth with a triple to right center. Bottarini fouled to Todd. Jurges was thrown out by Vaughan, Herman scoring the Cubs' only run. Cavarretta popped to Vaughan.

out and took second on a wild pitch. Knickerbocker's single to right scored him. Davis popped out, but West singled and Clift walked, filling the bases. This was where Dietrich vanished. Rigney took charge and halted the rumpus on Bell's fly to Kreevich.

Appling Out at Plate.

Even though they had a man cut down at the plate the Sox managed to get the tying run across in the fourth. Appling led off with a single to right center and went to third when Hayes singled in the same direction. Berger poked a slow roller toward third and Appling was out, Clift to Huffman. Sewell made good under pressure by poking a single through short, Hayes scoring. Nothing further happened because Rigney and Radcliff fouled to Davis.

A couple of hits off Rigney dissolved the 4 to 4 tie in the fifth. For a starter Berger tossed out Bell and Vosmik then doubled against the left field scoreboard. Huffman slammed a single past Hayes and Vosmik counted. Carey fouled to Berger and Walkup filed to Walker.

The Sox tied it in the sixth for the third time. Appling opened with a two base drive off the wall in left center and moved to third immediately on a wild pitch. He stayed there while Knickerbocker was tossing out Hayes. When Berger fanned it looked as if the needed run would not materialize, but Sewell came through again, this time with a single past Carey, and Appling scored. Rigney also singled and was forced on Radcliff's grounder to Knickerbocker.

That Big Seventh.

The production in the decisive seventh began with Kreevich's triple to left center. Walker's single moved him across the plate. Walkup was given added trouble when Knickerbocker fumbled Bonura's grounder. Appling planted his second double in center, Walker scoring. Hayes doubled off the left field scoreboard, Bonura and Appling scoring. Walkup was excused, and Blake moved into the vacancy. Hayes went to third on Berger's fly and scored on Sewell's single to left. Later in the inning there was a single off Radcliff's bat, but it didn't figure.

Walker tripled off Thomas to open the eighth and scored the eleventh run on Bonura's first hit of the afternoon.

Rigney started the ninth by dropping a throw from Bonura on Davis' grounder. West's fly to short right fell between Walker and Hayes for a single, Clift and West were erased by a double play after which Bell hit his No. 7 homer into the left field seats.

Cain to Pitch for Sox Today Against Browns

Merritt [Sugar] Cain, who hasn't been of much value to the White Sox this season, will be started against the Browns in the second of the series today. He'll be opposed by Oral Hildebrand.

Monty Stratton, who would have appeared in the All-Star game if he had not turned up with a hand injury, will be able to pitch one game of tomorrow's double-header here with the Browns. He hurt the hand sliding to the plate in one of the July 4 games at St. Louis.

The attendance was made up of about 3,500 cash customers and 5,000 Lady's day guests.

Contrary to reports the Sox will not play a double-header with Washington here July 22. It's an open date, the one game originally scheduled for then having been played off earlier in the season. The error was made in the double-header list published at intervals by the American league office.

Lewis-Pastor Bout Planned for Chicago

New York, July 9.—[Special.]—Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, today announced plans for presenting Bob Pastor, John Henry Lewis, and possibly Max Schmeling.

Mullen is negotiating for a 15 round Lewis-Pastor fight for next month at Comiskey park in Chicago, and speaks of matching the winner with Schmeling. The latter plan, of course, is contingent upon the outcome of efforts to prevent Tommy Farr from running out on Schmeling in London. If the German can get into the same arena with Tommy, he would not be interested in Pastor or Lewis for a while yet.

To Offer Lewis $25,000.

Gus Greenlee, manager of Lewis, already has agreed to the bout. Lewis has been offered $25,000. Pastor would get 25 per cent. Mullen predicted the bout will draw better than $100,000. Top price would be $7.20.

Jimmy Johnston Jr., Pastor's manager, who conferred with Mullen today, indicated his willingness to accept.

Jacobs Is Noncommittal.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, had nothing to say about Max fighting in Chicago. Joe insists Max's next foe will be Farr, claiming that Thomas will not be allowed to leave England until he fulfills his agreement with Schmeling.

Yachts Start Annual Race to Saugatuck

The Jackson Park Yacht club's seventeenth annual Chicago to Saugatuck, Mich., race, was started last night at 8 o'clock from the Van Buren street gap. A fleet of 31 sailing yachts and many power craft crossed the starting line.

A light southerly breeze prevailed at the beginning of the race. The direct course is 90 statute miles, but all the sailboats will travel longer distances.

A Test for Marchioness.

Robert Benedict, commodore of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, returned from the East in time to sail his 55 foot yawl, Southern Cross, in the Saugatuck race. Commodore Benedict was aboard the new cutter White Cloud, in the 450-mile Gibson Island race. Norman Marsh's 67 foot cutter, Marchioness, newly reconditioned, started last night with the rest of the fleet. It is the yacht's first event this season, and with heavy weather it may be among the leaders.

Other Races Today.

The Chicago Yacht club's weekly series of club races for its fleet of R, Eagle, Tumlaren, and Star class sloops, will be started at 2:15 p. m. today.

Star class sloops of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club are scheduled to race today and tomorrow afternoons off Wilmette harbor. On a shorter course also off Wilmette, Snipes of the Wilmette Harbor Snipe class fleet will race tomorrow.

Cy Cummings, President of Laurel Track, Dies

Washington, D. C., July 9.—[Special.]—Andrew J. [Cy] Cummings, president of Laurel race track, died today. He was 59 years old. Cummings was a graduate of Georgetown Law school. He served as commissioner to the Pan-American exposition at San Francisco in 1915.

RANGER'S SPECIAL JIBE OUTLAWED FOR CUP RACES

Club Chiefs Ban Time Saving Maneuver.

Newport, R. I., July 9.—[Special.]—Harold S. Vanderbilt's America's cup defender Ranger, victor again today, was dealt a blow in its handling when the officials of the New York Yacht club, which it will represent in the international match against T. O. M. Sopwith's challenger Endeavor II., ruled against the Ranger's jibing with its parachute spinnaker set.

The Ranger had saved much time in its races by that maneuver. Sopwith made no protest over the matter, which is considered an ingenious and safer way of sail handling, and probably will be permitted by rule change after the cup racing.

Carries 2 Spinnaker Booms.

Ranger carries two spinnaker booms, one on each side of the deck for quick handling, which is permissible as long as both are not used at the same time. In the jibes made without the customary taking in of the parachute, a method was devised of switching from one boom to the other which Vanderbilt held was in conformity with the rules.

The race committee of the New York club, consisting of Edmund Lang, chairman; George M. Pynchon, and Walter L. Coursen, went for a sail on Ranger and watched a jibe. They noted that for a moment the spinnaker was not attached to a boom, as the rule requires it be. They considered it a violation and gave a decision to Mr. Vanderbilt. He appealed from it to the committee on racing appeals of the club, which today refused to sanction the move.

Have Their Third Race.

NEW SECURITY OFFERINGS DROP SHARPLY IN WEEK

Industrial Group Leads, but Total Is Small.

New financing in the week ended July 8 dropped to $14,132,185 from $182,789,613 in the preceding week and $45,387,940 in the corresponding week of last year. The preceding week's total was the highest for any week since that ended last Feb. 12, and last week's financing was the smallest since the week ended June 17 when new offerings amounted to $10,695,000.

Municipal issues were the most numerous while industrial financing accounted for the largest block, as shown in the following table:

	1937.	1936.
Municipals	$ 2,337,000	$17,447,000
Industrials	6,000,000	5,552,000
Miscellaneous	80,000	1,623,000
Stocks	5,715,000	13,915,940
Public utilities	None	6,850,000
Total	$14,132,185	$45,387,940

Middle West Files.

Middle West corporation of Chicago yesterday filed an application with the Securities and Exchange commission for approval of the acquisition of $54,600 in first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due Aug. 1, 1960, and 41,030½ shares of capital stock of the Missouri Pacific Service corporation. The company would also acquire $33,000 of first mortgage 20 year 5 per cent bonds, series A, due April 1, 1947, of Michigan Public Service company. The securities are to be acquired in connection with a reorganization program. Hearing on the application is scheduled for July 26 in Washington, D. C.

Offering Date Delayed.

Sundstrand Machine Tool company filed an amendment to its registration statement with the SEC postponing the date of public offering of 113,935 warants for common stock and 22,787 shares of $5 par common reserved for exercise of warants to July 22.

The New Amsterdam Casualty company also filed an amendment postponing the offering date of proposed securities to Aug. 16 or as soon as practicable after the registration statement becomes effective.

Announcement was made that heavy institutional buying on Thursday and yesterday absorbed the remaining $18,000,000 of the $60,000,000 Commonwealth of Pennsylvania 1½ per cent notes recently offered by a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co.

MAYFAIR FIRM SIGNS LEASE ON NEW THEATER

The Mayfair Theater company, a subsidiary of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, yesterday contracted to lease for twenty years a 1,400 seet theater to be erected by Fred Stuckart at the southeast corner of Western avenue and 111th street, from plans by J. E. O. Pridmore.

The theater lease provides for a minimum guaranteed rental of $265,000 for the term, plus a percentage of gross receipts. In addition to the theater the building will contain six stores.

The building and land will represent a reported investment of $225,000. The site fronts 100 feet on 111th street and 150 feet on Western avenue. The Mark Levy Realty company was broker in the negotiations.

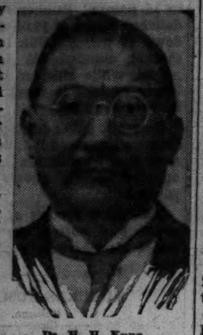
U. S. WILL TRADE MORE GOLD FOR CHINA'S SILVER

Deal Is Designed to Steady Exchange.

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—Chinese and American officials made public today an agreement which provides, in effect, that China will trade additional silver for this country's gold.



Dr. H. H. Kung.

Flanked by advisers, Secretary Morgenthau and Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese finance minister, announced the agreement at a late afternoon press conference. Their joint statement, containing many expressions of good will, said the agreement is an extension of the original Chinese silver understanding effected in May, 1936.

The new accord provides that "the government of China will purchase from the United States treasury a substantial amount of gold."

Increase China's Gold Reserve.

"To aid the Chinese government thus to augment its gold reserves, and in accordance with the terms of the United States silver purchase act of 1934," it stipulates, "the United States treasury will purchase an additional amount of silver from the Chinese government."

Morgenthau and Kung praised operation of the original agreement and said the new understanding would tend to produce greater stability in currency relationships.

Gold sold to China will come from the treasury's "sterilized" gold fund, which was set up last winter to prevent gold imports from expanding the domestic credit supply. Under the sterilization policy, funds are borrowed in the money market to pay for gold acquisitions. This, treasury officials say, keeps the credit supply stable.

China to Leave Gold in U. S.

Kung told reporters that gold acquired from the United States would be left on deposit in this country. He said the metal could be used as a reserve behind Chinese currency without moving it to China.

At present, Kung said, the gold and silver stocks of the Chinese central bank are not depleted. He said, however, the bank wishes to increase the proportion of gold in its aggregate stocks.

Both Morgenthau and Kung declined to say how much gold and silver would be involved, the latter asserting disclosure of this might affect the world prices of the metals.

"We don't want speculation," Kung declared.

Guess at Price of Gold.

Although the announced agreement contained no specific provision on the point, it was assumed by some observers that sales of gold to China would be at $35 an ounce and that purchases of silver from China would be at the world price, now about 45 cents an ounce.

The joint statement said a program of monetary reforms and currency stabilization in China has been accompanied by an increase of trade between China and other nations, particularly the United States, "which occupies the first place in China's foreign trade."

The new agreement provides that, in addition to the gold sales to China and purchases of Chinese silver, the treasury will broaden the scope of existing arrangements under which the Chinese central bank has been able to obtain dollar exchange for currency stabilization purposes.

CHINESE CURRENCY STEADY.

Quotations on Chinese currency in the foreign exchange market yesterday did not reflect the new Chinese-American agreement on exchange of gold for silver, as the official market closed prior to the announcement. Shanghai dollars were unchanged at 29.80 cents in New York and Hongkong dollars were .01 of a cent higher at 30.33 cents.

French francs rebounded in the market yesterday upon publication of the tax increases by which the Chautemps government hopes to solve its financial dilemma. The franc closed 0.00⅝ of a cent higher for the day at 3.87¼ cents.

Other currencies also recorded moderate gains. The British pound sterling rose ½ cent, Dutch guilders 0.01 of a cent, Swiss francs 0.00¾ of a cent, and Canadian dollars 1-64 of a cent.

Gold Higher in London.

The price of bar gold in London again yesterday rose to a premium over its New York shipping parity, making it unprofitable, for the time being, to send gold here from that market. London's bullion price varied from $34.79 to $34.82 an ounce, whereas shipping parity is $34.77.

Gold engaged abroad for shipment to New York during the day totaled $2,165,000, of which $1,119,000 was engaged in England, $758,000 in Holland, and $288,000 in India.

The department of commerce announced yesterday that gold imports totaled $40,993,740 in the week ended July 2, a decline of $20,000,000 from the total for the preceding week. Silver imports amounted to $1,740,682 in the week ended July 2, against $2,241,184 in the preceding week.

Stocks Regain Early Loss, but Close Is Mixed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 9.—After recovering from a somewhat easier start induced by profit taking, followed seven successive days of advancing prices, stock quotations moved in a narrow and mixed range today and closed with gains and losses about evenly divided. The majority of issues were only slightly changed, although a few specialties in the farm equipment and amusement groups extended their recent gains as much as 2 points. Several independent issues closed as much as 4 points higher.

Trading was quiet and generally featureless. Volume for the day fell to 845,420 shares from 1,033,390 shares Thursday.

Farm Equipments Rise.

The heat here emphasized reports of drouth conditions in part of the west, and expectations of higher farm prices resulted in buying of several farm equipments issues, particularly Oliver Farm Equipment, which closed by profit taking, following

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 9.—Volume of trading dropped sharply in the bond market today and prices were highly irregular with only scattered obligations continuing to advance. The utilities group alone gave evidence of strong support. Interest lagged in speculative railroad obligations and the corporate issues. Sales amounted to $7,441,000 par value, compared with $9,298,000 Thursday.

Although the demand for United States government obligations increased slightly, closing prices were irregular, with gains ranging to 4-32 point and losses to 6-32.

Widest fluctuations occurred in Alleghany 5s of 1950, stamped, which rose two points in early trading, then slipped in the afternoon to close 2½ points off at 67½. The unstamped Alleghany 5s of 1950 closed a half point lower at 90, the 5s of 1944 at 97, off 1, and the 5s of 1949 at 92, off ¾.

More than usual interest centered in the foreign list, especially in Cuban public works 5½s of 1945. On a heavy turnover this issue closed up 1¼ points.

Chicago Stocks.

Gains and losses on the Chicago Stock exchange were about evenly divided yesterday. Trading was fairly active at 44,000 shares. Chicago corporation common led in volume at 7,650 shares and closed ¼ lower at 4⅜. The preferred slipped ⅜.

Zenith Radio was the second most active issue at 3,400 shares, rising 1⅝ points to 37⅞. Middle West gained ⅛. Central and South West Utilities lost the same amount.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were irregular yesterday. First National and Continental declined $6 and $2 a share, respectively. Harris Trust dipped $5 and Chicago Title $1. City National rose $2. Mercantile Trust and Savings, National Boulevard, and Northern Trust gained $5 each.

ELECTRIC FIRM WILL PAY $1 ON CLASS A STOCK

Applies on Arrearages; Others Vote Dividends.

Directors of the Chicago Electric Manufacturing company yesterday declared a dividend of $1 on the class A stock, applicable to accumulations for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1931.

Allied International Investing corporation declared a dividend of 50 cents on accumulations on the $3 convertible preferred stock. A similar payment was made Feb. 1.

Declares Fifty Cents.

Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Inc., decided to pay a dividend of 50 cents, the first since payment of 25 cents in February.

Pacific Power and Light company declared dividends of $1.50 on the 6 per cent and $1.75 on the 7 per cent preferred, both to apply on arrearages. After the payment, arrearages will be $8.75 a share on the 7 per cent stock and $7.50 on the 6 per cent.

The Silex company, Hartford, Conn., declared an initial dividend of 25 cents on the new no par value common stock.

CATTLE STEADY; HOGS AVERAGE 10 CENTS LOWER

Cattle prices were generally steady in the Chicago live stock market yesterday. Hogs weighing 220 pounds and less also were unchanged, but those over 240 pounds eased 10 to 20 cents and the price average fell 10 cents to $11.60 a hundred pounds. Sheep and lambs held firm with the top new crop lambs selling at $12.00.

Best steers sold up to $16.40, the highest price for any Friday since December, 1928.

Competition for live stock and meats continued unusually keen due to an acute shortage at eastern plants and to the fact that farmers are shipping a larger percentage of their live stock to terminal markets. This is forcing packers to buy in the open market. Ordinarily they fill a large part of their needs at country concentration points.

General Electric's Orders 59 Pct. Above Year Ago

Schenectady, N. Y., July 9.—[Special.]—The General Electric company in the first six months of 1937 received orders totaling $217,266,619, an increase of 59 per cent over the $136,968,597 received during the first six months of last year, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. The record first half year was in 1929, when orders amounted to $220,716,456.

Heat in New York Boosts Sales of Electric Fans

New York, July 9.—(AP)—As intense heat continued today General Electric company announced its distributors' stock of electric fans in Greater New York was entirely in the hands of dealers. Retail sales in the New York area were reported as 50 per cent ahead of last year.

Sears Awards Contract for New Detroit Store

A contract for construction of the Detroit, Mich., store of Sears, Roebuck & Co., at Woodward and Friedberg avenue, in the Highland park district, was awarded yesterday to the Pattberg Engineering company of Detroit.

Business Books

"Industrial Relations in the San Francisco Trades" by Frederick L. Ryan. [University of Oklahoma Press. Price $3.]

This book is a history of the San Francisco building trade from 1849 to 1935, together with an examination of industrial relations in this field under unregulated competition, union shop and open shop. San Francisco appears to be an ideal city for such a study, according to the author, because both the rapidity and effectiveness of the city's development in the field of labor relations makes it a valuable cross section of the whole United States. The author, now an associate professor of economics at the University of Oklahoma, studied for a Ph.D. degree at the University of California.

"How the National Income Is Divided" by Albert G. Hart. [University of Chicago Press. Price 25 cents.]

This pamphlet is a compact study of the distribution of income in the United States and some of the goals and means of income redistribution both suggested and in practice at the present time.

The author points out that the "widespread feeling that corporate profits are so high that wages could be greatly raised at the expense of profits without any increase of selling prices is not justified" because already "employés typically enjoy some five-sixths of income paid out in their industries."

Making Rails.

The job in making rails is to change short, rectangular pieces of steel containing many impurities into long and tough rails that will stand the load of heavy railroad trains. This is accomplished by gradually lengthening and narrowing the pieces of steel by passing them while very hot through a series of rollers. Actual making of rails begins after the open hearth operations described in a previous article, since to this point the manufacture of rails is similar to production of sheet steel.

The ingots, as the big rectangular pieces of steel are known, first go to the "soaking pits" where they are allowed to absorb heat for about 90 minutes. In the "soaking pits" the temperature is raised very gradually until the ingots are hot enough for rolling.

The first roller through which an ingot passes consists of two great revolving rolls about three feet in diameter and about 10 feet long. Back and forth the ingot goes through the rollers until it is only about one-fourth its original thickness and many times longer. Next, it goes to the "blooming shears" where the rough edges are trimmed off and the bars are cut into two pieces.

Now the bar of steel goes to the "roughing mill" where it first begins to look like a rail, and finally the "dummy rolls" and the "finishing rolls" complete the job of changing the former ingot into a strong rail of a definite length and weight.

In times of good business, the production of rails is an important source of income to steel mills because railroads need new rails constantly to replace those that become worn out, even if no new track is being laid.

Tomorrow: The Manual Type Sheet Mill.

HOLIDAY BRINGS DROP IN WEEK'S AUTO OUTPUT

Passing its seasonal peak reached in the preceding week, production of automobiles in United States and Canadian factories slumped during the current week to 100,031 units, Ward's Automotive Reports estimated yesterday. This compares with last week's total of 122,890 units, and an output of 100,648 in the corresponding period last year.

The decline this week was accentuated by the suspension of activities for the Independence day holiday. Because of seasonal influences output is not likely to again attain last week's level during production of current models, the agency said.

The 1,000,000th Ford produced during the current season rolled off the assembly line at the company's River Rouge plant yesterday. It brought to 25,000,000 the total Ford cars built since 1903.

The preliminary report of the Automobile Manufacturers association placed June shipments of United States and Canadian factories at 525,983, an increase of 12 per cent over June, 1936.

COTTON

Trading in cotton futures yesterday was fairly active, featured by aggressive buying attributed to foreign account and to Wall street speculators. Part of the latter was regarded as short covering based on the department of agriculture report issued yesterday showing an increase of 10.4 per cent in the acreage for this year's crop which proved to be well below trade expectations. The close showed gains of .12 to .33 cent a pound.

Talk of curtailing production of cotton mills has been revived and the large mill has ordered work to cease in all or its plants. Spinners takings of cotton for the week were estimated by the New York Cotton exchange service at 185,000 to 195,000 bales, compared with 177,000 bales during the same period in 1936 and 185,000 bales in 1935. Spot cotton closed 15 to 25 cents higher with New Orleans 13.90 cents, New York, 13.05 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 12.75 cents a pound. Prices follow:

YOU ARE INVITED to cut yourself a piece of cake at our

BIRTHDAY PARTY!

This is the

SILVER JUBILEE

of the

STUDEBAKER

SALES CO. OF CHICAGO.

TO CELEBRATE WE ARE STAGING a sensational

SILVER JUBILEE USED CAR SALE

This marks the 25th anniversary of our entry into the automobile business. All the cars we've sold during that time, if placed end to end, would reach from here to somewhere in the general direction of the moon! But all that matters to us is that we've made a legion of friends and satisfied customers since we started.

For the benefit of old friends and new, we're going to stage a stand-out party by offering a feast of used car values that will bring smart buyers on the run. Come on down and cut yourself a piece of birthday cake while we do some fancy price cutting that will make you mighty glad you came!

As a sample of some of the good things that await you at our party, giving your eyes a treat by glancing over the buys listed below.

Girl Witness Takes Stand and Tells of Furch Slaying—Youth Retells How He Attacked 9 Year Old Girl

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Youth Confesses Attack on Child

BRITISH TRANS-ATLANTIC FLYING BOAT REACHES NEW YORK—The Imperial Airways plane Caledonia after it landed yesterday at Port Washington, N. Y., near New York City, completing flight from Southampton, England. This plane and the Pan American Clipper III. are pioneering an Atlantic air route. (Story on page 7.)

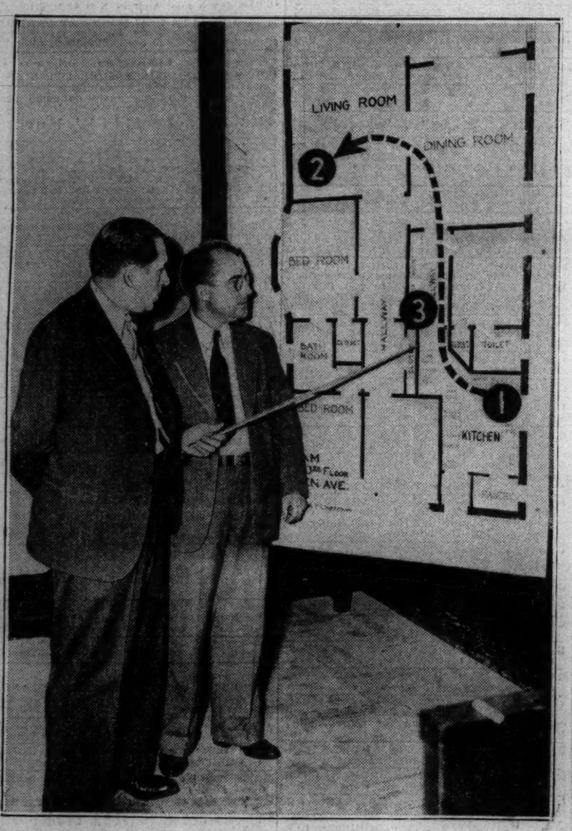
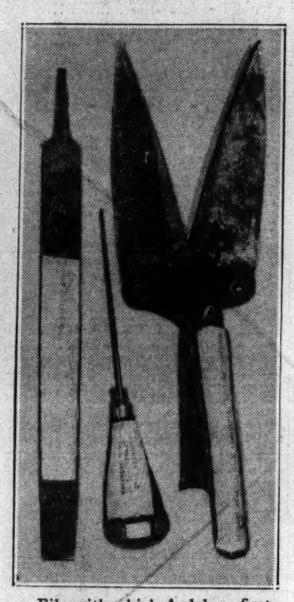
With the mercury near 90 degrees in Chicago yesterday people of all ages went to the Navy pier to cool off in what lake breezes there were. This is a series of camera studies made at the pier.



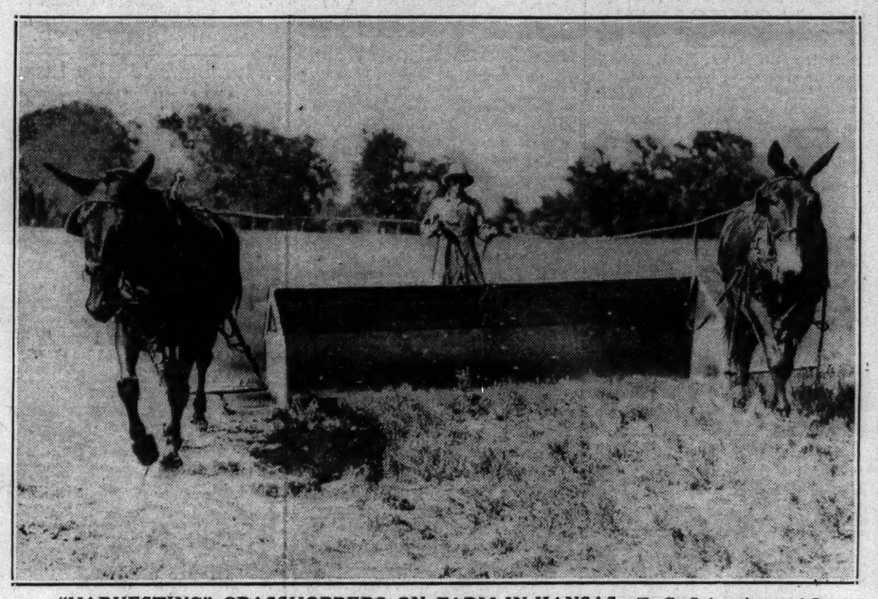
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

SCENE OF FURCH SLAYING—Prosecutors Morris Meyers (left) and Eugene Wachowski in court with diagram of death apartment. No. 1 is where Mrs. Schmidt was shot. No. 2 is where she died and No. 3 is where Jacquelyn Schmidt was standing. (Story on page 1.)

Dan Wegener, who identified Ardelean as youth who molested girls in forest preserve.



File with which Ardelean first struck girl, and the ice pick and garden shears he used.



"HARVESTING" GRASSHOPPERS ON FARM IN KANSAS—T. G. Schweiger of Lenexa, Kas., operating machine on his farm, which is infested by pests now a problem to growers in many western states. As the 12 foot sled is drawn over the field the insects try to leap over it, hit the backboard, and fall into tray containing liquid which kills them.

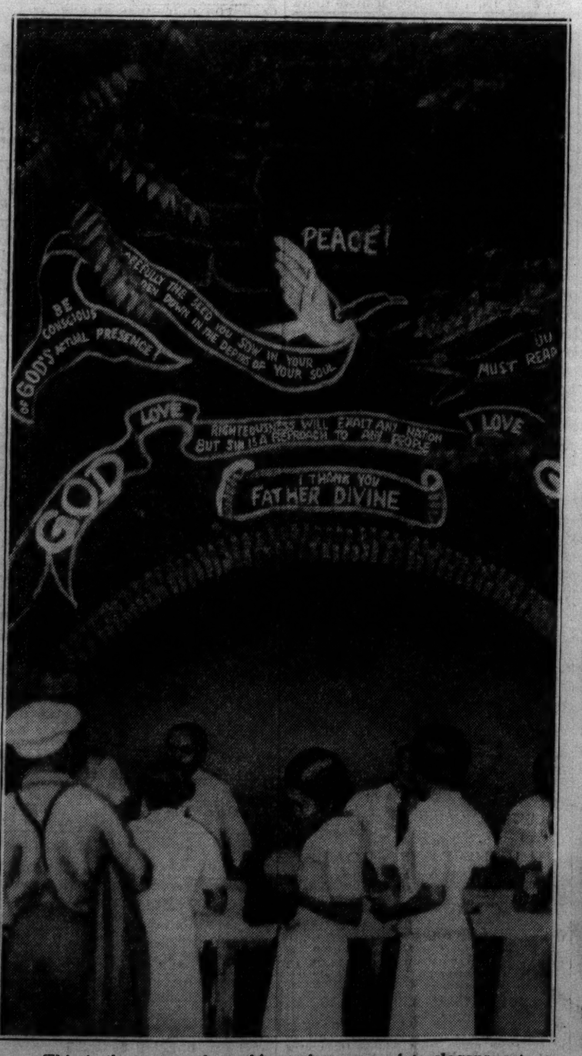
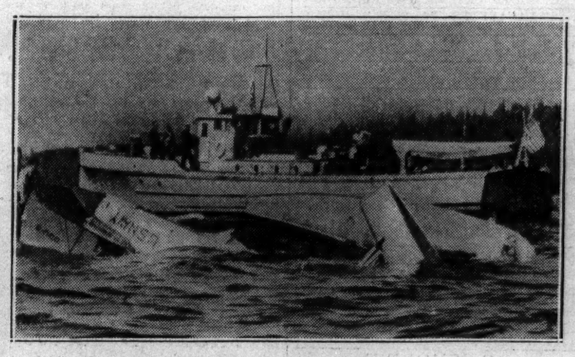
IN 'HEAVEN' WITH FATHER DIVINE AND HIS ANGELS



This is the watermelon table, under appropriate slogans, set up at Kingston, N. Y., by Father Divine, New York cult leader, and his followers who attended the "heavenly Olympics." There was little in the way of athletic competition, but plenty of other things to interest the photographer. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]

One of the "happy angels" singing the praises of Father Divine. "Peace, It's Wonderful" was the theme song of the event. (Story on page 6.)

This follower was less articulate, so she sat under an umbrella painted with signs praising the object of her devotions.



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

SEAPLANE CRASH IS FATAL TO ONE—Wreckage of navy seaplane in Puget Sound near Seattle. Seaman W. H. Myers of Billings, Mont., was killed and a companion injured in accident to the heavy flyer. (Story on page 2.)
